CRITICISM HALTS HASTY PASSAGE OF ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Senate and House Committees Plan Hearings to Give Public Voice in Legislation.

NOT UP TO WILSON PROMISE

Progressives of All Parties Cite Weakness in Bills; Pick Flaws in Publicity Clause.

BIG BUSINESS MAKES PROTEST

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—As a result of criticism leveled at the administration's anti-trust bills, it was announced today by the president and leaders in congress that they do not represent the final form in which they will receive enactment.

At the same time it is admitted they constitute the basis of the legislation deemed adequate by the president to correct the trust evil.

Hearings are to be given to business men and others by the senate and house committees, either jointly or separately. These hearings may force certain changes. That the administration will go any further than is proposed in the tentative bills is doubtful.

The truth of the matter is the administration has no purpose to disturb business unduly and has come to recognize that radical action which would affect numerous corporations might give rise to unsatisfactory conditions throughout the country. Added to the patriotic desire to aid in the diffusion of general prosperity is the more selfish ambition to keep Democratic party in power.

Not Up to Campaign Noise.

It is not surprising to find upon analysis of the anti-trust bills that they are far more moderate than the campaign utterances of Mr. Wilson and Secretary Bryan foreshadowed. While their moderation may not be objectionable, there are certain provisions which progressives of all parties assert will do either positive harm or at least confide too much power to a single man.

For something like nine years the country has been led to believe—and there was solid basis for the belief—that publicity would go a long way toward correcting many of the evil practices connected with corporation control.

The bureau of corporations was given limited publicity in connection with its investigations. The corporation tax law originally provided for publicity, but executive interpretation and subsequent congressional action nullified this requirement.

The administration's anti-trust bills follow the same policy. The interstate trades commission is authorized to make "public-records." When the commission has made an investigation, upon the request of the attorney general, it can publish its findings only "at the direction" of that official.

One Little Change for Better Bill.

The bill fails to carry out the promise made by the president in his message to provide that publicity which is regarded as essential to the proper conduct of corporation business. A determined effort will be made to strengthen this feature of the bill, but it is believed there is little chance of its success.

Secrecy also will surround the negotiations which under the trades commission bill the attorney general may conduct with combinations violating the law in order to effect the removal of the illegal conditions of operation.

In other words, the say so of the attorney general will constitute the final dictum as to the legal character of a combination dissolved by agreement.

If the administration should be blessed with a wise and honest chief of the department of justice, these agreements probably would be made in the interest of public good. If he should lack wisdom and judgment, or should be corrupt or corruptible, he would be in a position to make agreements continuing or creating unlawful conditions. Such agreements would be absolutely legal.

It is proposed therefore to change the bill so as to place a check upon the attorney general or to give the power to remove unlawful conditions to the trades commission. Probably this proposal will be rejected.

Need Specific Definition of Law.

It is contended by some of the thoughtful students of the trust question in congress that the bill purporting to define violations of the anti-trust law really runs counter to advanced public opinion, which demands that the law shall be made so specific that court interpretation will be no longer needed to determine what is and what is not legal.

It was the determination by the courts that the present anti-trust law prohibits all restraints of trade and all actions resulting in restraints of trade that called forth the "rule of reason" opinion of the Supreme court.

The Circuit court which handed down the first decision in the tobacco trust suit declared the condemnation of the Sherman law to be so sweeping that were two men hauling a commodity across a state line to agree upon a price to be charged for the work they were performing they would be guilty of violating the law.

While the Supreme court in effect confirmed the extreme view of the Circuit court, it modified the effect of the judgment by declaring that all laws must be interpreted in the light of reason, and that "reasonable" combinations and "reasonable" restraint should not be regarded as violation of the law. It was this ruling which aroused the cry that the

GOETHALS TO HEAD NEW YORK POLICE IF HE CAN RETIRE

Panama Canal Builder Agrees to Take Post if Permitted to Leave Army.

MUST HAVE FULL POWER

Absolute Authority to Discharge Subordinates Second Condition He Imposes.

OFFER MADE BY MAYOR MITCHEL

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Col. George W. Goethals, the man who built the Panama canal, has agreed to be police commissioner of New York if the administration at Washington will place him on the retired list and if certain legislation can be put through in New York to give him complete power over the personnel of the police department.

There may be trouble in getting the president's consent, for it has been intended that Goethals shall be first governor of the Canal Zone.

George W. Perkins and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt each had a hand in getting Col. Goethals tentatively to accept the police commissionership. When Mayor Mitchel was in Panama last November he asked Col. Goethals to come to New York, but the army man refused. Mrs. Roosevelt, who saw Col. Goethals just after Mayor Mitchel left Panama, today was said to have been the first to change the colonel's determination to stay in the canal zone.

Mr. Perkins went to Panama as the mayor's personal representative. He left New York on Jan. 7, stayed in Panama thirty-six hours, and got back early this afternoon.

Goethals Demands Absolute Power.

Mr. Perkins found that Col. Goethals believed the job of administering the police in New York was all but impossible under the existing laws. He said that if he were to take charge of the police he must have the same despotic power he has exercised in the administration of the work on the canal.

Mr. Perkins said the law might be changed to abolish the right of courts to review the discharge of policemen on charges. Then Col. Goethals raised the question of his retirement from the army and agreed that if these two objections could be overcome he would be Mr. Mitchel's police commissioner.

Mr. Perkins talked with the mayor over the telephone as soon as he arrived here and then met him tonight to deliver a letter to him from Col. Goethals.

Mayor Mitchel said a bill would be introduced in the legislature at Albany at once giving the commissioner added powers and intimated he would be willing to meet Col. Goethals' other condition of a wait until the end of 1914.

Text of Col. Goethals' Letter.

Col. Goethals in his letter said:

"I have given much consideration to your kind offer to appoint me police commissioner and have discussed it fully with Mr. Perkins. I can only reiterate what I have stated to you—that the position strongly appeals to me, but there are certain conditions which prevent me from accepting it.

"In the first place, it has been my hope and desire to see the canal completed and in satisfactory operation. If our expectations are realized this should be accomplished before the close of the year.

"In the second place, I am an officer on the active list of the army, and, while occupying this status, I am not at liberty to accept outside employment.

"There are, therefore, only two courses for me to pursue to enable me to accept your offer. One is to resign from the service and the other is to be placed on the retired list. The former I would not consider.

Looks Forward to Retiring.

"For the last few years I have been looking forward to securing the advantages of retirement at the close of my duty here. I have served nearly thirty-four years and the president, under the law, is authorized to retire me after thirty years of service; so it is my hope that he will grant me the privilege on request.

"Assuming that I will be allowed to remain here until the canal is completed and that on application I will be placed on the retired list, attractive as your offer is, I would be obliged to decline it, so long as the present law remains in force by which removals from the police force are subject to review with decision based on legal evidence.

"In public work of any kind efficiency can be secured only when the service of those engaged in it is satisfactory to superiors, and while I fully believe in the right of every man to have a hearing, the decision of the superior as to the character of the man's service should be final.

Demands Absolute Authority.

"In cases where a man whose services have not been satisfactory can be reinstated by a court of review, the effect on discipline and efficiency is most injurious. It undermines authority, leads to insubordination, tends to destroy the loyal coöperation which the executive authority must have to secure results, and makes his tenure of office impossible.

"Assuming, therefore, that I were free to choose after the completion of the canal, I would gladly accept your offer, provided a change in the law is secured which would vest the right of removal in case of unsatisfactory service in the hands of the commissioner."

Mr. Mitchel was asked if Col. Goethals' statement that he would not finish his work on the isthmus for a year, meant New York need not look for him until 1915.

"I can't say anything about that tonight," said the mayor. "I will have a more detailed statement to give out about it later on."

Mr. Mitchel was told dispatches from the

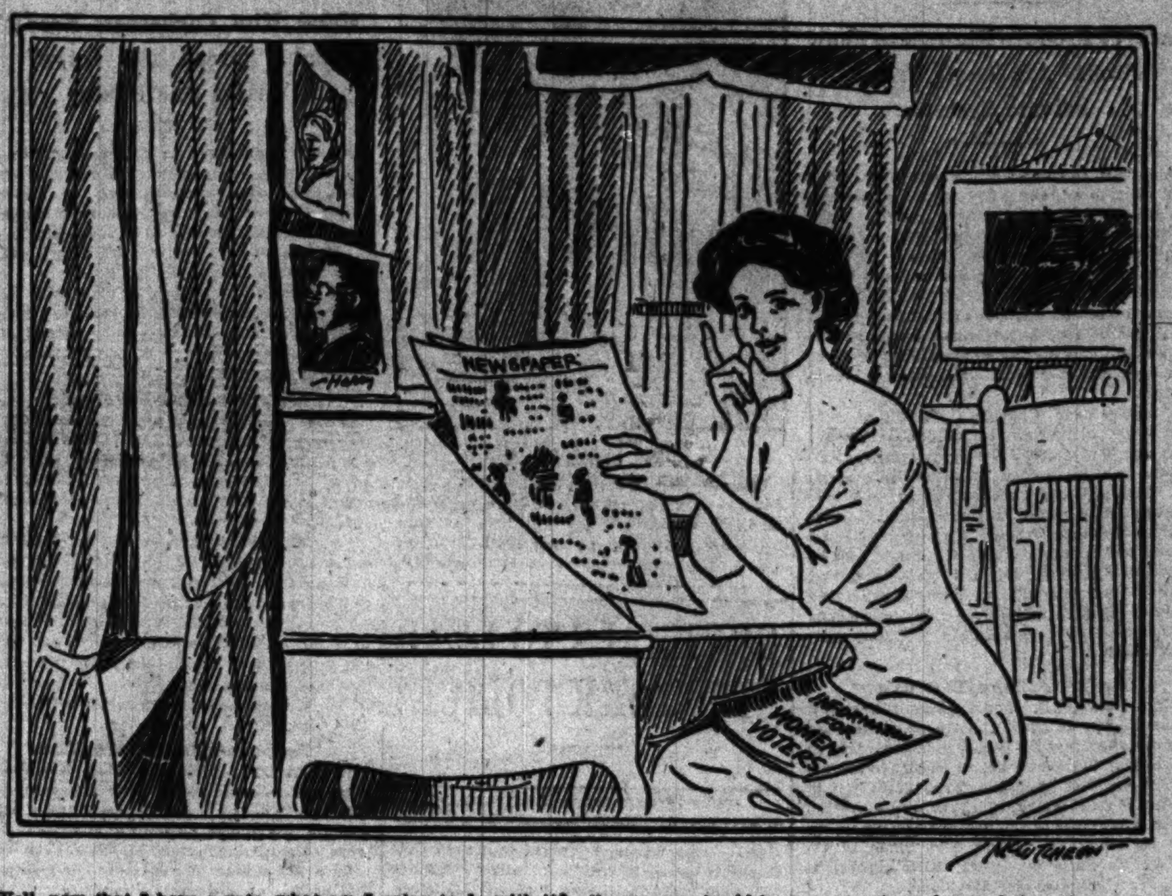
BAB'S BALLOT. I.

(Copyright: 1914: By John T. McCutcheon.)



Well, now that I have a vote, what am I going to do with it? Am I going to try to understand the matters upon which I am to vote, or am I going to be simply a helpless dummy who votes the way some man tells me to vote? Am I going to the polls to vote, as a good citizen should do, or am I going to sit at home and then wonder why the worst candidates have won?

Nope! That's not the kind of a woman voter for me. That would simply prove that some of the men were right when they said that the women wouldn't know what to do with a vote if they had it. These men would be tickled to death if we fall down on our voting, and would say that it proved the superiority of man over woman.

The first thing I'm going to do is to devote a little time to the study of my duties and obligations as a voter, and then vote the way I think will do the greatest good. If every woman in Chicago would follow this course we would have the best and highest grade government in the world.

This is the largest city in the world in which women vote. All the world will be looking to Chicago to see whether women are to be an influence for good in politics or whether they prove themselves unable to rise to their opportunities and obligations as citizens. We have the eyes of the world on us. Womankind is on trial. If we make good, the women of all the world can point to us as an example of the fitness of women to vote and of the ability of women to think as intelligently as the average man on public matters. Most public questions more or less directly affect the home, and women ought to be able to understand them as well as men.

We are entering a period of idealism in government. The age of sordid commercialism is doomed. And in an age of idealism the women should be a greater force for good than the men.

We are 400,000 strong in Chicago. If we act together for the best interests of the city, regardless of politics and party labels, we can overwhelm the forces of evil and selfishness that have done so much to retard the city's progress.

Therefore, I am going to study public matters and public issues so that I will be able to consider them with at least a fair degree of intelligence.

Harry always laughs at me when I talk of voting. He seems to think woman's place is at home learning the tango. He thinks just because I don't know the batting averages of all the ball players I haven't the capacity to understand serious matters. The idea of my voting seems to strike him as a huge joke. He says he supposes we will have pink teas at the voting places, and vote for every handsome man regardless of his real qualifications.

Now, Harry is a nice boy, but he has a surprise in store for him. Whenever I ask him for information upon some public matter he laughs it off and tells me to cut out the high brow stuff. Now, I have a sneaking suspicion that he does not know the first thing about this city and its government, and I'm going to surprise him one of these evenings with a cross examination that will make him look like a punctured tire.

I'll study up a few of these questions of public policy and then some time when he comes around to sing the latest songs and try his new tango steps I'll spring a lovely surprise on him. I'll ask him who the alderman of his ward is, what precinct he votes in, and a few more of the things that every self-respecting man should know.

I'll tell you how it turns out. More later. BAB.

REDUCTION PLANT PRICE AGREED ON

Mayor and Company Settle Upon Valuation of $275,000 to Close Deal.

MAY SOLVE THE PROBLEM.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

At last real action has been taken to solve—at least temporarily—Chicago's garbage question. This subject has been thrown around the city hall since Dec. 10, 1911. During most of that time there was a divided responsibility for action or inertia.

About 3 o'clock last Tuesday morning the city council placed full responsibility for a solution of the garbage problem upon the administrative officials and particularly upon Mayor Harrison. The aldermen by the passage of the annual budget directed the mayor to acquire by purchase or condemnation the plant of the Chicago Reduction company for a price not exceeding $350,000.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the mayor appeared at a special session of the council finance committee and recommended the plant be purchased for $275,000.

Company Will Accept $275,000.

"I have been informed through Attorneys George W. Miller and Alfred Austrian, representing the company," the mayor said, "that it will accept $275,000."

"I think that a mighty good bargain, considering all the conditions," the mayor continued.

He did not go into detail about the conditions. It was not necessary. All of the aldermen knew that the city is now using the obsolete, insanitary, and otherwise objectionable method of dumping its garbage in the Grace street clay hole in the Twenty-sixth ward. They also knew the administration and the aldermen probably would be criticised severely and persistently if the dump were used during the approaching summer.

Mayor Forestalls Criticism.

The mayor intimated he believed attacks would be aimed at him if the pits were used in warm weather.

"One day an alderman told me he thought the plant could be obtained for $300,000," the mayor said in explaining his negotiations. "I told him I was absolutely unwilling to consider that figure, and he wanted to know what price I would indorse."

Officials of the reduction company have not been permitted to enter the mayor's private office since last summer when he concluded they imposed upon him in the wording of an agreement for an appraisal.

"A little later lawyers for the company asked Corporation Counsel Sexton if the city would purchase for $270,000," the mayor resumed. "I turned that down. They wanted to split the difference between $275,000 and $270,000, and finally came to my figure. They agree to give a warranty deed.

Condemnation Suit Hangs.

"In the condemnation proceedings now pending we can only acquire an easement—the use of the property for a reduction plant. Col. Allen, mechanical engineer of the city, estimates it will take sixty days to rehabilitate the plant. At the end of that period we will have warm days.

"The condemnation suit is set for hearing on Feb. 2, and that proceeding will take three weeks. The Lord knows how long it will take if attorneys for the company want to string the case along and embarrass the city as much as possible. I am willing to assume my full responsibility for the purchase at $275,000. It might cost less by condemnation, and perhaps more. No one can tell what a jury will do."

Sexton Approves Settlement.

"I think it would be a good settlement," added Corporation Counsel Sexton.

Ald. Kearns wanted to know whether this plant is to be used permanently or temporarily, but got no satisfactory reply. Ald. Long said that east of Indiana avenue the odor from the stockyards has been more objectionable recently than when the garbage plant was in operation. He also said he believed the fee to the garbage property is worth $40,000 or $50,000 more than the easement.

Ald. Lipps was heartily in favor of the purchase because it will eliminate the dump from his ward.

No council action will be asked, as the council delegated authority in the appropriation bill to the mayor.

Former Offer $383,000.

Last September the council attempted to obtain the reduction plant and appointed appraisers. Col. Allen for the city placed a value of $206,000 upon it. The other two appraisers said $475,000 was a fair valuation. Shortly afterwards the company offered to sell for $383,000. That offer was refused by the council without committee consideration. The Grace street dump was then used.

For the operation of the dump the council appropriated $43,000 for three months. For the rehabilitation of the reduction plant $165,000 was set aside. To operate it for nine months the council appropriated $275,642.50. In addition $200,000 was appropriated for the purchase of three sites for incinerating plants and their construction.

Big Income Expected.

Against the cost of operation the city has estimated it will receive $300,000 or $350,000 of income from the plant. This figure probably is excessive, because it is not expected the city will operate the plant as economically as did the Chicago Reduction company.

Mayor Harrison assured the aldermen yesterday that it is his desire and intention to have nearly all of the garbage hauled to the plant by water and not to pile garbage in the open air at the plant.

Cook Slays Moroccan Agent After Being Ordered Away for Refusal to Serve Dinner.

TANGIER, Morocco, Jan. 23.—Paul Chevandier De Valdrome, the French diplomatic agent here, was shot and killed by his cook, a man named Sure, in the presence of guests who had been invited to attend an official dinner in the legation.

All the guests had assembled, but the cook refused to serve the dinner, and M. De Valdrome, after vainly expostulating with him, ordered him out of the house. As M. De Valdrome was returning to his guests the cook followed him and, drawing a revolver, shot the diplomatic agent twice, one bullet lodging in his back and the other in the neck.

M. De Valdrome staggered into the salon and fell dying into the arms of a high official. The murderer was arrested.

SWEITZER URGES 'MARRIAGE COURT'

Wants Judge Daily Assigned to Perform Civil Ceremonies at City Hall.

WOULD BLOCK "MILLS."

County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer yesterday suggested a judge of the Municipal court daily be assigned to perform all civil marriage ceremonies. In this way he believes a revival of "marriage mills" operated by country justices of the peace may be blocked.

In a letter to Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court Mr. Sweitzer seeks the jurist's coöperation in the effort to insure the legality of all civil marriages.

Wars on Child Marriages.

The letter follows:

"You are undoubtedly conversant with the campaign now being actively waged to prevent the so-called 'child' marriages and to curb for all time the activities of country justices of the peace in operating marriage 'mills' in the city of Chicago.

"It is our daily experience, however, that a number of the applicants for licenses inquire for the nearest marrying power, preferring a civil authority for that purpose.

"As long as such a comparatively large percentage of those being married prefer the civil ceremony there is a possibility of abuse creeping in. Through your coöperation a plan might be inaugurated which would not only eliminate abuse, but would give more solemnity to the occasion and perhaps bring the parties to a deeper conception of the sanctity of the relation.

Suggests Daily Assignment.

"The number of associate judges in your court is about the same as the number of working days in the month, and if you could consistently assign each judge to one day's work of this kind each month it would, in my judgment, do much to improve the conditions.

"While the judges and other officers created by the municipal court act are not permitted to accept fees or other emoluments for ministerial acts of this nature, it is the custom and most people prefer on occasions of this kind to make a donation to the one officiating. Such donations could be accepted and added to the revenue of your office, thus being available for public purposes and correspondingly lessening the burden of the taxpayer."

Discounts Charges Against Employes.

Mr. Sweitzer refused to give consideration to an anonymous letter received by Municipal Judge Uhlir of the Court of Domestic Relations in which charges were made against certain attaches of the county clerk's office in connection with the marriage mills.

"There is not a word of truth in the communication and I would not dignify it by an extended reply," Mr. Sweitzer said.

Detectives searching for Justice of the Peace Edmund R. Polk of La Grange, who is charged with having illegally performed marriages in the county building and the Reaper block, are investigating a report that Polk is living near St. Joseph, Mich.

A notice was posted in the license department during the day warning all who make false affidavits concerning their age that they will be prosecuted.

DECLARES BOSSES CHOOSE JUDGES; SEEKS A REMEDY

Judicature Society's Pamphlet Discusses Dissatisfaction with Courts.

IT OFFERS SUGGESTIONS

Favors the Impaneling of More than Twelve Jurors for Long Trials.

WOULD CLASSIFY ALL LAWYERS

The American Judicature society, of which Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, Dean John H. Wigmore of Northwestern law school, and other Chicagoans are directors, has just put into circulation through its secretary, Herbert Harley, a pamphlet on the "causes for dissatisfaction with the administration of justice in metropolitan districts."

The causes are grouped under the following headings:

Selection, retirement, and discipline of judges.

Organization of the judges after they are selected.

Selection of jurors as judges of the facts, guidance of the jury, and discrimination in its use.

Rules of practice and procedure.

Efficiency in the offices of clerks of courts.

Selection, retirement, discipline, and organization of the bar.

Against Recall by Popular Vote.

In its description of the "actual mode of selecting and retiring judges and the weakness of that system," the pamphlet advances an argument against the recall by popular vote. On this point it says:

"Judges usually are not really elected, but are designated by the leaders of the party political machine dominant in the district. These leaders appoint the nominees. The electorate only decides which of two or three sets of nominees it prefers. The compulsory primary has but little altered the situation.

"The judges are subject not merely to a recall, but to a progressive series of recalls—first, by the leaders of the party organization refusing nomination; second, by a wing of the party knifing the candidate at the polls; third, by an upheaval in a national election, and fourth, and most rarely, by actual public dissatisfaction with the judge himself. These recalls for the most part retire the judge from office regardless of the character of his service. The recall at any time by petition will operate to place the judges even more in the power of the political party machine organization than they are now."

Some Suggested Remedies.

Among the suggestions for remedying this condition of affairs are the nonpartisan ballot, the authorization of a bar association ballot, and the selection of judges by appointment. The argument is advanced against the first that the elimination of the political party machine would bring about chaos.

It also is asserted that the "political party machine would continue to be the predominant principal force in the election of judges even with the nonpartisan ballot."

An argument used against the Bar association ballot is that it would have the effect of "lining up lawyers in political camps controlled by the leaders of the political party machines."

Question of Appointments.

"It has been suggested," says the pamphlet, "that nothing of great value can be accomplished until the fact is faced that judges in a metropolitan district are practically certain to be 'appointed' and that the only proper appointing power is one which is legal, conspicuous, subject directly to the electorate and interested in and responsible for the due administration of justice."

It is suggested that this principle of appointment may be worked out in the following ways:

Appointment of judges by the governor.

Appointment by the highest appellate tribunal of the state.

Appointment by the chief justice of the metropolitan district.

The argument is urged against the first that it enables the governor to build up a political machine. Against the second it is asserted it would tend to involve the most important tribunal of the state in politics.

Chief Justice Responsible.

Of the third plan the pamphlet says:

"The chief justice would be conspicuous and in a high degree responsible for the due administration of justice and therefore most interested in the selection of fit men for judges."

It is suggested the eligibility test of the chief justice be "that he has been a lawyer in active practice in the handling of litigation in the courts of the state for fifteen years; that he also should have been a resident of the metropolitan district and a practitioner at the bar of that district for not less than ten years."

Disciplining of Judge.

Discussing the matter of the disciplining of judges the following suggestion is offered:

"That the council of judges composed of the chief justice and the presiding justices of the several divisions of the court should have power to reprove any judge privately or publicly and to transfer any judge to some other division of the court upon a hearing and for cause shown, such as inefficiency, incompetency, neglect of duty, lack of judicial temperament, or conduct unbecoming a judge."

Under the heading of the "organization of judges after they are selected," the pamphlet suggests the classification of the judges' work by an efficiency expert.

"It has been suggested," says the pamphlet, "that it obviously is unwise to let [illegible] or fifteen or thirty judges go to work as they please on a long unspecialized docket of several thousand cases; that to obtain the best results there must be divisional heads who will have large administrative powers and responsibility for the docket of each division. Hence each division should have a presiding justice."

Selection of Jurors.

In the discussion of the selection of jurors it is suggested that in long cases more than twelve men be selected, that in suits involving small sums less than twelve jurors be impaneled, and that in some cases a verdict of less than the total number of jurors be sufficient.

The suggestion is offered that the matter of rules of practice and procedure be left in the hands of the courts.

Discussing methods of selecting, retiring, and disciplining members of the bar the pamphlet offers the following suggestions:

"1. That two years of general collegiate education be required.

2. That a law school education be required, the period to be the usual one of three years.

3. That admission upon examination at the end of three years' law school study permit practice, excluding, however, any right of being heard in the courts in contested matters; that to acquire the right of being heard in such contested matters in each division of a metropolitan court, a period of apprenticeship in practice be required and a further and special examination, oral and written.

Method of Disbarment Cumbersome.

"It is suggested that the present method of disbarring lawyers is too cumbersome. As a remedy for this condition it is suggested "that the grounds for disbarment should be codified as completely as possible by the Supreme court, or under its direction, and that the enforcement of the code be conferred upon the governing board of a legally incorporated society of all the lawyers in the metropolitan district, subject only to a review by the courts."

One section of the pamphlet discusses the organization of the bar. The suggestion is offered that what the bar needs is a legally incorporated society "which shall include all lawyers by the simple process of fixing the fees to be paid and requiring of every lawyer, as a condition to continuance in practice, to keep up his membership in the society."

This society, it is suggested, should be ruled by a governing board to be "composed of representatives elected for a considerable term." This board would regulate admissions to the bar, enforce an authoritative code of legal ethics, and disbar members.

Specialization of Lawyers.

Under the heading of "specialization of lawyers," the suggestion is made that legal practitioners be divided into two classes, advocates and counselors. The pamphlet says:

"The position of the counselor has been thus described: The counselor is the lawyer who has clients. Their affairs, business and personal, so far as they touch the law, and in many respects where they do not touch the law, are his principal care. His success is founded in his ability to keep his clients out of trouble; to adjust their differences; to see that the instruments they execute have no pitfalls for them and that their sales and purchases, their creation of trusteeship and organization of corporations, are accomplished within the law.

"It is the counselor's duty to play safe for his client at all times and to keep him out of difficulty. In a metropolitan district where great business interests center and the wealth of individuals and corporations is very great, the counselor's entire time and energy is frequently given to his special branch of the profession.

Advocate's Line of Activity.

"The advocate's line of activity has been thus described: The advocate answers the inevitable demand of the counselor for a well trained and effective trial lawyer. The advocate makes a business of practicing in the courts in contested cases, especially those of more than usual importance to the parties engaged. His success depends upon the development of individual talent in the handling of litigation in the courts on the civil and criminal side, or both.

"He must satisfy, not the layman who is a client, but the trained counselor who is able to distinguish ability from bluff. The advocate, therefore, has no time for or interest in the miscellaneous affairs of clients. His energy is concentrated upon the handling of particular cases in the courts. Whatever counseling he may do is merely such as he may contribute at the request of counselors in particular matters where his advice, in view of his experience in the courts, may have particular value.

Specialization Among Advocates.

The advocate's days are spent in the preparation of cases for hearing or in actual trials. His earnings accrue as the result of conducting litigation which the counselor decides is necessary or inevitable. Specialization among advocates is probably inevitable. Some will devote themselves to jury trials, civil and criminal, and appeals; others to commercial causes tried with and without a jury, and appeals; others to chancery causes and appeals."

The suggestion is offered that these two classes of practitioners be kept distinct and rules be adopted forbidding an advocate to act as counselor and vice versa.

SON OF RICHARD MANSFIELD OFF FOR PARIS WITH 50 CENTS.

Unable to Borrow Money from Schoolmates, 14 Year Old Boy Disappears from Wallingford, Conn.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Failing to borrow the $2 necessary to carry him from the Choate school in Wallingford, Conn., back to New York, Gibbs Mansfield has abandoned that institution and set out for his mother in Paris with 50 cents for the journey.

The 14 year old son of the tragedian is now a wanderer. He left Choate two weeks ago. Before going away, he wrote letters vigorously attacking the school and its management and declaring his last friend had turned traitor to him.

The Wallingford people believe Mansfield is in New York, but it is thought he may have come south and taken a cattle or cotton steamer to England. He told boys at Wallingford that he had only 50 cents and wanted money enough to make his way to New York. They refused to lend it to him.

MANY SEEK TO SOLVE MYSTERY OF THE UNIDENTIFIED 'J. R. R.'

Inquiries Continue to Come to the Police Regarding Man Held at Oak Forest Infirmary.

Inquiries continue to come to the police regarding the unidentified "J. R. R." at the Oak Forest infirmary. One of yesterday's communications was from George Rosar of Peckville, Pa., who is looking for his brother, Joseph C. Rosar, who was supposed to have died twenty-four years ago.

The body sent to the family was not that of Joseph Rosar.

George Rosar has learned there was a Joseph C. Rosar in the navy during the Spanish war. "J. R. R." recalls the battle of Manila and the brother is hopeful he can end his long search.

The Pittsburgh police have telegraphed for fuller information, thinking they have a clew to the stranger's identity.

ARMOUR DEFIANCE GOES UP TO COURT

Petition for Mandamus to Force Reply to Query Expected Next Week.

READY TO SELL LINES.

Packers Produce Figures to Show Profits Are Small Under Private System.

An effort to compel officials of the Armour car lines to answer all questions propounded by the interstate commerce commission in its investigations into the private freight lines of the country will probably be made early next week. A petition for a mandamus to compel Frederick W. Ellis, vice president of the Armour corporation, to testify will be filed before either Judge Landis or Judge Carpenter as soon as it has received the approval of the full commission in Washington.

Commissioner Charles C. McChord, who has been conducting the local investigation, left for Washington early yesterday after a telephonic conference with Chairman Edgar E. Clark of the commission, who is in Washington. As a result Patrick J. Farrell, solicitor for the commission, will arrive in Chicago today and scrutinize the petition as drawn by Special Examiner Edward W. Hines. Mr. Hines probably will leave for Washington this evening to submit the draft to the commission, and return with Mr. McChord early next week.

Ready to Make Test Case.

Chairman Clark of the commission said in Washington at night that in previous hearings in similar cases before Examiner George P. Boyle, there had been refusals to answer questions, but that the issue could not be brought to a test until there was a refusal with a member of the commission presiding, as in Thursday night's occurrence at the Hotel La Salle when Mr. Ellis refused to answer Commissioner McChord.

Both Harry L. Osman, superintendent of the car department of Morris & Co., and A. R. Fay, traffic manager of Swift & Co., said those firms would be glad to get out of the private car line business, if they could be assured of equal service from the railroads, as the profits are small. Attorneys for the packers believe the government aims to terminate the private car lines if possible.

"The Morris car line is not profitable, paying only 4 71-100 per cent in 1912," said Mr. Osman. "If we secure fair compensation for the amount invested we would be glad to turn over the equipment to common carriers, but we would want to be assured that the equipment would be protected for our business."

Morris Man Outspoken.

The Morris representative was outspoken in his opinions about the railroads' handling of private cars.

"We have no way of knowing if our cars are being returned empty or loaded," said Mr. Osman in answer to the queries of Examiner George P. Boyle. "We receive postcards telling of the cars' movements, but that is no check. The railroad bills for mileage often are $300 a month greater than shown by our records. The railroads will return our cars with brakebeams and other pieces of equipment broken or missing, and these must be replaced at our expense. Nor will the railroad accept such a defective car for shipment. If in emergency we are forced to use a railroad refrigerator car we must provide beams, hooks, and racks, most of which we do not see again. Then we have practically no check against the railroads' repair bills."

"Do you believe the railroads bill you repairs that are not made?" inquired Mr. Boyle.

"I would rather not express an opinion," returned Mr. Osman. "However, I have heard such charges being made."

Show Sinking Earnings.

Figures were submitted giving the Morris tabulation on private cars for the recent five years. The figures show decreases in net earnings despite an increasing car total, as follows:

Year—	No. cars.	Av. repairs per car.	Net earnings per car.
1909	1,659	$115.76	$22.74
1910	1,975	119.71	20.98
1911	1,868	94.55	21.64
1912	1,917	95.81	19.67
1913 (11 mo.)	2,111	119.66	19.31

Officials of the Atlantic Coast line will appear this morning and afternoon before Special Examiner Hines, who is presiding in Commissioner McChord's absence in Washington.

GOETHALS TO LEAD NEW YORK POLICE?

Canal Zone received tonight indicated Col. Goethals had no intention of leaving Panama.

"Well," said the mayor, "there's his letter with his signature."

Mitchel Explains His Choice.

Mayor Mitchel, in giving out the letter, issued a statement in which he said:

"Fully realizing the great importance of solving the police problem in this city, the thought uppermost in my mind when elected mayor was to secure the right man for police commissioner. I made up my mind, from all I could learn, that Col. Goethals was the man for the place.

"I went to Panama and came away more impressed than ever with the fact that he was the ideal for police commissioner. The greatest piece of work he has done has been in coordinating a great force of men into a harmonious, loyal, enthusiastic working organization. He has besides proved himself a great administrator.

"I believe if we can secure Col. Goethals as this head he will be able to infuse into the department the same aims and ideals, the same loyalty to the city and its interests, that he has inspired in the men in Panama for the government and its interests."

News Surprise to Washington.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—If Col. Goethals wishes to quit the army to become police commissioner of New York his plans are unknown at the White House and the war department. It is generally understood here that President Wilson intends to make Col. Goethals the first governor of the canal zone.

"It seems incredible," said Secretary Garrison at the suggestion Col. Goethals would retire.

"I want him to build the new government railroad in Alaska," said Secretary Lane of the interior department.

WOMAN DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

Mrs. Mathilda Kohn Found Unconscious and Several Pieces of Jewelry Are Missing.

Police are investigating circumstances attending the discovery last night of Mrs. Mathilda Kohn unconscious in her apartment at 4655 Vincennes avenue. A grocer's boy noticed gas when he went to the speaking tube and called the police.

Mrs. Kohn was found sprawled in a rocking chair before a gas stove, two burners of which were open. She was taken to the Wesley hospital and is in a serious condition.

The inquiry began when her uncle, Max Liebstein of 5137 Ellis avenue called and found several pieces of jewelry were missing.

QUACKS' SECRETS TOLD IN LETTERS

Former Employe of Codes Supplies Basis for Mail Fraud Prosecution.

PATIENTS MADE VICTIMS.

"Hand Him Corkscrew Needle" and "Spread the Salve" Writes One Faker.

Detectives assigned to the investigation of quacks and operating out of Chief Gleason's office yesterday turned over to United States District Attorney Wilkerson damaging correspondence said to be the property of W. E. and W. A. Code, "men's specialists," recently exposed by The Tribune.

The letters are said to demonstrate that the Codes have flagrantly violated the postal fraud laws. The missives were turned over to the police by Robert W. Bumpass, a former employé of the quacks.

Two Concerns Involved.

The letters are said to show the Codes operated and are operating two fraudulent concerns—the Medical Laboratories and the Vera Vita company. Bumpass handled the correspondence of both. They treat men's diseases by correspondence.

According to Bumpass' story, the Codes operated the Medical Laboratories under their own names. Before The Tribune exposed this concern it was at 145 North Clark street.

The correspondence turned over by Bumpass includes letters said to have been written by the Codes which indicate that the two brothers made it a practice to turn patients of the Medical Laboratories over to the Vera Vita company.

"Recommended" Vera Vita.

The letters represented that the Codes were not connected with Vera Vita company but had "heard" the concern had a sure specific for blood poisoning and therefore were able to recommend it. The Vera Vita sells a $30 course of treatment consisting of five bottles of a worthless mixture.

Some of the letters are said to bear indorsements in the handwriting of the Codes intended only for the eyes of Bumpass and showing conclusively the quacks were practicing a confidence game.

There also are letters written to the Codes by other quacks. Some of these are illuminating as indicating the practices employed on patients.

Following is an excerpt from one of the letters said to have been written to W. E. Code by a quack in New York with whom the Codes had a "business arrangement":

"Regarding —— of —— South Robey street we wish you would write him and tell him to come in and be injected. We are just in receipt of a letter from him in which he is kicking and can't understand why we recommended you so highly, but he states you don't think much of us, but he adds (with the soft pedal) that he does not think much of us either. He seems to have another kick in that we charged him a high price for salvarsan when he can buy it from you for $2.

"We trust that when injecting him you will turn the spray needle into him and that he will conclude no matter what you think of us or what we think of you the profession must be respected. So hand him the corkscrew needle. We will write him today to call on you and we trust you will have a nice box of ointment ready and will spread the salve with your usual celerity."

"Come Across with Thirty Bones."

An indorsement on a letter from a patient in Galena, Ill., says:

"I told him to come across with his thirty bones and we would send him his medicine."

Other indorsements, all said to be in the handwriting of the Codes, are:

"Have Bob write him and tell him to take Vera Vita."

"Sent B. S. letter."

"It might be well to have Hump write him and urge him to take more Vera Vita."

"I sent 606 letter to him."

"Wait: How about this fellow? He paid money order in August. Have him come in and get $35 to $50 for test and take circumcision for $85. Will."

The Codes have relatives in the federal service. They assert they have a "pull," which gives them immunity from federal prosecution.

Loses Rings Worth $1,300.

Mrs. S. Hasterlik of 16 West Eighteenth street went into the washroom of Mandel Brothers' department store yesterday to cleanse her hands. She took off two diamond rings worth $1,300 and put them on the wash stand. She turned to dry her hands on a towel. A reward of $100 will be paid for the return of the rings, "and no questions asked."

FAT CURE FAKERS, HAIL KING!

Cunningham Had League of Pulpy Persons to Fight Frauds.

POSTOFFICE ENDS GAME.

But of Course His Treatment Was "One and Only Real Remedy."

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Now let all impostors, swindlers, fakers, quacks, and "flimflam artists" yield homage to their master, W. C. Cunningham, the husband of Marjorie Hamilton, "the calendar girl," and the late manager of Texas Guinan, Inc.

All previous conceptions of Cunningham, founded on the four swindles he perpetrated until his correspondence with suckers was cut off by the postoffice department, fade into insignificance when compared with the revelation of the actual grandeur of his charlatanry made by Postmaster General Burleson in a fifth fraud order issued today.

Cunningham operated two fake obesity cures, a mail order correspondence school swindle, and a fraudulent bargain offer of all his spurious wares, from which, it is estimated, he "cleaned up" close to $750,000 in two years.

Starts League to "Expose" Frauds.

But Cunningham's magnificent effrontery and sublime imagination were really demonstrated when he organized a league of fat folks known as the Women's Protective association, with the announced purpose of exposing all obesity cure frauds and driving them out of existence. Incidentally, for the $1 membership fee the obese initiate received the "one truly scientific recognized fat reducing method."

The action of the postmaster general was based on the foreign letter, in which it will be observed that Cunningham describes his own swindles with great fidelity:

"WOMEN'S PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION,
"A National Organization with a Worthy
"Mission. Now in Formation.
"Grayco Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

"My dear friend: Feeling assured that you would like to take part in a national campaign of exposure of all fat reduction frauds which have been imposed upon stout people for a number of years and aid in the worthy effort of driving out of existence all fat frauds and fakes which infest our fair land, we are pleased to bring to your attention and present for your consideration the following important facts, with the hope of having you send us any information you may have at hand regarding any fakes you happen to know about.

Urges "Drive Out Swindlers."

"The Women's Protective association is arranging to do its utmost to benefit the fat men and women through perfecting the organization of a coöperative club consisting of fat folks in the hope that with powerful organization and coöperation throughout the country every fat reducing fake and swindler can be driven from the face of the earth.

"In order to be of real personal benefit to every fat person who becomes a member the Women's Protective association offers the one truly scientific recognized fat reducing method of treatment, which has been proven highly efficacious, harmless, and remarkably successful in reducing from ten to seventy pounds of superfluous fat, and for this most excellent method of treatment only charges $1, which includes a membership in the association free. There are no dues, fines, or assessments whatever."

SAVING OF MEXICO RESTS WITH LIND?

Diplomats Hint Parleys Between Leaders and Envoy Mean Huerta's Finish.

DE LA BARRA FOR PLACE?

Appears to Be Man That Can Placate All Factions Pending New Election.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—Conviction in administration circles that the Huerta régime in Mexico is approaching the persistently predicted collapse has led to much discussion here of the nature of John Lind's frequent conferences with Mexican leaders.

Belief is expressed that President Wilson's representative is surveying the situation with a view to determining how events will shape themselves when the Huerta structure falls.

Mr. Lind's latest conferences with Jesus Flores Magon and other Mexican statesmen have interested members of the diplomatic corps, who pointed out tonight that in view of President Wilson's reiterated statements that he would not recognize Huerta nor any of the things he stands for, the American envoy might naturally be induced to throw out hints as to what type of man would meet with approval at the White House.

Pin Faith on De la Barra.

So far as officials here are advised, the vicissitudes which preceded the Madero revolt and followed the downfall of that leader's stormy incumbency of the presidency, have not detracted from the high standing which Francisco de la Barra, at present minister to France, attained as the man of the hour when Gen. Diaz was forced to abdicate.

Señor de la Barra then was brought forward as the leader, who, as provisional president, could placate all factions pending a new election.

Find Forced Loans a Burden.

The general condition of financial affairs in Mexico was summarized in this statement from the state department today:

"Americans are finding the forced loans levied upon them a great burden."

The Ebano Oil district in San Luis Potosi is reported to be fully controlled by the Mexican federal government, so that oil has been furnished to the railroad with little interruption.

ZAPATISTAS ATTACK FEDERALS.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

Mexico City, Jan. 23.—Heavy fighting is going on at Chignahuapan, in the state of Puebla, which is the end of the line of the Mexican railway from Zacatlan. The fighting began last Tuesday, when 1,500 Zapatistas attacked the federal garrison, which numbered 200 men.

Mrs. Trout is chairman of the reception and invitation committee.

Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell, president of the Chicago Political Equality league, will have charge of the roll call of the wards at the massmeeting. Women Receive Instruction.

Paraphernalia for registering the primaries and voting was installed in the headquarters of the Woman's party of Cook county, Hotel La Salle, room 214, yesterday afternoon, and the members of the organization who are to serve as judges and clerks of election received instruction from John S. Burns, sent out from the board of election commissioners.

The women learned how to conduct primary elections from the opening of the polls at 6 in the morning until the returns are in the election commissioners' office at night. They were instructed in the placing of various party ballots within reach of the judge, the opening of the general and the public registers, the poll books for the clerks. The various oaths were told them by Mr. Burns, and the affidavits made necessary by law in case of a challenge for any reason.

"The women are apt pupils," said Mr. Burns. "They are far more advanced in the marking of the ballot than were the men when they first tried the Australian ballot system."

Ald. Merriam Talks.

"Chicago has no central governing body," said Ald. Charles E. Merriam at a meeting held at the Institutional church last night. "There are nineteen governing bodies; eight big ones and eleven little ones; each one with a set of officials, with the power to tax, to borrow money, and to pass ordinances. It is not possible for any citizen to watch each one of these bodies. Mr. McCormick and Mr. Bartzen may be fighting at one end of the building, Ald. Coughlin and myself at the other end, and members of the board of education at the same time. These governing bodies ought all to be consolidated so we can keep our eyes on them all.

"It will be necessary to have a constitutional convention and an amendment to the constitution before this can be effected.

Could Save $1,500,000.

"One million and a half dollars could be saved the taxpayers of Chicago if these unnecessary and duplicating governments could be abolished. This money might better be spent for school houses and playgrounds; by the health department, and Maj. Funkhauser so he might have the men needed in his department.

"Women will teach men the art of municipal housekeeping. Men have made a sorry mess of municipal government. Women will show them how to use the broom, the dust pan, and the soap in city affairs. Chicago's spring housecleaning will begin in April—the proper time for housecleaning to be done.

The Twenty-fifth ward branch of the Illinois Woman's Democratic league was organized at a meeting at the residence of Mrs. Martin J. Qualey, 1962 Lunt avenue.

Mrs. Edward L. Stewart, secretary of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, has asked the clergymen of Chicago to arouse the women of their congregations to a realization of their civic duties and to urge them to register. More than seventy ministers have assented to the plan.

ILLINOIS WOMEN VOTE IN APRIL.

Women in Illinois, outside of Chicago and the sixteen counties downstate which are not under township organization, will have their first chance to vote directly for administrative officials at the township elections to be held throughout the state on Tuesday, April 7, and for their nominations at the preceding primaries.

The opportunity arises under the explicit provision of the woman suffrage law of 1913 which carries the power to women to vote for supervisor, town clerk, assessor, collector, and commissioner of highways, in each township.

Learning How to Run the Machinery.

Voting paraphernalia of every sort was installed yesterday in the headquarters of the Woman's Party of Cook County, room 214, Hotel La Salle. John S. Burns was sent by the board of election commissioners to instruct members of the organization who are to serve as judges and clerks of election. According to Mr. Burns, his pupils proved quicker than men at grasping the intricacies of operating voting machinery.

PICK WILT AS CANDIDATE

Progressives in 23d Ward Name Aldermanic Aspirant.

ANOTHER WOMAN TO RUN?

Sixth Ward Moose Talk of Feminine Entrant.

Capt. Charles T. Wilt, head of a trunk manufacturing company and a veteran of the Spanish-American war, last night was picked as the Progressive organization candidate for alderman in the Twenty-third ward. Both men and women attended the meeting in the ward headquarters at 2122 North Halsted street.

There were four other aspirants. All withdrew in favor of Capt. Wilt. He tried to foist the honor on William Sandberg, but the meeting would not consent to his withdrawal. Petitions will be circulated for Capt. Wilt today. It is expected he will be given the Moose primary nomination without opposition.

May Oppose Kjellander.

Ald. John Kjellander seeks reëlection in the ward on the Republican ticket and probably will have the backing of the G. O. P. organization. Ald. Jacob Hey was elected in the ward on the Progressive ticket last spring.

Mrs. Dora Earle is the leader of the Progressive women in the ward. They have formed an auxiliary and plan an active campaign.

Ald. John H. Bauler was indorsed by the H.-H. organization for reëlection in the Twenty-second ward at a meeting at 542 North avenue. Bauler, Edward Conter, and Frank Gardner spoke in favor of the H.-H. comprehensive subway plan.

Another Woman May Run.

Men and women identified with the Progressive party in the Sixth ward will meet at the Chicago Progressive club Monday evening to pick an organization candidate for alderman. It is asserted by Mrs. Harry Franklin Porter, acting secretary, that it is not unlikely a woman will be drafted to make the race.

Ald. Melville G. Holding was indorsed for reëlection in the Thirty-second ward at a meeting of the regular Democratic ward club held in Boardman's hall, 1308 West Sixty-ninth street.

Harry Swan was made the choice of the Young Men's Republican club of the Seventh ward at a meeting at the Gladstone hotel. Joel Baker was elected president of the club; James Fager, first vice president; Frank H. Murray, second vice president; Harry Swan, secretary, and LeRoy B. Wagenseller, treasurer. It was decided to give bi-monthly dinners.

George E. Daveny has been approved, it is reported, by the Republican organization in the Fourteenth ward. Harry W. Mencley also is a Republican contender. Ald. Clancy is being opposed for renomination by Joseph Higgins Smith.

The Thirtieth ward is furnishing a warm contest between Ald. Swift and William E. O'Toole, for the Democratic nomination. There is a split in both the regular and Hearst-Harrison forces.

Sullivan for County Judge.

Mark J. Sullivan of 1047 East Forty-seventh street has announced himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county judge.

The executive committee of the Swedish American Republican league of Illinois will meet at 10 o'clock this morning at the Congress hotel to arrange for the annual convention and banquet to be held on March 9.

TRAIN ROBBER FREED "DIP"?

Detroit Chief Thinks Man Who Held Up Passengers Gained Freedom by Ruse.

Chief of Detectives Palmer of Detroit spent a large part of yesterday kicking himself, according to a telegram from that city. He believes the lone robber who cowed a negro porter into helping him rob four passengers on the Michigan Central train which arrived in Chicago at 7:30 a. m., is Harold Brady, a pickpocket, who was in custody in Detroit a few hours before.

Chief Palmer says Brady was recognized boarding the train with two pals. A man purporting to be a Chicago attorney had obtained his release on the promise he would get the pickpocket out of Detroit. Now Palmer believes the "attorney" was an imposter.

The robber began his activity at Jackson, Mich., when he gave the black porter a bag, also a glimpse at a revolver, and forced the porter to walk ahead, wake the passengers, and make the collections. About $300 was obtained, the porter was made to pull the emergency signal, and the robber left.

SENATE TO VOTE ON SUFFRAGE

Resolution for Constitutional Amendment Up Next Monday.

POLL INDICATES DEFEAT.

Illinois Women, Officials of National Association, Rally Supporters.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—The Chamberlain resolution providing for a constitutional amendment enfranchising women will be made the unfinished business of the senate next Monday and voted on when the debate is concluded.

Only once before in the history of the country has the senate voted on a woman suffrage measure. A favorable report was made to the senate from its woman suffrage committee in 1882 and again in 1892. It came to a vote in 1887, and was defeated, sixteen senators voting in the affirmative, thirty-four in the negative, while twenty-six were absent.

Illinois Women Urge Action.

Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mrs. Antoinette Funk, and Mrs. Sherman Booth of the congressional committee of the National American Woman Suffrage association spent the day at the capitol, urging action on the resolution. They have received assurances that more than thirty-five senators will support the proposed amendment.

Mrs. McCormick declared today her canvass of the senators with a view to ascertaining their sentiments upon the proposed amendment had revealed unusual and expected strength in quarters where she had least expected it. She expressed the indebtedness felt by the national association to the members of the senate committee on woman suffrage, who reported the Chamberlain resolution unanimously.

Defeat Indicated by Poll.

In spite of the favorable attitude of many senators upon the measure, however, a poll of the senate shows it will be defeated when it comes to a vote on Monday.

A meeting was held tonight at the home of Mrs. Huntington Wilson, at which Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Funk discussed the present status of the work in behalf of the constitutional amendment and outlined their plans for the future.

VOTE DEFENSE ENDS CASE

Attorney Crowe Closes Arguments for Rose and Others.

STATE TO WIND UP TODAY.

Jurors Expected to Begin Deliberations by 3 P. M.

The defense in the Eighteenth ward ballot fraud case on trial before Judge Richard E. Burke yesterday completed its arguments to the jury. Special State's Attorney John E. Northup this morning will make the closing argument for the prosecution. It is expected the jury will receive the instructions of the court and retire by 3 p. m.

More than 100 requested instructions have been submitted to Judge Burke by the attorneys for the prosecution and defense. A conference between counsel will be held before court reconvenes to reach an agreement on the instructions.

Attacks Ballot Evidence.

In his final argument to the jury Attorney Robert E. Crowe for David Rose attacked the validity of the ballots as evidence. He read from a number of court opinions to back up his contention it was necessary to have a guard over ballots continuously from the time the polls closed until they were produced in court.

Mr. Crowe asserted that because certain of Special State's Attorney Northup's assistants had been permitted to examine the ballots on a number of occasions a suspicion exists in regard to the authenticity of the ballots and lessened their value as evidence.

Denounces State's Witnesses.

The evidence given by the two star witnesses for the prosecution, Harris and McLean, was also bitterly attacked by Mr. Crowe. He asserted Harris, who asserted himself to be a Hearst-Harrison Democrat, had failed to prove the prosecution's opening statement that fraud had been committed in the Eighteenth ward in the counting and marking of ballots for Maclay Hoyne. Harris' only evidence, according to Mr. Crowe, had been to implicate a Republican or a Roger Sullivan Democrat.

The trial has occupied the attention of the court for more than three weeks. It took a week to get a jury.

LOGUE PAIR AGAIN INDICTED.

Schneider and Faith Accused of Robbery and Receiving of Stolen Property.

Harold Schneider and John Faith, recently acquitted of the murder of Joseph H. Logue, the McVicker building jeweler, were reindicted yesterday on charges of robbery and receiving stolen property in connection with the same crime. A true bill also was voted against Faith, charging him with the murder of Jehial Jenner, shot while at the foot of Chicago avenue last July, when he tried to prevent a holdup.

MOOSE FOR INITIAL SUBWAY

Progressives Agree to Circulate Petitions for Ballot.

CLUB LISTENS TO LONG.

Alderman Outlines the Arnold Plan for Transfers.

The Progressive club members told Ald. Long yesterday they will circulate petitions so the question of whether Chicago shall have initial subways may be placed on the little ballot at the aldermanic election.

This followed a noon speech at the club by Ald. Long.

"You should consider subways from three viewpoints," the alderman said. "The three are the intial subway plan, the comprehensive subway scheme, and the terminal transfer clearance plan. The last is the most important in my opinion.

Explains Arnold Transfer Plan.

"The Arnold plan for the initial subways provides for a transfer clearance downtown of passengers on all lines of transportation.

"When it is worked out, probably as a second unit in subway construction, that plan will permit a passenger on the elevated to transfer from the surface line to the subway or to the elevated lines. Or he may transfer in any other combination of two systems."

Asked what the comprehensive subway plan provides, the alderman replied that he had not been able to ascertain definitely.

"Mr. Griffiths of London and Mr. Brown of New York have talked to the local transportation committee," he explained, "but they said nothing which can be considered a proposition. Presumably they desire to operate a new transportation system in subways with no relationship to the other means of local transportation now in use."

May Give Work for 20,000 at Start.

Attaches of the board of supervising engineers have estimated that 20,000 men can be employed in the construction of the initial subways. The city has the money to start work as soon as the voters give approval of the plan.

MUST SHOW AUTO RATE CARDS.

Municipal Judge Fry Rules in Case of the Frank Parmelee Transfer Company.

Automobiles of the Frank Parmelee Transfer company must display rate cards as do other public motor vehicles, despite arrangements with every railroad depot in Chicago for stand privileges. This was decided yesterday by Municipal Judge Fry in the speeders' court.

James Wheeler, a chauffeur for the Parmelee company, was fined $25 and costs for failing to display a rate card in his machine at the La Salle station on Oct. 27, 1913. The defense was that he was not stationing his car in "a street or public way."

"The traveler, meeting the agent in the depot with the bustle incident to that place, knows nothing of rates," said the judge. "In the quiet of the car he may study the rate card, and, if overcharged, make his objections."

BARS FILM RIDICULING JEWS

Major Funkhouser Suppresses "Rebecca's Wedding."

ADVISED BY COMMITTEE.

Orders "Absinthe" Shown Before City Hall Censors.

Second Deputy M. L. C. Funkhouser yesterday ordered the suppression of a motion picture because it caricatured the Jewish race. The action was the first move in the campaign started by the recently formed Anti-Defamation league and other organizations.

A film entitled "Rebecca's Wedding" was viewed at the city hall by a committee of Jewish women and others, and it was unanimously condemned. It depicted a corpulent Jewish girl, Rebecca, whose approaching nuptials failed to materialize because of her rejection by her betrothed in favor of her handsome sister.

Intended to Be Humorous.

Rebecca waddled after the carriage occupied by her sister and the intended bridegroom and followed them to the church, the actions portrayed intended to be humorous.

"I am willing to abide by the decision of such a committee of intelligent men and women, and whenever a picture relates to the Jewish race I will have it first viewed by a committee," said Maj. Funkhouser.

"That picture was odious," declared Mrs. I. J. Reis, 4463 Berkeley avenue, one of the censors and president of the Jewish women's conference. "We want the newspapers to aid us in preventing exhibition of pictures and acts which may cause prejudice against the Jewish people."

Orders "Absinthe" Censored.

Following receipt of a letter from the Rev. D. L. McDonald of Holy Name cathedral Maj. Funkhouser ordered the producers of a film entitled "Absinthe" to show it this morning at 10 o'clock in the city hall. The letter stated that posters of a "blood and thunder" sort had been publicly exposed near the Holy Name cathedral and school.

SENTENCES SMALL NEWSBOY TO TERM IN PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Judge Pinckney Acts in Case of Julius Cohn, 12 Years Old, Long Paper Seller in the Loop.

Julius Cohn of 1108 South Paulina street must break the habits of seven years as a newsboy and go to school. This was the order of Judge Pinckney yesterday in the Juvenile court.

Since Julius could toddle he has sold newspapers in the loop. He is 12 years old. His one weakness is for nickel shows and this brought him into court. He has supported his eight brothers and sisters and his parents from his earnings. Because the nickel shows took money and time Julius' earnings fell off. There was trouble at home and the boy fled. He was found in the rear of the La Salle hotel after he had been missing a week.

Maurice Carey of the Juvenile court and Charles H. Brayne of the Illinois Humane society are to have Julius in charge.

FAIL TO FIND TWO BONDSMEN.

Detectives Hunt in Vain for Sureties Who Figured in the Ratner Case.

Detectives from the state's attorney's office yesterday failed to find James H. Brown and Max Ratner, named on the $5,000 bond for Abraham Ratner which had been declared forfeited when Ratner became a fugitive from justice after his conviction on a charge of arson. It was in connection with this case Judge Denis E. Sullivan ordered an investigation last Thursday, when it was represented the forfeiture had been set aside upon payment of $100.

MUST CARRY BACK THE STOVE.

Court Orders Impulsive Landlords to Make Restitution and Fines Them $1 Each.

Harry and Riley Bender, brothers living at 6723 South Michigan avenue, took a stove from the residence of a nonpaying tenant, John McConochie, at the same address. They neglected to obtain a court order and on the tenant's complaint they were ordered yesterday to return the stove and each was fined $1 and costs.

Storekeepers Held for Arson.

Samuel Alberts and Gabriel Sissman yesterday were held to the grand jury by Municipal Judge Ryan on a charge of having set fire to their clothing store at 306-308 West Van Buren street.

FLAMES PERIL UNION STATION

Firemen Confine Damage to North Towers and Restaurant Kitchen.

CROWDS FLEE TO STREET.

One Man Is Run Down by Fire Engine and His Leg Is Broken.

Fire late yesterday nearly succeeded in doing what the city council failed in—destroying the venerable Union station, owned by the Pennsylvania lines.

Prompt work by firemen confined the loss to some damage to the north towers and the demolition of the restaurant kitchen, amounting in all to about $10,000. Passengers waiting for trains on the Pennsylvania, Burlington, Milwaukee, and Alton roads were thrown into a panic, but none was injured. Frightened suburbanites boarded through trains by mistake and guards were forced to go through the coaches and send the local passengers to the right trains.

Starts in Kitchen Range.

The blaze started in a defective range in the kitchen on the third floor of the station, and by the time the fire companies arrived the flames were shooting high in the air.

The first intimation the crowds in the waiting room had of the danger was when firemen appeared dragging lines of hose. About that time the smoke pouring from the third floor windows began to fill the waiting room, and a rush for the doors was made, which depot police found hard to handle.

Pedestrian Run Down.

Crowds in both Adams and Canal streets made it hard for the fire apparatus to approach the station. Samuel Leonardo, 807 Twenty-fourth street, Melrose Park, a teamster, had a leg broken and a toe crushed by being run down at Lake and Canal streets by a fire engine. He was removed to the county hospital.

About 200 men and women employed on the third floor of the station fled down fire escapes and stairways, and twenty-five persons left their dinners in the dining room on the second floor at the first alarm. Several women fainted, but were revived by police surgeons.

Train schedules were slightly interrupted.

CALLS WIDE OPEN GAME STORY 'DREAM' OF HUGH FULLERTON.

Mayor Comments on Magazine Article Charging Chicago Conditions Are Worse than in World's Fair Times.

Mayor Harrison yesterday branded Hugh S. Fullerton "a dreamer." In a magazine article Mr. Fullerton had charged that the Chicago gamblers profit more from their operations today than they did in the "wide open" times of the world's fair. He also had written that there are 100 places in the downtown district where bets might be made on the horse races.

"I'm afraid Hughie has been dreaming," said the mayor, who has known Mr. Fullerton for years as a writer in the sporting departments of Chicago papers. "That always is the privilege of a magazine writer. If he had reported gambling suppressed there would not have been the opportunity for such a readable article.

"I am satisfied gambling is at a minimum. I do not deny that it exists, as it is impossible for the police to wipe it out completely."

Chief of Police Gleason said he was confident the author of the magazine article had not gained his information from personal observation.

First Deputy Schuettler, who until recently had charge of the gambling squad, said he had heard nothing to lead him to believe gambling had "opened up" in Chicago.

EXPECTS BARTZEN TO SETTLE.

Detective Burns Says Collection Case in Court May Bring Disclosures.

Raymond J. Burns said yesterday that Peter Bartzen probably will want to settle the $1,000 suit filed against him on Thursday by the Burns National Detective agency, before it reaches court.

"The work we did for him was personal and we are not at liberty to discuss it," said he. "If Bartzen lets it go to trial, however, the kind of work we did will come out.

"He has the opportunity to settle our bill. The work was done years ago."

BIGGEST U.S. BANK TO ENTER SYSTEM

Stand of National City of New York Ends Belief of Competition.

HAD OPPOSED NEW LAW.

Officials at Kansas City Hear St. Joseph Claim to Chicago District.

New York, Jan. 23.—That the National City bank, the largest institution of its kind in the country, probably will enter the federal reserve system to be created by the new currency law was learned from officials of the bank today.

This put at rest rumors recently current to the effect that the National City bank contemplated surrendering its federal charter and merging with the Corn Exchange bank, the largest state institution. Such an institution would create a state bank whose combined resources probably would overshadow any regional reserve bank which might be established at this center.

It is probable no official statement will be made until the return of Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the City bank, who is in Paris conferring with James Stillman, the chairman of the board of directors.

Financiers Surprised by Stand.

Financiers not affiliated with the City bank expressed surprise when informed of its intention, chiefly because of the opposition to the currency bill maintained by some of its leading officers. Moreover, the misunderstandings said to exist between the bank and treasury department at Washington gave rise to the belief in some quarters that the bank was considering the organization of an institution which would enable it to become a formidable competitor of the new reserve system.

It was the opinion of other bankers today that the attitude of the City bank assures the entrance of virtually all other national banks of importance in this section of the country, where opposition to the law has been most pronounced.

Some of the largest national banks of this city already have applied for membership in the new system, including the Chase National, the Park National, the Fourth National, and the National Bank of Commerce. This leaves few banks of the first rank yet to be heard from.

Hearing at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 23.—"St. Joseph belongs to the Chicago reserve district and we want to be placed in it," declared J. G. Schneider, representing the St. Joseph Clearing House association, today while testifying before the committee for the organization of the new federal reserve bank system.

Other witnesses said they favored Kansas City for the bank. Some, following questions by Secretary McAdoo and Secretary Houston, named St. Louis as second choice; and one, P. W. Goebel, president of the Kansas City Clearing House association, said he thought both Kansas City and St. Louis should have banks.

Gov. Hodges of Kansas and former Gov. Stubbs urged the establishment of a reserve bank at Kansas City.

CRITICISM HALTS ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Does Not Improve Conditions.

Following the Supreme court's decision the best thinkers in congress concluded that since the courts could not be prevented from interpreting the law in the light of reason, the proper thing to do was to define as specifically as possible the various operations and practices employed by great combinations to stifle competition, monopolize business, and control prices.

According to the president's purpose this was his intention, for he stated he desired to reduce the "debatable ground" about the anti-trust law and to make clear to business and the public generally prohibitions of the law.

The bill, however, provides for further sweeping prohibitions of restraints of trade, notwithstanding the ruling of the Supreme court that these prohibitions already exist in such fashion as to compel judicial interpretation of reasonableness. The effect of the president's bill, therefore, is more to emphasize the existing condemnations in force rather than to improve the situation.

The trades relation bill, directed against discrimination in prices between different customers, has a feature which appears to outline an important policy and to decide a controversy many years old.

In the judgment of many congressional lawyers the bill actually legalizes discriminations in prices based upon differences in quantity. This discrimination is now the practice and is not illegal.

The question has arisen, however, if there should not be some restriction placed upon the right of those selling goods in interstate commerce to give advantages to large buyers over small buyers.

Gives Big Buyers Advantage.

In the adjustment of questions concerning discrimination by railroads, it was decided from the outset that the rates must be the same to all shippers. The most drastic provisions of the railroad regulation law are those which prohibit rebates and discrimination in rates for the benefit of the big shipper over his smaller competitor.

When the senate committee on interstate commerce three years ago began a thorough investigation of the trust question, the matter of discrimination in price occupied a great deal of attention. No decision was reached.

The president's bill, it is claimed, not only decides the question in favor of discrimination, but seeks to legalize present practices. The bill provides that no prohibition of discrimination in price shall apply where such discrimination is based on difference in quantity.

In other words, if the bill should be enacted, the man able to buy goods in larger quantities than his competitor would receive from the seller any advantages the two might be able to agree upon. Regardless of what the practice may be, it is regarded by many as an exceedingly dangerous thing to make such a provision the law of the land.

BIG BUSINESS PROTESTS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—The protest of big business against the anti-trust bills outlined by the Democratic administration was expressed in forcible language tonight at the annual banquet of the Terrapin club of Philadelphia, of which E. T. Stotesbury, a member of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., was the guest of honor.

C. Stuart Patterson, a director of the Pennsylvania railroad, and W. U. Hensel, former attorney general and a Democrat, attacked the policy of the administration as regards the proposed bills to regulate big business.

The first real note of distress was sounded by Mr. Stotesbury when he said:

"There are certain things I should like to talk with you about tonight, but I believe it would be wise for me to keep silent."

Will Drive Capital Away?

Mr. Patterson, the next speaker, was not so reticent.

"A shudder ran through me," he said, "when I looked through the newspaper this morning and saw what is in store for us. A revolution is going on in this country and is going to continue to go on; but I want to tell you one thing, and that is that the laws of nature and the laws of trade are stronger than the acts of congress.

"The vexatious and humiliating restrictions which are about to be imposed on the business of the United States will drive capital away from this country. And as capital controls the fields of employment, it is easy to see that the wage earners and not the capitalists will suffer, for the capitalists can weather hard times.

"I want to impress upon you that it is impossible to create adversity for one class and have prosperity for another."

Workers Will Be Sufferers.

"I want to know," Mr. Hensel queried, "what is to become of this country if a law is to be enacted which will prevent men like Mr. Stotesbury from serving as a director on any one of the great railroads, banking firms, or great mining corporations? What is going to happen to business if a federal commission is given the right to pry into the business of a Lancaster manufacturer who ships a mouse trap to Camden?

"What sort of a situation is going to be created if such a commission has the power to pry into a man's private business and make public its findings?"

THE DAY IN CONGRESS.

SENATE.

Met at noon. Final vote on Alaskan railway bill deferred until tomorrow. Recessed at 5:33 to noon Saturday.

HOUSE.

Met at noon. Secretary Wilson of the department of labor wrote Speaker Clark recommending legislation for the exclusion of Asiatic immigration and proposing standards. Adjourned at 6:11 p. m. to noon Saturday without acting on the postoffice appropriation bill.

War on Hyde Park "Blind Pigs."

Renewed war on alleged "blind pigs" in Hyde Park was begun late on Thursday night, when two men were arrested at the instance of the Hyde Park Protective association, charged with selling liquor without a license. They are Warren J. Clark, druggist at 222 East Forty-third street, and James Morgan, cigar store owner at 4305 Prairie avenue.

CULLOM BETTER AFTER BAD SPELL

Ex-Senator Dictates Letters Shortly After End Was Thought Near.

FLOWERS FILL HOUSE.

Galesburg, Ill., Friends Send Roses and Praise for His Public Service.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—The condition of former Senator Cullom is much improved tonight. He sat up part of the afternoon and dictated several letters to his secretary. Late tonight it was said he had been asleep since dinner.

Mr. Cullom suffered a serious sinking spell in the forenoon when his respiration declined to five. It was thought the end had come, but within half an hour he revived and was able to sit up.

He frequently inquired concerning the decision of the fine arts commission on the selection of the marble for the Lincoln memorial. He was cheered by an unofficial report that the body would recommend the Colorado marble he desired. A sealed report of the commission's opinion was sent tonight to Secretary of War Garrison.

Residence Filled with Flowers.

The Cullom residence is filled with flowers sent by friends and admirers. A large box of roses was delivered by a local florist on order from "The Flower Committee, F. P. Williams, chairman, Galesburg, Ill." A telegram from Mr. Williams said:

"In grateful remembrance we hold the record of your lifelong services in the national councils, your never swerving devotion to and efficient services given in the interest of this, our beloved country, always standing for the right, ever putting country first, self last. Honestly pray we that God will grant your speedy recovery. Never did our country stand more in need of wise and efficient counsel."

Many Call at Cullom Home.

The sentiment expressed in the telegram was appreciated by Mr. Cullom, who also was cheered by the sympathetic words of numerous callers, few of whom, however, saw him personally.

Among those who called during the last twenty-four hours were former Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island, Mrs. Wetmore and the Misses Wetmore, Mrs. John C. Ames of Chicago, Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Pitney, wife of Associate Justice Pitney.

Coffee Scald Fatal to Woman.

Mrs. Mary B. Lewis, wife of Edward H. Lewis of 3987 Drexel boulevard, a traveling salesman, died at Lakeside hospital yesterday as a result of scalds incurred on Nov. 1 and Bright's disease. Mrs. Lewis was at dinner when a pot of steaming coffee was overturned.

DELAYS ALASKA BILL VOTE

Senate Unable to Reach Final Decision on Rail Measure.

FIGHT MAY BE ENDED TODAY

Several Amendments Are Made During Course of Contest.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—With several amendments still pending, the senate late today recessed until tomorrow without reaching a final vote on the Alaskan railway bill.

A motion by Senator Cummins to strike out of the bill the provision permitting the president to lease the railroad if he thought best after construction was defeated, 44 to 17, after a long debate.

Bristow Amendment Carries.

An amendment by Senator Bristow specifically authorizing the president to lease the road to the Panama Railroad company, a government owned stock company, was carried, 48 to 12.

Senator Chamberlain announced tonight that he would insist on a final vote before adjournment tomorrow. Under an agreement the "legislative day of Jan. 22" will not end in the senate until the measure is passed upon.

Hard Fight on Cummins Plan.

The committee in charge of the bill won its hardest fight today when the senate defeated the Cummins amendment, which would have made government operation of the proposed railroad mandatory instead of leaving it to the president to decide whether it should be leased.

Virtually all Republicans who have supported the bill voted for this amendment. An effort by Senator Williams to strike out of the bill authority for the acquisition of any existing lines was defeated, 46 to 5.

WILSON CALLS A CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

President Invites Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to Take Up Important Matters with Him.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—President Wilson late today invited the senate committee on foreign relations to confer with him at the White House next Monday night.

The purpose was not indicated in the invitations which were sent to Chairman Bacon and all Republican and Democratic members of the committee.

Persons close to the president said tonight, however, that Panama canal tolls, the Japanese alien land controversy, the Mexican situation, the unratified arbitration treaties, and the proposed Bryan peace treaties probably would be discussed.

Waukegan Raises Y. M. C. A. Fund.

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—A campaign started last evening in the Waukegan Y. M. C. A. to raise the $30,000 debt from the association's new building. At the conclusion of a banquet $3,000 had been subscribed.

DISCUSS SAVING RADIUM LANDS

Secretary of Interior Lane and Colorado Delegation Consider Building of Government Plant.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—Tentative plans for the construction of a great government radium producing plant in Colorado were discussed at a conference in the interior department between Secretary Franklin K. Lane and all the members of the Colorado delegation in congress. Secretary Lane has been urging the withdrawal of the radium lands to prevent them from falling into the hands of a private monopoly.

POLITICAL PIE REMAINS UNCUT.

House Strikes Out "Rider" in P.-O. Bill Exempting Assistant Postmasters from Civil Service Law.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—A point of order late today in the house struck out of the annual postoffice appropriation bill the "rider" to exempt all of the country's 2,400 assistant postmasters from the civil service law. Advocates of this provision, which had drawn emphatic disapproval from President Wilson, made an ineffectual attempt to have reported a special rule to head off the point of order.

Heat that defeats blizzards!

When the blustering blizzards of old winter force the mercury below the zero line and attack the windward sides of your home, if you have placed your trust in old-fashioned ways of heating you sadly discover how non-dependable they are! Even while rough winter buffets your house with bleak blasts—you can stop the affliction (in a very short time and without disturbance) by putting in a blizzard-defying outfit of

The test time of good heating!

IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators are carried in our warehouses in all the large shipping centers of the United States. An outfit can be quickly installed without interfering with old heater, which remains in service until the IDEAL Boiler is fired up and making your home delightful all over. Act now, before the zero days and high winds!

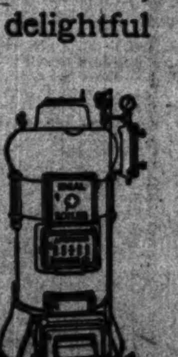
The operation of an IDEAL-AMERICAN outfit is not affected by outside weather conditions; for, be there calm or storm, there is a constant circulation of heat within the piping and radiators, which is positive—as sure to carry steady heat to the windward side of the home as to protected rooms; all rooms, halls, bath-rooms, bays and corners are uniformly comfortable.

A No. 4121 IDEAL Boiler and 430 sq. ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $210, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include costs of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which are extra and vary according to climatic and other conditions.

In IDEAL Boilers the rich coal-gases are burned and turned into heat for the rooms, rather than being liberated in the building, or escaping up the chimney (which means fuel-waste.) No dust and dirt thrown into the rooms; much cleaning labor is saved to the women. AMERICAN Radiators have the smoothest finish for painting to match the walls, are free from leaks and noises and a century of use will not wear them out.

The blizzard-defying, reliable character of IDEAL-AMERICAN heating, its fuel-economies and long-wearing qualities, make the purchase a solid investment; for it insure higher rentals, contented tenants, and "money-back" if building is sold. These are the reasons why so many real-estate dealers mention our heating outfits when advertising for tenants or buyers.

Drop us a line today and tell us the needs of any building in which you are interested—home, church, school, store, etc. Booklets and special information are free—you incur no obligations by asking us questions.



IDEAL Steam Boiler showing Sylphon Check- and Draft-Damper Regulator—all metal; no diaphragms or parts to wear out; gives sure heat control and saves running up and down stairs.

SOCIALISTS HIT BY CHANCELLOR

Called "Underminers of the Throne" by Von Bethmann-Hollweg in Parliament.

HOT REPLIES ARE MADE.

Crown Prince Assailed for Telegrams to Commanders of Zabern Troops.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—The Socialist deputies in the German imperial parliament were bitterly assailed today by the imperial chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, when they put some questions to him in connection with the acquittal by courts martial of the German army officers concerned in the recent incidents between the troops and civilians at Zabern, Alsace.

The chancellor told the Socialist representatives they were "underminers of the throne and preachers of republicanism."

At the same time he praised the glories of the German army, "under whose protection Germany has become great and prosperous."

Socialist Flays Crown Prince.

Just before his denunciation of the members of that party, Dr. Franck, who introduced the Socialist interpellation in regard to the action of the troops at Zabern, said the telegrams of Crown Prince Frederick William to Lieut. Gen. Von Diemling, commander of the Fifteenth army corps, and Col. Von Reuter, the commander of the Ninety-ninth regiment, were mischievous and intolerable.

Nevertheless, he said, the Socialists were grateful for them because they had awakened the people and shown them that the time had come to take their destinies into their own hands, when they saw the future emperor hand in glove with the despoilers of the constitution.

Promises "Fight to the End."

Dr. Franck concluded his remarks by saying: "We are already in the midst of a fight against reaction and will fight through to the end. The conservatives get their right to rule out of the dust of the past; we get ours out of the necessity of the time. We are the real smiths of Germany's future."

After the imperial chancellor had concluded his speech, Dr. Ledebour, Socialist, scoffed at the mournful farewell of the crown prince to Danzig and said it was reminiscent of a girl's school.

HUNGARIAN MEMBERS RIOT.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 23.—Armed guards had to be called into the lower house of the Hungarian parliament today to eject unruly members of the opposition during a debate on the press reform law. Ex-Premier Count Julius Andrassy, Count Aladar Zichy, and a dozen other deputies were thrown out of the building after defying a ruling by the president.

The uproar was so great it was impossible to conduct business until the wearied members of the opposition had quit the house in a body. As the results of insults bandied across the floor of the house, Deputy Dosy challenged Count Stephen Tisza, the Hungarian premier, to a duel.

FOIL ATTACK ON CROWN PRINCE

Berlin Palace Sentry Overcomes Insane Man Who Attempts to Reach Frederick William.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—An unsuccessful attempt by an insane man to attack Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany was made this afternoon as he was alighting from his automobile at his palace.

The man was overcome after a fight with a sentry, who was on duty in front of the palace.

When taken to the police station the crown prince's assailant gave his name as Leopold Salomon and his age as 26. His brain appeared confused. He said he was a brother of the crown prince and wished to ask him for assistance. He is a tailor by trade.

HEIR TO FRENCH PRETENDER.

Son Born to Princess Clementine of Belgium, Wife of Prince Victor Napoleon.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 23.—An heir to Prince Victor Napoleon, the official pretender to the imperial throne of France, was born here today. Prince Victor Napoleon, who is in his fifty-second year, was married in 1910 to Princess Clementine of Belgium. A daughter was born on March 20, 1912.

BOY BORN IN POLICE PATROL.

Mother Announces She Will Name Him After Speedy Driver of "Hurry Wagon."

Despite the speed of Patrick McNulty, driver of the Lawndale avenue police patrol, Mrs. Frances Mitchell of 2621 Twenty-first street last night gave birth to a boy before the patrol could reach the county hospital. She announced the child will be named after McNulty in recognition of his drive.

CHARGES ROIL JUDGE SPEER

Federal Jurist Tries to Address Inquiry Body; Squelched.

PROSECUTOR TAKES STAND.

Says Court Gave Excessive Fees to Son-in-Law's Law Firm.

Macon, Ga., Jan. 23.—Aroused by the testimony of United States Attorney Akerman today before the members of the house judiciary committee investigating charges of misconduct against him, Federal Judge Emory Speer for the first time since the investigation began attempted to address the committee. The jurist sprang to his feet with his attorneys plucking at his coat sleeves and admonishing him to be seated.

"Your honors, if you please, I have sat quietly here and listened to misrepresentations which have been heaped upon me. Just a minute——"

"Judge," broke in Chairman Webb, "I suggest that you have your counsel make any remarks you wish made."

The scene was precipitated when Mr. Akerman in his testimony accused Judge Speer of delivering a charge antagonistic to the government.

Akerman also testified that in a bankruptcy case fees he considered excessive were allowed by Judge Speer to the firm of Talley & Heyward, the former being at one time private secretary to Judge Speer, and the latter his son-in-law. When he protested the fees were much more liberal than allowed his own firm, also participants in the litigation, Akerman declared that Judge Speer said his son-in-law was in need of money.

STRIKE MAY TIE UP LONDON.

Unless Unions Make Some Concessions 150,000 to 200,000 Workmen Will Be Idle Next Week.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Unless some concessions are made there will be 150,000 to 200,000 workmen in London idle by the beginning of next week.

Already 8,000 coal porters and 2,000 car men have struck and the latter's union, which has a membership of 50,000, threatens to inaugurate a sympathetic strike. There will be a lockout of 100,000 men in the building trades tomorrow unless they sign to work with nonunionists.

The price of coal is advancing and the poor people have the greatest difficulty in obtaining fuel. The weather is cold. The coal porters' union forfeited public sympathy today by refusing to carry coal to the hospitals, though up to the present they have not interfered with the hospital authorities carting the coal themselves.

SEVERE QUAKE IN GREECE.

Houses and Fortress in Lepante Partially Wrecked, but Inhabitants Are Not Injured.

ATHENS, Jan. 23.—A severe earthquake occurred today at Lepante. Almost every house in the town was more or less damaged and the fortress was partially wrecked, but nobody was injured. Lepante or Naupaktos is a seaport on the Gulf of Corinth, with a population of about 3,000.

ANNE MORGAN VISITS CHICAGO

Comes to Promote Work of National Civic Federation.

DECLINES AN INTERVIEW.

Says She Is Tired After Busy Day Here and in Milwaukee.

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan and heiress to a large share of his fortune, is a guest at the Blackstone hotel. She is one of a party of four women who arrived in Chicago from the east yesterday morning, made a flying trip to Milwaukee during the day, and returned to Chicago at night.

Miss Morgan was told of reports regarding the purpose of her visit. She was asked:

"Is it the purpose of your visit to find ways and means to help the working girls?"

Boosts Civic Federation.

Miss Morgan would not answer the question. She said, however, that she had come to Chicago in the interest of the National Civic federation. This organization has its headquarters in New York. One of the chief purposes for which it was organized was to give aid to workng women.

"Are you here to promote the work of the federation?" Miss Morgan was asked.

"Yes, but really you must excuse me tonight, for I'm very tired and want to rest."

Declines to Give Interview.

"But does not this include the giving of assistance to women in want of help?"

"I don't care to discuss the matter tonight," Miss Morgan said, and stepped into the elevator.

Accompanying Miss Morgan are Mrs. Van Rensselaer, Mrs. R. Bacon, and Miss M. Wetmore. Miss Wetmore has been associated with Miss Morgan for some time in religious and charitable work.

JULIA MARLOWE GOES EAST.

Actress Will Be Operated Upon for Appendicitis in New York Hospital.

Julia Marlowe, actress, passed through Chicago yesterday in a special car bound from Los Angeles to New York, there to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Examination by her local physician showed she had stood the trip well and no alarm was expressed about her ability to stand the operation. She said confidently she would be back in Chicago playing in a few weeks.

GET CASH TO PAY SIEGEL CREDITORS

New York Banker and Partner Reported to Have Raised About $1,000,000.

BULK TO THE DEPOSITORS

Committee Arranged to Work Reorganization; Chicago Store Independent.

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Creditors of the Henry Siegel enterprises, stores, partnerships, and bank will learn of the plans under consideration for payments and reorganization no later than Tuesday. The announcement may be made earlier. So close was the settlement today that none of the parties in interest would go into details, only saying a few hours would bring something definite.

Close upon the heels of the first report came the announcement that E. W. Bloomingdale, Gen. Theodore A. Bingham, and Theodore P. Gilman have agreed to act as a committee to safeguard the rights and interests of the bank depositors, to study all offers, and to explain the same to all who may be interested. The committee is to act without compensation, although there will be some incidental expenses. About 80 per cent of the deposits are not represented by the committee headed by J. Philip Munch.

Raise $1,000,000 for Depositors.

Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel have been able to raise a large sum of money, said to be more than $1,000,000 cash, but the amount was not indicated either by Mr. Siegel or his attorney.

The greater part of this sum is to go as an immediate cash dividend to the depositors of the bank because Mr. Siegel asserts that while legally he is not bound to protect the depositors first, he feels himself morally obligated to use money contributed by his friends for that purpose.

May Divide Companies.

There is a plan for reorganization which contemplates bringing together the general merchandise creditors, the bank depositors, and the landlords of the various properties occupied as stores. Each will have to aid. Boston is to be cut loose from the mercantile combination to be effected, leaving Chicago also independent, while a new corporation with increased capital stock will reorganize the two New York stores.

PUTS MRS. LEWINSOHN OUT

Erbstein Tells Her Never to Darken His Office Door Again.

WANTED PAPERS WITHHELD

Woman Shakes Her Fist in the Attorney's Face.

Mrs. Rachel B. Lewinsohn, wife of "Sollie" Lewinsohn, the missing private banker, professional bondsman, and money lender, yesterday was invited to leave the office of Attorney Charles E. Erbstein and never return. She walked into his office, shook her hand in Erbstein's face, and threatened to have him arrested for turning over "Sollie's" checks and papers to the government.

"Madam, there is the door; go and never come back," Erbstein said, pointing to the door.

With muttered threats Mrs. Lewinsohn passed through the door and disappeared.

Angry Because Not Called.

It was said she is particularly incensed because she has not been subpoenaed as a witness before the federal grand jury in the investigation of the stories she has told of alleged graft in the federal building and the money losses incurred by "Sollie." That she has not been called as a witness was said to indicate grand jury action may be directed against her.

The grand jury, it was said, struggled all day with the investigation. Assistant District Attorney David D. Stansbury was in charge of presenting the evidence and examining witnesses. Mr. Stansbury was not connected with District Attorney Wilkerson's office at the time Lewinsohn plied his bond business and money lending activities in the federal building.

Negro Family on Hand.

Among the witnesses who appeared before the jury were Martin Lins, a special agent of the federal bureau of investigation; Mrs. Tiny Johnson, mother of Jack Johnson, convicted negro pugilist; a brother and sister of the negro, and Barney Furey, the black pugilist's former trainer.

The investigation is conducted to sift to the bottom Mrs. Lewinsohn's stories alleging that "Sollie" lost $25,000 of the negro's money in bucket shopping and that a slush fund of $13,000 was distributed to "Sollie" and a federal official at the time of the Sidmond McHie bucket shop prosecutions.

Furey's testimony tended to contradict these stories.

District Attorney Wilkerson said he had been informed there was a move on foot to demand a congressional investigation of the Lewinsohn scandal, and he welcomed such an investigation.

AUTO SHOW OPENS THIS AFTERNOON

More than $40,000 Spent Decorating Coliseum and First Regiment Armory.

VALUE UP TO $3,000,000.

Five Hundred Cars Ready for Exhibition, Beside Accessories and Parts.

Engineers of eighty-five manufacturers of motor cars will show their newest ideas in construction to Chicago during the next week. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the fourteenth annual national automobile show will open in the Coliseum and First regiment armory.

During several months the manufacturers have been preparing for the show, and according to Manager S. A. Miles, the officials of the organization have spent more than $40,000 in decorating the halls. The renaissance idea prevails in the decorative scheme.

The most improved gasoline propelled machines from seventy-five factories are on exhibition in the Coliseum. Ten manufacturers of electrics are displaying their best machines for the education of the public.

Stress Laid on Accessories.

Visitors at the motor show this year will be impressed with the accessories which add to the convenience of motoring, rather than by freakish designs that have no particular value except at the shows.

The man who is inclined to be a bit lazy when he motors will find high backed seats where he can recline while his chauffeur pilots the car on the tours. A telephonic device has succeeded the speaking tube as a means of communication between passenger and chauffeur.

The principal argument during the show will be between the fanciers of the four and six cylinder machines.

Values Exhibits at $3,000,000.

The exhibitors have 500 cars at the Chicago show and the value of the cars and accessories shown by the 215 "auto anatomy" makers is estimated at $3,000,000. However, the management of the show declare it is not for the rich man this year but chiefly will appeal to the average man who buys a medium priced automobile. The highest priced machine on exhibition sells for $7,200 and the cheapest has a $395 tag on it. The show will continue one week.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

Last Monday night a burglar attempted to break into the home of Ald. Sitts. Wednesday night a robber made a call at Ald. Capitain's home.

It may be that some one has given a council directory to a burglar. Perhaps the robbers are trying to convince the aldermen that they should appropriate money for more policemen. Possibly the would-be house breakers have not been operating long enough in Chicago to know who's who. It is not impossible that some clever burglar has decided to cover the entire city on scientific lines, intending later to get a list of the preachers, lawyers, doctors, bankers, and brokers.

Maybe the police can find out which theory, if any, is correct. If the detectives would catch a few burglars they might tell what sort of a campaign they have mapped out for Chicago.

JUST NATURALLY WENT WRONG.

The Boston Transcript, the afternoon before the municipal election in that city, said: "If ever a lineup in a municipal campaign in this or any other city were clearly drawn between honesty and dishonesty, between orderly administration and gang rule, between civic decency and civic shame, it is here and now in the contest between Kenny and Curley."

Boston for this election had a ballot fashioned to the liking of the friends of municipal progress—one which, to quote the New York Times, "not only enables but compels its voters to have and use intelligence in marking it." Congressman Curley was most heartily condemned and opposed by a nonpartisan combination of Republicans, Progressives, and Democrats. Yet Boston, with every advantage which the best political machinery could give it for the wise selection of officials, elected Curley.

Occasionally all that the forces which make for good can do is to stand ruefully in contemplation of the wreckage of their expectations and exclaim philosophically: "Now look at the durned thing."

OUR OPEN WINTER.

Little eccentricities of temperature—rises and drops covering thirty and forty degrees up and down the thermometer—give pleasant variety to this winter of content. Ten degrees above in the morning does not preclude forty degrees above in the evening; a northeast wind rattling the windows at night switches to a southwest breeze by noon; a January snowstorm yields to a late March thaw; one day little drifts, the next day little puddles.

One morning comes so bright, with such a warm glare of sunlight on new fallen snow, that a wintering bird pipes a cheerful little song under the eaves; the next breaks so raw and gray that even the crow remains under cover.

One day the blue jays flash with spring alertness through the brown woods; the next they are silent and unseen. One day we are chill in the grip of winter; the next languid under the suggestion of spring. One day we have what would be reasonably pleasant weather in Manitoba; the next what would be merely cool weather in Florida.

Thus far it has been an open winter—open to everything, from comment to chilblains, from summer underwear to furs.

PACIFICISM, FALSE AND TRUE.

The late Edwin Ginn, head of the publishing house of Ginn & Company, was an ardent pacificist and has bequeathed to the peace movement $1,000,000 as endowment of the "World Peace Foundation" established some years ago with Mr. Edwin D. Mead as head.

Mr. Ginn's intent was expressed by him in the following statement:

> Deeply impressed by our obligations as Americans, I have felt that the more effective counter influence to the military spirit would be the wide circulation among our people of the best international books condemning the methods of force and inculcating the methods of reason in the settlement of the rivalries and differences between nations. A hundred books and pamphlets should be placed within reach of everybody, published at the mere cost, so cheap that everybody can possess them, and circulate them everywhere. These books should be in every library, in every minister's study, in every newspaper office, on every teacher's table, and in the hands of every man and woman who shapes public opinion.

With this view most thinking men and women are in sincere accord. The movement to prevent war is a broad one, and, wisely carried out, the plan of education thus outlined will be a potent factor for good.

But it is a pity that some of the most prominent pacificists are impossibilists and discredit the peace movement or their share in it by fighting practical measures of defense which are necessary, at least, in the present stage of world organization. The Peace society's ridiculous refusal to reelect Dr. Abbott because he favored naval defense is an example of this evil, and the frequent foolish utterances of Mr. Carnegie do more harm to the peace propaganda than much "literature" from the Peace Foundation will compensate for.

Sensible pacificism, real pacificism, does not favor in a period still marked by frequent wars that any nation shall strip itself of the power of self-defense. American pacificists who organise opposition to the attempt to place our army and navy on a basis of modern efficiency are unconscious enemies of their cause and their country.

"POWERS THAT PREY."

That a "representative" of the type of Bartley Burg should be engaged in an investigation of a great public institution like the Cook county hospital is a fact which ought to move this community to something more effectual than disgust.

The county hospital is maintained at the cost of the taxpayers to give succor to the poor who are stricken with disease. It is a great humanitarian institution, the resources of which are more than exhausted by the deserving. Yet the Burg-Bartzen type of "representative" of this community wishes to make the hospital an adjunct of spoils politicians. Ward heelers and hustlers, comfortable henchmen and their families and friends, are to be received, while obscure and friendless poor are turned away to make room for them.

Of the character of much of the application for entrance to this hospital the testimony of Warden Chapman is eloquent. He showed from his records "that 8,067 persons applied at the hospital for admission during December. Of this number the county agent's force rejected 163 because they were able to pay elsewhere, while the physicians rejected 2,652, a large proportion of whom were alcoholics. Of the 3,015 admitted, 2,777 had wounds or hurts dressed and 1,583 were given free prescriptions."

The present administration and medical staff represents an attempt to keep spoils politics out of this institution and raise its plane of service. This attempt must be supported by the reputable medical opinion and by the decent citizenship of Cook county. The present investigation inspired by the venomous opposition to President McCormick's reform policy and carried on by an investigating body headed by a most unscrupulous and shameless gang of politicians resembles very much the attempt by Bartzen to ruin or control the Juvenile court. Only a minority of the committee can be relied upon to investigate with any respect for the public welfare. The majority is conspicuously unfit.

The course of the investigation therefore should be followed carefully and specific instances of mistake, if proved, should be considered with the general facts disclosed. The case of the man Lyons, even if proved an error of diagnosis, should not be allowed to obscure the good work which is going on under the new régime.

And beyond consideration of this episode in the gang fight on county reform, the citizens of Cook county should face the facts of our political situation, and realize that unless they get rid of the entanglements of partisan machinery and political machinery and administrative machinery—unless they insist upon a simplification of local government and an abolition of the blanket ballot, they will continue to be shamed and mulcted by incompetents, wasters, and predatory professional politicians and demagogues like the men who are obstructing reform in Cook county at this time.

THE MINE INQUIRY.

Representative MacDonald, Progressive, and Representative Keating, Democrat, have done a public service in forcing action by the Democratic majority of the house on the strike situations at Houghton and in Colorado. Whatever the rights and wrongs of these industrial conflicts, too much of the gravest import is involved in them to excuse evasion and concealment. The American people want the facts, and they want their representatives to face the facts, and if remedy is within the scope of legislation, they want remedies applied.

The investigation should be open and thorough.

NOTES FROM OVER SEAS.

The London Times estimates the fire losses of the United Kingdom for 1913 at $18,150,000. The same newspaper, in the same issue, quotes the New York Journal of Commerce as placing the total fire losses of the United States for the last year at $224,723,350.

In 1838—only seventy-six years ago—the Sirius, a two masted steamer with wooden paddle wheels and one funnel, of 412 tons burden, left the Thames for an adventurous voyage—the first vessel to cross the Atlantic under steam. The London Chronicle prints an interesting interview with the Rev. Vincent F. Ransom, a Wiltshire clergyman, who is believed to be the only survivor of the trip, which was made in nineteen days from London to New York.

Climbing the Alps is to be made easy. A cableway is being constructed on the flank of Mount Blanc so that the tourist will be carried up to the Col du Midi, 11,680 feet above sea level, leaving a mere trifle of 4,000 feet to be ascended on foot before the summit is attained. The aerial journey will take twenty minutes to accomplish, each car accommodates twenty passengers, and the cost of a ticket will be $5. The ascent in the ordinary way costs on the average about $60.

The viceroy of India has just completed a tour through the various districts of the empire, concluding with a visit to Calcutta. No functions were held in the city itself, and even the university convocation was held at Government house. No crowds were permitted to congregate in the streets on the route followed by the viceregal processions, and the thoroughfares were heavily guarded by police and soldiers. The viceregal train left Howrah station, from which all but officials were excluded, and the railway was guarded for a hundred miles by police standing four feet apart and bearing torches. The general public did not have a glimpse of Lord Hardinge.

We shall have to continue to admire G. K. Chesterton from afar. "I feel about going to America much as I feel about going to the north pole," says G. K. C. "I am sure America is very interesting, but I can see that from here. And none of the Europeans who do go to America seem to be able to get any further than this fact, which is already known to me. If I could fly across to America this instant on a fairy carpet I do not believe I should understand it any more than I do now. For there are some mysteries that do not reveal themselves easily to the eye. And it is a curious paradox that it is often the most materialistic things that it is least easy to understand merely by looking at them."

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. THE WATER SITUATION (Continued.)

THE law obtained through Congressman Mann was designed to do away with this shallow dump. It provided that dumping should not be done except behind breakwaters or more than eight miles from shore where the water was more than fifty feet deep.

Acting under the law, the war department designated an area eight miles northeast of the harbor mouth and at the maximum distance from the cribs. One object in going northeast was to get away from the four mile crib which lay to the southeast.

The law operated with the assistance of the city government meant that scows should not be loaded with organic matter or matter that would float; that when the bottoms of the scows were opened the clay and sand would sink straight below the fifty foot level and would, therefore, be beyond the range of wave action.

I never have believed in the use of the lake for dumping purposes. My opinion is that special street cars should be sent into a place being excavated and when loaded should be hauled over the street car lines to clay holes and to those parts of the city where the level needs to be raised.

When the law on dumping was passed there were only two alternatives: Shall dumping be done for two miles on a straight line between Sixteenth street and the four-mile crib on a shallow bar or shall it be taken out eight miles and be dumped in water over fifty feet deep? Of these the latter was the better and I stood for it.

When this matter was up several years ago it was plain that most of the turbidity was due to shore wash, including bottom wash near the shore. The water from the Lake View cribs and from the Sixty-eighth street crib—cribs miles away from the dumping ground—also was turbid. Dumping in the lake under the old plan was not the major cause of turbidity. Under the present plan it is a minor cause.

Filling in of the lake for the purpose of improvement is much more of a factor in turbidity. Even light winds stir the bottom near these filled-in areas. The retaining walls are never secure enough, never go deep enough into the wet, unstable bottom to prevent wave cutting.

The improvements encroach year by year on the cribs. Cribs that were formerly some distance out are now close in and in shallow water. Lake View threatens to become inland in a few years.

The reason the water has been muddier than usual this winter is because the winds have been high and the shore and shallow bottom have not been covered by ice. Generally at this season of the year the ice covers the water out to a zone where the water is thirty feet deep. Ice covered water does not cut the bottom or banks.

What can be done about it? For my part I should say filter through paper. On my desk I keep a pitcher of tap water filtered through ordinary filter paper. At my home I use tap water filtered through blotting paper. This takes out all of the dirt and most of the bacteria.

If one wants to take more precautions, let him heat his drinking water to 165 degrees for five minutes. This is nearly 60 degrees short of boiling. This treatment will kill all disease bacteria, but will not alter the flavor of the water.

PROVISION FOR MOISTURE.

A. E. P. writes: "I give preference to the warm air furnace because no other has equal facility for keeping up a proper degree of moisture. To provide for moisture, I set on top of the outside ring of the furnace drum, or radiator, two pans, each in the form of a half ring and both together placed end to end, forming a complete ring pan, having an outside diameter of thirty-six inches and inside diameter of twenty-four inches and being five inches high, holding about twelve gallons of water, filled in from a water nozzle that swings into a small trapdoor in the upper part of the furnace casing. A large evaporating surface is thus placed where it is the most effective without impeding a free circulation of air. Eight to twelve gallons per day are readily evaporated in an eight room house."

REPLY.

What is the humidity of the room, as shown by a hygrometer?

CONDITION NOT DANGEROUS.

Mrs. M. G. writes: "A boy of 8 is pronounced by a doctor abroad to have a heart which has nothing wrong with it, but is not strong actioned. Is this condition at all dangerous? Should any special precautions be taken with regard to games, running, etc., at school? Is there any treatment which will strengthen a weak actioned heart? Would it be inadvisable to take a child or person with a not strong actioned heart to live or stay for any length of time at a high altitude? The place I have in mind in asking is 6,000 feet above sea level."

REPLY.

1. No.

2 and 3. A weak heart muscle in a boy of 8 merely means that all his muscles are weak. What is good for his leg muscles is good for his heart muscle. See that he plays in the open air up to the limit of his capacity. If you can arrange it so that in school or on the playground he can have some group play under a playmaster, so much the better.

4. No.

CONSUMPTIVE DOING WELL.

C. W. writes: "What is the danger to a tuberculosis patient, moderately advanced, who goes to a high altitude for six months or so and then returns to Chicago? Can a person still be in the advanced stage of consumption even if he has no high temperature, has a low pulse, good appetite, and is gaining in weight, but still has bacilli?"

REPLY.

1. It is quite certain that he will not get well. If he can go to a good climate, probably with a high altitude, be able to rest there without work, be well supported, be free from homesickness, and can stay there until his disease is arrested, he will gain by going. If he goes out counting the months until he can come back he will not get well.

2. Yes, if you mean by no high temperature that he has no fever. I should say that he was doing well.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1914: By the Brentwood Company.]

HISTORY, both secular and ecclesiastical, teaches us that Joan of Arc, as indicated by her title of Maid of Orleans, died, as she had lived, a maid, without posterity. Yet I have a letter before me, dated Nov. 18, 1900, in which the individual who styles himself "Duke of Warren-Surrey," asserts over that signature: "On the maternal side I descend from St. Pierre Fourrier and the venerable Jeanne d'Arc."

The "duke" also in the same letter alludes to his royal ancestor, William the Conqueror. Inasmuch as there are many thousands of lineal descendants in the female line from Norman, Plantagenet, and Tudor kings, occupying the humblest walks of life in Great Britain, this descent from William the Conqueror is of no account whatsoever.

If I call attention to the matter, it is because this person has just arrived by the French liner La Provence in New York, where he is putting up at a leading hotel, attracting notice there by his extraordinary clothes, his odd manner and utterances, and his ringleted hair.

He proposes subsequently to honor Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, and other big cities of the United States and also Canada with his presence.

He was over here in 1900 with the publicly expressed purpose of finding some rich woman willing to become his wife.

He is still unmarried, and presumably his present trip to America has the same matrimonial object in view, since he has admitted in interviews that he would not be disinclined to wed a rich American woman.

It may therefore be of interest to furnish some information concerning the ducal title which he uses and which he proposes to share with some fair daughter of Uncle Sam.

He claims today, as he did just fourteen years ago, that the dukedom was bestowed upon him by the vatican on June 27, 1900, in a brief issued by the late Cardinal Macchi.

However, I have before me an official list, bearing the date of 1913, of all the papal titles of nobility granted during the last century, and the dukedom of Warren-Surrey does not figure among them.

I have also a French standard work of titles of nobility granted by the vatican to French citizens, divided into two parts, one containing the names of those whose papal titles have been registered by the keeper of the great seal at Paris, and are authorized to be officially borne in France, while the other section is devoted to those Frenchmen possessing nobiliary dignities obtained from the vatican, and which, not having been registered, cannot lawfully be used in France. In neither of these lists does the dukedom of Warren-Surrey occur.

It is hardly necessary for me to add that the dukedom of Warren-Surrey does not occur in the English peerage. There is an earldom of Surrey, but it belongs to the Duke of Norfolk, and is borne by his son and heir.

The soi-disant Duke of Warren-Surrey does not figure in any official list of titles or in any of the standard works of reference of any country of Europe.

With regard to the patent of dukedom bearing the signature of the late Cardinal Macchi, I recall that when the "duke" was over here, fourteen years ago, and produced the patent in question, reference was made to the late Cardinal Rampolla, then papal secretary of state, who sent a reply that there was no record of any such dukedom having been granted by the vatican.

The "duke," when asked to explain this, intimated that he had obtained the patent from one of the minor officials of the papal legation at Paris, and that, if the cardinal secretary of state asserted that it was not on record at the vatican, it was probably because he had not paid the requisite fees and dues of registration.

Indeed, he intimated to me at the time at my house, when he called upon me, that he had not had the money for this, and that one of the reasons why he wished to obtain a rich wife in America was in order that he should pay these fees, or rather to take up the notes which he had given in lieu of cash.

In view of the fact that the title has not been registered, it may be presumed that he has not succeeded in paying the registration dues and that his title is therefore invalid.

Let me add that, although a Frenchman, and making his home in Paris, he does not belong to any reputable Parisian club.

When he was over here last and called upon me in New York, he claimed to know intimately several prominent members of the old French and Austrian aristocracy.

One of them, with whom he declared himself to be particularly intimate, and to whom indeed he professed to be related, happened to be lunching that day at my house, and, summoning him from the drawing room into the library, I confronted him with the "duke," much to the dismay of "his grace," since my guest had never heard of a Duke of Warren-Surrey, nor seen the individual in question in his life before.

The "duke" also claims that his aunt on the maternal side, that is to say, his mother's side, is a Countess Natalie Huyn, one of the dames du palais of the court of Vienna and lady in waiting of Archduchess Maria Therese; that he is the nephew, in the same way, of Count Paul Huyn, bishop of Brunn, and of Count Karl Huyn, general in command of the cavalry division at Cracow.

Now I have before me a complete list of the members of the Austrian house of Huyn, and there is no Countess Natalie Huyn among the members married to any one of the name of Warren, or indeed to any Frenchman.

When last here, the "duke" was accompanied by his mother, and she was good enough to give me copies in her own handwriting of the certificates of her own marriage and of her eldest son's birth. In both of these documents her maiden name is given as Marie Huyn de Verneville.

There is, though, no record of such a person nor of the marriage of any such person among the Counts and Countesses Huyn in that volume of the Almanach de Gotha which is devoted to the enumeration of German and Austrian counts and countesses.

In her marriage certificate the name of her husband is given as Anselm Leon de Warren, a French citizen, and his profession as subinspector of one of the French agencies of the English Gresham Insurance company.

In 1904 the "Duke" of Warren-Surrey came into the limelight in Paris, owing to the arrest of his younger brother, who styles himself "Marquis" Hamelin de Warren-Surrey, under extremely scandalous circumstances; in fact, circumstances not fit for publication in a family newspaper.

It is only fair to the elder brother, now here, to state that, although he was mentioned in connection with the affair, he was neither indicted nor brought to trial. He left France on the arrest of his younger brother.

I should not go to the trouble of printing all this information concerning him were it not that I understand that his coming to this country is, as it was fourteen years ago, for the purpose of obtaining a rich American wife, and that I should be sorry today, as then, to know of any American girl wedding him without being fully aware of the true value of his nobiliary honors and of his antecedents.

THE defection of Senator Bristow continues as a live topic in Kansas. He appears to be of the commonest clay. When a public man can listen without irritation to the argument of "harmony," or can tolerate the mere mention of that pusillanimous word, he is not of the stuff that goes to the making of heroes. Heroes make the party; the party never yet made a hero.

POLITICAL doctors have been feeling the pulse of the Progressive party and listening to its heart-beat, and there is speculation as to whether it will "survive." This, it seems to us, depends altogether on the appearance of the great citizen, or great citizens, to lead the way to battle. Without these it is inconceivable that any party can survive as a power for good.

A POLITICAL party, like an army, is made up largely of simple intelligences; these, as William James said of human intelligences in general, possess in their faithfulness and honesty the single gift by which they are sometimes able to warm us into admiration. But even this faithfulness, he qualifies, "seems to have a sort of inorganic ring, and to remind us more of the immutable properties of a piece of inanimate matter than of the steadfastness of a human will capable of alternative choice."

Why the Costofliving Is High.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The American people drank 70,000,000 gallons of whisky, smoked 4,090,300,000 cigars, and 8,711,000,000 cigarettes during the six months ending Dec. 31, according to figures announced today by the Internal Revenue bureau.

Clifford G. Olds of Garfield avenue went to Westville Saturday night and had his pocket picked.

"YOU are absolutely wrong," said Bert Marx to us yesterday, referring to our theory that the way to putt is to look at the hole and not at the ball. "The statement is revolutionary and people will question your sanity," he added. "That would be nothing new, but have you tried the method?" we asked. He hadn't. "Come up into George's Place and try it, then," said we. Ten minutes later he was as crazy as ourself, and putting like an out-patient of Bedlam.

COMPLAINT is made to the New York Evening Post about the concert manners of the Manhattanites. At a Philharmonic concert the conductor had to wait ten minutes, stick in hand, for the chattering to cease. This is eight minutes longer than Mr. Stock has to wait, unless a concerto is being played, in which case the chatter continues until the soloist begins. It is not generally known that the orchestral introduction is a part of a concerto, and as no signs are displayed with the information thereon, how is one to know?

SOMEONE should start a kindergarten for "music lovers." There are subscribers to the Symphony concerts who have attended them for years, and yet, if the opening numbers are a suite and a symphony, many of these veteran concertgoers confuse the second movement of the suite with the first movement of the symphony. When it comes to chamber music, the ignorance is thick as fog off the Banks.

IF Mr. Whiting plays a sonata for piano and cello with Mr. Willeke, ladies rush up to him and exclaim, "Oh, Mr. Whiting, you played that accompaniment beautifully." Or, if Mr. Pianoforte plays a trio with Mr. Violin and Mr. Cello, it is advertised beforehand that Mr. Piano will be assisted by Mr. V. and Mr. C. Now, there is no "accompanying" or "assisting" in chamber music, and ensemble means something more than striking certain chords together. "The realization of fine ensemble, whether vocal or instrumental," says Mr. Fuller Maitland, "seems to involve complete unselfishness on the part of all the performers."

OWNERS SHOULD PETITION.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I would greatly appreciate your informing me if possible whether the city intends to extend Clarendon avenue to Lawrence avenue. Clarendon avenue now runs north to Lakeside place only. The dividing private ground between the two thoroughfares being almost washed away, it is difficult and dangerous to cross from one to the other at low water, and absolutely impossible when the water is high. The extension of Clarendon avenue is today a necessity owing to the increasing population of the surrounding neighborhood as well as for the accommodation of the crowds attracted during the summer months by the refreshing breezes of Lake Michigan.

EDMOND P. COBB.

We have no proceeding pending at this time for extending Clarendon avenue from Lakeside place to Lawrence avenue. If the property owners desire this improvement let them send in petition, through one of their aldermen, and we will take the necessary steps to start the condemnation proceedings. EDWARD J. GLACKIN, Secretary.

THE GOVERNOR AND SEX HYGIENE

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In explaining his vote against teaching sex hygiene at the University of Illinois, of which he is ex-officio trustee, Gov. Dunne said yesterday:

> The teachers of sex hygiene would come in contact with boys and girls from 6 to 15 years of age. Though the subject be disclosed in as delicate a manner as possible—boys alone and girls alone—it would nevertheless work untold harm.
>
> These children would be partially informed. They would be imbued with that "little knowledge" which "is a dangerous thing." They would be consumed with prurient curiosity to inform themselves further. If a certain amount of knowledge were forced upon them they would go out and discover more for themselves.

If a little knowledge is a dangerous thing, because it would drive children to "go out and discover more for themselves," which inferentially would be a still more dangerous thing, then presumably complete knowledge would be a completely dangerous thing, and the best educated men and women would be the most immoral. Such is not the fact.

All reports made by various commissions in recent years on the subject of prostitution, all reports without exception, state that as a class prostitutes are ignorant girls from ignorant homes, who have picked up the facts of life in their dirty, crowded homes, in gutters, dance halls, and saloons, not in schools.

The governor somewhat ingeniously and disingenuously makes his case against teaching sex hygiene to "children from 6 to 15 years of age." Aside from the fact that sex hygiene was never taught to children of 6, or 8, or 10, or indeed under 12 or 13, being for high school pupils only, what has this got to do with the University of Illinois?

There are no "children of from 6 to 15 years of age" at the University of Illinois, as Gov. Dunne knows very well. Yet he has taken his standing against sex hygiene teaching, even as a voluntary course, in the university.

How old does he think human beings should be before they can learn scientifically the fundamental facts of life without injury to their morals? JOSEPH MEDILL PATTERSON.

A TAFTITE FOR WILSON.

Macon, Mo., Jan. 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I see Senator Kenyon fears government ownership of the railroads. Only a few years ago and we laughed at W. J. Bryan when returning from Europe he suggested such a thing. When it comes it will carry the fact that every man connected with a railroad will have his right to vote taken away from him. That is our only safeguard against a political machine.

I don't think it will come soon, if at all. If President Wilson continues to make good he will through those whom he consults correct the present conditions along sane lines. I am a Republican, "Taftite," if that sounds better, but Wilson will get my vote in 1916 if he runs and does as well as he is now doing. I hear Republicans every day say the same thing.

VALOR OF AUSTRIAN TROOPS.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—What was the matter with the man who wrote that the battle of Sadowa-Koeniggraetz was a walkover for the victors, "as all battles with the Austrians have been"? The Prussians had to climb over barricades of fallen Austrians, the dead and wounded amounting to 21,000, including 500 officers. Does this look like a walkover? And at that it was proved that the battle was won by bribery.

Besides, half of the Austrian army under Archduke Albrecht fought in Italy and defeated the Italians at Custozza, on the same battlefield where in 1848 under Radetzki the Austrians won another decisive victory over the Italians. While in 1866 the Austrians were victorious at Custozza, the Austrian fleet under Tegethoff destroyed the Italian fleet, double the size of his, at Lissa. In the storming of the Dueppel works in [illegible] the Austrian army had to do most of the fighting.

But more important than all this was the unequaled heroism of the people of Vienna who in 1683 resisted the onslaught of [illegible] Turks until rescued by the imperial army, thereby saving the civilization of Europe and all Christendom from the Turkish barbarians.

"RULE OF REASON."

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Did not Mr. Taft, while president, appoint four new judges to the Supreme bench? Did not these four judges constitute the majority that injected the "rule of reason" into the Sherman anti-trust law when the court confirmed it? Was not this an entirely new way of passing upon the constitutionality of the acts of congress? Was it not an assumption of legislative functions? Did not these words interpolated into the act open the doors for all the astute corporation lawyers in America to defeat the purposes of the law and save millions of dollars to the trusts? S. A. G.

"IT seemed to Bruce that he had been suddenly flung back into antiquity and that Nero sat yonder, squinting through his polished emerald. The great, tawny African brutes blinked and turned their shaggy heads this way and that, uneasily. Kathlyn stood very still. How, how could they save her? At length the lions espied her, attracted by the white of her robe. One bounded forward, growling. The others immediately started in pursuit.

"Suddenly the center of the arena opened and a tremendous roar followed. A low wail of terror ran round the arena. Surely this Memsahib had all the gods with her. A great crevasse had opened up between Kathlyn and the lions, one of which lay dead. Then came the rush toward the exits, a mad, frantic rush. Not even Umballah, who knew that not the gods but man had contrived this havoc, not even Umballah waited, but fled, beating down all those who blocked his path.

"Bruce and Ramabai dropped over the railing to Kathlyn's side. But the key upon which their escape depended would not unlock the door."

California Land Question Agitated to Hide Big Naval Scandal, Is Report.

IMMIGRATION LAW UP.

Secretary Wilson Urges Army Tests for Aliens Who Seek Entry Into Country.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Behind the statement on the California land question made to the Japanese parliament by the Japanese minister for foreign affairs was a purpose to distract public attention from a serious naval scandal in the far eastern empire which is on the point of explosion.

It is this feature of the situation which originated in the enactment of the California anti-Japanese land law that has added to the gravity of the relations between the two countries.

If the naval scandal should be fully exposed it is feared by the officials at Tokio that the ministry would be overthrown. Through the diversion of public interest the ministry hopes to escape the storm of censure which the misdoings of naval officials are expected to provoke.

A hint of the character of the Japanese scandal was given the other day by a report from Berlin that Vice Admiral Fuji, naval attaché at the German capital, had accepted commissions from firms selling material to the Japanese government. Many high Japanese officials also are said to be involved.

The opposition learned of the matter and began an agitation for an investigation.

Jap Ire Is Aroused.

Public sentiment in Japan has become resentful towards the United States because of the discrimination by California against Japanese subjects.

This resentment has been increased by reports from Washington that the national congress was considering the prospect of a Japanese exclusion act. The immigration bill reported to the house of representatives by the immigration committee provided in an indirect way for the exclusion of Japanese.

This provision is not sufficiently direct to satisfy congressmen from the Pacific slope, and they have been seeking hearings from the immigration committee with a view to the favorable report of a measure which would operate unquestionably to keep out the Japanese.

Secretary of Labor Wilson today in a communication to the speaker of the house favored the exclusion of Asiatics, but added that in view of the understanding with the Japanese government on immigration there should be incorporated in any bill passed a section with respect to "existing agreements as to passports."

Sets Test for Admission.

Secretary Wilson advised Speaker Clark that the problem of immigration should be solved by congress raising the standard of admission so as to include in the list of excluded aliens those persons not able to pass the physical tests required of recruits for the United States army.

"Inasmuch as the vast majority of the present day immigrants must earn a livelihood, if at all, by performing manual labor," Secretary Wilson says in his letter, "I see no reason why the standard should not be raised to this point."

Secretary Wilson says the method suggested would not only meet the Asiatic immigration issue, but also immigration generally of a laboring element, without violating the most favored nation or other similar clauses contained in existing treaties, as subjects and citizens of all countries would, under such a law, be treated as to physical requirements in exactly the same manner.

Secretary Wilson said late today his recommedations do not contemplate disturbing existing immigration arrangements with Japan in any way, but are designed primarily to exclude Hindus, who are coming in great numbers to the Pacific coast. He said that in view of the restrictions against Hindus made by various British colonies, no protest from Great Britain against the proposed discrimination is anticipated.

President's Stand Known.

President Wilson has let it be known that he does not favor anti-Japanese legislation. Beyond this he has not gone. The state department has not yet replied to the protest made by Japan against the California law last August. As a matter of fact, it is said, it does not know what kind of a reply to make in order to satisfy the Japanese. Secretary Bryan said today he is "hopeful" of a settlement which will be approved by both countries, but he declined to state the basis for his optimism.

In official circles there is a realization that the Japanese question is serious. On the one hand is a proud military people who are determined to have equality with the white race. On the other, conditions in the United States will not admit of an influx of Japanese because of the economic principle involved.

BELIEVES BANK DEFAULTER STILL HAS PART OF $40,000.

Vice President of Schaumburg, Ill., Institution Suspicious After Interviewing Stock Broker for Henning.

Frank M. Henning, defaulting assistant cashier of the Farmers' bank of Schaumburg, Ill., still has part of the $40,000 he confesses having taken from the bank. This, at least, is the theory of H. E. Quindel, vice president of the bank. The latter is engaged in a search for what he believes remains of the money.

"Henning did not lose all the $40,000 playing the stock market—at least not through the one La Salle street broker he told us of," said Mr. Quindel yesterday. "I have talked with the broker, who admits he represented Henning on the stock exchange.

"I can't get it out of my head that he has part of it hidden away. When we brought him to Chicago last night from New York I had him searched twice in my attempt to find a key. There was none.

Mr. Quindel said that he had not decided what course to take against the broker.

"Lawyers in New York told me that a broker may be indicted for handling the account of a bank clerk," he said. "Brokers are supposed to investigate their clients, as I understand it, to see that the money comes legitimately.

"If we can find how Henning spent the rest of the money or where it is, we will talk leniency."

"I will pay back the money," Henning said. "I am not in the least worried over what is to become of me. I hear that my wife is ill. I haven't heard from her and I'm worried. I want a reconciliation."

Fall from Window Kills Her.

Mrs. Nellie Doran of 3405 Monroe street died yesterday of injuries incurred in a fall from her third floor window.

WITH BOOKS and AUTHORS.

Meynell's Life of Francis Thompson.

BY JEANNETTE L. GILDER.

ONE of the interesting biographies of the year just closing is "THE LIFE OF FRANCIS THOMPSON," by Everard Meynell (Scribner). Francis Thompson is not very well known in this country, and even those who are supposed to keep very well informed as to what is going on in the world of literature know him better by name than by his works. They know, for instance, that he led a strange and morbid life, and that he wrote strange and morbid verse. Of the details of his life they know little and of his verse they know less. This biography tells us pretty near all there is to tell. I am reminded, in reading "The Life of Francis Thompson," of "The Life of Josiah Flynt." Thompson was born of respectable people, and if he did not exactly become a tramp he had a great many of the experiences of a tramp. Flynt, whose real name was Willard, was exceptionally well born, and chose the life of a tramp because he had the spirit of a vagabond. He also had the literary spirit, and his autobiography is a tremendous human document. If this biography were an autobiography it would have more of the human document quality. As it is, Mr. Meynell has given us as much of Thompson's own writings about himself as he could, and what he has written as biographer is sympathetic and discriminating.

Thompson received a good education and intended to take up the practice of medicine, for which he studied for some six years, but he never was a real normal man, and any profession would have become distasteful to him in time. After leaving the college at Ushaw he grew further and further apart from a good understanding with any of his fellow creatures. "Holding himself little bounden to his duties," writes Mr. Meynell, "he soon started on a career of evasion and silence." He prowled the streets of Manchester as one in a dream. Boys jeered at him and he paid no attention.

He would even leave his father's reputable doorsteps with untied laces, dragging their length on the pavement past the windows of curious and critical neighbors. He did not work, and his idleness was all unlike the idleness proper to his class. He read poetry in the public library. One sort of idleness, an idleness that gave business to his thoughts for all his life, took him to the museums and galleries.

Curiously enough it was his mother's gift of a copy of De Quincey's "Confessions of an English Opium Eater" that did very much to affect Thompson's future.

"It happened as if in giving Francis the 'Confessions' Mrs. Thompson had found for him a guardian, a spokesman, as if she had borne for him an elder brother. For Francis' feeling for De Quincey soon came to be that of a younger for an elder brother who has braved a hazardous road, shown the way, conquered, and left it strewn with consolations and palliations."

⟡

Unfortunately opium was in the air of Manchester at that time, the cotton spinners being much addicted to its use. And it called aloud to Francis in the words of De Quincey:

> Damnable things become reasonable or tolerable in a city. It harbors such a multitude of distresses, such a conflict of right and wrong—the purposes of nature stand confused, instincts go haltingly along the streets, conscience and reasonings are stunned between stone walls. In one thing, then, did Francis mishear the edict of lawfulness. He took opium—a very pitiful and, surely, very excusable misunderstanding. Constitutionally he was a target when set up in the misfitting guise of a medical student and sent about his work in the middle of the city of Manchester, long, according to De Quincey, a dingy den of opium, with every facility of access, and all the pains that were De Quincey's excuse. He took opium at the hands of De Quincey and his mother. That she, "giver of life, death, peace, distress," should thus have confirmed and renewed her gifts was a strange thing to befall. From her copy of "The Confessions of an English Opium Eater" he learnt a new existence at her hands. That the life that opium conserved in him triumphed over the death that opium dealt out to him shall be part argument of this book. On the one hand, it staved off the assaults of tuberculosis; it gave him the wavering strength that made life just possible for him, whether on the streets or through all those other distresses and discomforts that it was his character deeply to resent, but not to remove by any normal courses; if it could threaten physical degradation he was able by conquest to tower in moral and mental glory. It made doctoring or any sober course of life even more impractical than it was already rendered by native incapacities, and to his failure in such careers we owe his poetry. On the other hand, it dealt with him remorselessly as it dealt with Coleridge and all its consumers. It put him in such constant strife with his own conscience that he had ever to hide himself from himself, and for concealment he fled to that which made him ashamed, until it was as if the fig leaf were of necessity plucked from the Tree of the Fall. It killed in him the capacity for acknowledging those duties to his family friends which, had his heart not been in shackles, he would have owned with no ordinary ardor.

Thompson drifted to London, where he was without money and without work. He swept the streets, he blacked boots, did anything that came to hand, and ate opium. "The time came when he had no lodging, when the nights were an agony of prevented sleep and the days long blanks of half warmth and half ease."

⟡

Thompson got a job with a shoemaker, but as he could not make shoes he was set to running errands and to putting the shutters up and down. This gave him food and shelter and a little time to write. His writings were not accepted, but in the course of time he fell in with writers who appreciated his work, but he was a difficult man to deal with, and it was not until after his death that he had any appreciation outside of a limited circle.

Of his appearance Mr. Meynell says:

> To look at, as it happens, he was something between a lamplighter and a man of letters, but nearer the lamplighter; unless, seeing him stand beneath a street gas jet to write an overdue article, one noticed he carried a pencil instead of a pole. Thus were the flares of Brown's book stalls in Bishop's road used by him. On and on he would write until the last shutter was closed and the gas turned down. Then, dashing off the final sentence, he would rush into the shop to sell his book and to the pillar box with his article.

The life he led was too much for his constitution and he died in the hospital at the age of 49 in 1907. Mr. Meynell says that while in the hospital: "His reading was divided between his prayer book and Mr. W. W. Jacobs' 'Many Cargoes,' neither of which attested his realization of the end. But he was not ignorant of it. When I last saw him he took my father's hand and kept it within his own, chafing and patting it as if to make a last farewell."

⟡

He was laid to rest in St. Mary's cemetery, Kensal Green.

"In his coffin, W. M. records, were roses from Meredith's garden, inscribed with Meredith's testimony—'A true poet, one of the small band,' and violets went to the dead poet's breast from the hand of my mother whose praises he had divinely sung. 'Devoted friends lament him,' wrote W. M., 'no less for himself than for his singing. But let none be named the benefactor of him who gave to all more than any one could give to him. He made all men debtors, leaving to those who loved him the memory of his personality, and to English poetry an imperishable name.'"

Thomas Ritchie, America's First Journalist.

BY EX-SENATOR A. J. BEVERIDGE.

PROF. AMBLER has made a real contribution to American history by giving the public his life of "THOMAS RITCHIE." [Bell Book company, Richmond, Va.] The story of this first of great American editors is more than a biography; it is a careful and scholarly account of the political movements in America of the first period of the nineteenth century. Prof. Ambler's book takes the reader behind the scenes and lets him hear and see the plans and plots, the play of ambitions and resentments, the subtle workings of financial interests, as all these affected the operation of the great and fundamental forces that shaped our history during this period.

The fact that Thomas Ritchie was the first of the great American newspaper men, and that he was an uncommonly able politician, makes him a leading character in the nation wide political drama played during his lifetime. Perhaps the work and activities of no other single man were so closely woven into the country's politics during the administrations of Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, and John Quincy Adams, as were those of Thomas Ritchie. For as editor of the Richmond Enquirer Thomas Ritchie not only wielded a big influence on public opinion, but he became a part of the famous Virginia machine, first put together by Patrick Henry, afterward rendered all powerful by that master politician, Thomas Jefferson, and which finally achieved almost autocratic power under Spencer Roane.

One is not left in doubt, for example, that one reason why the Virginia politicians fought the national bank was not merely a theoretical adherence to states' rights and a distrust of federal power, for Prof. Ambler makes it plain that the Virginia State bank ring was back of much of this opposition. Chief Justice Marshall's decision in McCullough vs. Maryland might have been and probably has been attacked by Ritchie in the Enquirer, even if the great editor and his personal and political friends had not been interested in the state banking scheme of Virginia, but we cannot doubt that the desire of these gentlemen to monopolize the banking business of the Old Dominion did not lessen the violence of Ritchie's assault on the immortal nationalistic decision of Chief Justice Marshall.

Curiously enough, Ritchie's life is full of contradictions. He took positions which logically destroyed one another. For example, he was an extreme states' rights man, and yet no man in all Virginia more earnestly advocated practical methods for welding the nation together than did Thomas Ritchie. The building of roads, the construction of canals, the improvement of waterways were championed by Thomas Ritchie with effective vigor and unanswerable argument.

His treatment of the trial of Aaron Burr for treason, which was conducted in Richmond, with Chief Justice Marshall presiding, three or four years after Ritchie started his newspaper, was partisan, unfair, and even violent. Ritchie seconded Jefferson's efforts to railroad Jefferson's late rival for the presidency to the gallows, law or no law. But while Jefferson's conduct is distinctly colored by personal malice and revenge, no such motive influenced Thomas Ritchie. It is plain that the editor of the Enquirer had made up his mind that Aaron Burr was a traitor, and he was impatient with the law and the judge who stated that law which kept the brilliant adventurer from the hangman's rope or even delayed his journey to the scaffold.

So Ritchie, with all the stubborn pugnacity of his Scotch blood, fairly showered his blows upon the serene head of the imperturbable chief justice. All this of course did not disturb Marshall in the least. It does not appear that he paid any attention to it. He fearlessly stated the law of treason just as though the Enquirer, Virginia, and the whole country were upholding his hands instead of blazing with wrath, as actually was the case, against the court that was thwarting the people's desire for vengeance.

The essential honesty of Ritchie's mind is shown nowhere better than in one incident of this famous trial, for he did not approve of the refusal of his leader, benefactor, and particular friend, Thomas Jefferson, to answer the subpoena of Marshall and testify in person before the jury, and Ritchie showed his displeasure by treating Jefferson's conduct with absolute silence. On the face of it, too, Ritchie was right in criticising Marshall for attending a dinner during the trial to which Burr was a guest, but facts which have since come to light relieve the chief justice of the censure for this indiscretion.

⟡

Prof. Ambler's life of "Thomas Ritchie" may justly be called scholarly. It is quite plain that the learned author has taken extreme pains to be accurate. This feature of Prof. Ambler's notable essay is so conspicuous that the book is of especial value to the student and the scholarly investigator of American history. As a work of reference, no library, of course, will go without it. But to the general reader who is interested in the history of American politics Prof. Ambler's book also will prove to be of absorbing interest. Perhaps, however, this life of Ritchie will be welcomed and eagerly read by no class of men with such appreciation as by newspaper men, for it is the first and only story of the life of the first great American journalist and, indeed, the first narrative of the story of the founding and progress of the first American newspaper as a newspaper is understood in terms of today. For while the Richmond Enquirer, under Thomas Ritchie, is wholly unlike the public press of the present time, it, nevertheless, was the real beginning of modern American journals.

Sketches of the English Novel and Lyric Poetry

BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

THE erudition of Prof. George Saintsbury is almost equaled by the sangfroid with which he has written that important work "THE ENGLISH NOVEL," which has found publication in the series "Channels of English Literature," which E. P. Dutton is issuing under the general editorship of Oliphant Smeaton. The subject is completely within the grasp of the author, whose omniverous reading and extraordinary memory have served to enviable advantage. But neither knowledge nor craftsmanship would have sufficed to produce such a book as Prof. Saintsbury has written. What astonishes the reader is the tempting readableness of this critical work, its enthusiasm, amounting at times to actual impetuosity, and the striking originality of phrase and idea which characterize it.

⟡

The author begins scrupulously at the source of the English novel, follows its first faint tricklings, sails quite majestically upon its swift rushing current in the days of Richardson, Smollet, Fielding, and Sterne, and swings into dock at the mid-Victorian wharves. There are many who consider themselves well informed concerning the novel, but they will be surprised at the number, as well as the nature, of the tributaries to this imposing stream of human endeavor. Saintsbury is all for making his map and his soundings thoroughly, however, and he mentions with manifest respect names which the present reviewer—a frank devotee of fiction—honestly confesses are new to her.

Scorn and contumely are no part of Prof. Saintsbury's method. Breeding, reticence, and a fine attitude of respectfulness give the book distinction. One has a feeling, as he peruses the pages, of being in very good society. Moreover, from first to last [with exceptions so slight that it were hypercritical to mention them] one is entertained as well as instructed. This is owing no more to the subject matter than to the zest, even the exuberance, with which the book is written. To be sure, an extremely scrupulous critic might, here and there, wish to chasten this paragraph, or curtail that simile, but such faults are the result of the genuine spontaneity and abounding knowledge of the subject which the author possesses. Frankly, of all the books written upon the subject, this may well be given the right of way. It contains fewer prejudicial remarks, is broader, more constructive, more eager, more appreciative than any other book which this reviewer can recall which is devoted to this subject.

Dutton & Co. also publish "LYRIC POETRY," by Ernest Rhys, the editor of Everyman's Library, in which this volume is incorporated. Mr. Rhys has not undertaken to write a history of the lyric. He has endeavored rather to show how the idea of the lyric come into being, how it found its way among other forms of literary activity, and how it suffered—or enjoyed—its many transitions. No one not a true and eager lover of lyric poetry could have written the book. The fine distinction, the delicate delight in the loveliness of ancient rhyme or modern outcry, the true connoisseur's selection of illustrations, all are to be commended.

⟡

The especial labor of the author has been to follow the two chief influences in the history of the English lyric—"the stubbornness of the old northern verse with its dual movement, and the musical pliability introduced from the south, through Latin, Italian, Provencal, and Norman channels." The student of English literature will have rare satisfaction in reading the pages which relate to the lyric element in medieval romance, or those describing the lutanists of Elizabethan times, or "the later amorists." However, to come far down the list of chapters, there is none more discerning or delightful than that which deals with Swinburne, the pre-Raphaelites, the "painted lyric," and George Meredith. Truly, a pregnant book, written with a prodigal as well as an accurate pen—a book such as only a man of fine imagination could write.

⟡

Mary Austin makes a record of her geographical adventures by incorporating in her stories the scenes she has visited. Time was when she knew and told of California with a strong and simple art all her own. After a while she moved to the eastern portion of our states and wrote of that. Then she sojourned in England, and her stories were of that land. Italy is the scene of the latter and more significant part of "THE LOVELY LADY," her latest book. At the beginning of the book, when she writes of the youth and early manhood of her hero, Peter Greenslet, she writes naturally and with a firm and confident touch. But later, in the Italian scenes, she falls into that spurious Henry James method which sits so ill upon any one save the great master of evasion and circumlocution and unwinds many stranded threads of meaning from her spool of syntax. She has pages of this sort of thing: "He had in the months that succeeded to that last sight of Eunice Goodward moments of unbearably wanting to go to her to try for a little to ease his torment in a more tender recognition of it—days when he would have taken from her gratefully even if she had fooled him and he had seen her do it, whatever would have saved him from the certainty that never even in those first exquisite moments had she been his."

The story relates the tepid love affairs of a romantic young man who longed for the golden girl and was a long time finding her. There is very little structure to the tale. It doesn't seem to matter so very much whom Peter Greenslet really did love. (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

All Men Are Ghosts, Says Jacks.

"ALL MEN ARE GHOSTS" is food for reflection. There is insight which gives us insight as we read; there is a ripe literary touch which is too often missing in these days of cleverness. L. P. Jacks some time ago published "Mad Shepherds," a series of character sketches. Like Hardy and Phillpotts he knows rural England, but unlike these he knows that men do not merely illustrate background; they live for themselves and in themselves and are wonderfully human. Mr. Jacks has made the parochial type serious and poetical. There is one sketch, "Farmer Jeremy and His Ways," in this volume which might well be part of the first series. It is not mysterious enough for this literary psychology; it belongs with Hankin, the shoemaker, and Perryman, the master of shepherds.

For this ghost series is of an order of story all by itself. Mr. Jacks has at some time come close to the oriental. He feels for the soul of things. We doubt that we are in the flesh as we follow Dr. Piecraft and it is not the doubting induced by terror but the experience of living for a time with the preternatural and forgetting the actual. The other world presses close upon this and even overshadows it.

"The Hole in the Wine Skin" may be read again and again. Mr. Jacks makes the light of the east break in upon our matter of fact western ways, to the end that we are impressed and moved by its delicacy and beauty. "The Professor's Mare" deserves a more poetical title. There is tragedy in every detail of the story, and in this, as in the others, it is the ghost world which will not stay out of the affairs of the living. Mr. Jacks' style is as good as his story. He moves easily from the grotesque to the beautiful. Let us have more of this work of Mr. Jacks. [Henry Holt & Co.]

"THE WAY HOME," by Basil King is destined to disappoint many admirers of the "Inner Shrine" and other works by the same author. It is an unsatisfying novel; it promises so much in spots and gives so little. Every chapter arouses hopes which are all too soon unfilled.

Briefly it is the story of a man's life. Beginning with the religious atmosphere of the child's home, it traces him through his youth, his marriage, his unscrupulous business deals, his infatuation for another woman, the return of his love for his wife, and his return to the faith—presumably "the way home."

Logically developed, that should make a vital piece of work. But this story seems irresolute, aimless. Judging by the title and the beginning and end of the book, its chief concern is the religious doubts of man. But there is no reason for his return to belief, any more than there is ground for his return to his wife.

It is only because the book is so tantalizingly good in places that the logical inconsequence is annoying. Mr. King's characterization is remarkably discerning and faithful. (Harpers.)

Are Americans Too Adaptable?

An English writer in the February Harpers thinks that we are. He says we boast that we fit in anywhere and he adds that this is true but scarcely a thing to be proud of. The Englishman (he says) remains an Englishman no matter where you find him. The American, on the contrary, becomes just like the people about him. There is much sound criticism of us in this article. You may not agree with all of it—but it will interest you and so will everything else in

Harpers Magazine
For February

Charles W. Furlong, F. R. G. S., gives a dramatic account of his adventures in a South American jungle. That genial philosopher, E. S. Martin, pays tribute to the beauty and interest of Central Park, and Norman Duncan tells some remarkable true tales of the stirring life of the Australian mounted police. A peculiarly notable contribution in the field of history is the diary of a Northern woman written in the Capital of the Confederacy during the early days of the Civil War.

Seven Noteworthy Short Stories

There is real humor in two of these stories, one a tale of a frontier town by Henry Wallace Phillips, the other a story of the strange happenings in a quiet English village. And there are peculiarly powerful stories by George K. Stiles, Mary E. Wilkins, Louise Closser Hale, Wilbur D. Steele and Cecil Chard.

Mme. Melba Welcomed as Guest of Chicago Opera.

BY GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

MME. NELLIE MELBA'S only appearance in opera for the present season, the first in several years, was accomplished last night in a beautiful performance of Puccini's "La Boheme." A great audience was present, and the famous soprano was accorded a reception worthy her distinguished position in the world of art, and, it is pleasant to add, worthy the beauty that still lingers in her song. It is true, as the elder generation so persistently assures us, that there are no such singers to be found in opera today. The art of song is changing to meet the changes taking place in opera. But it was a joy to listen again to vocal art that is pure, if cold; to tones that are perfect, though they do not mirror emotion; to song that is complete, just as song, though it retains no relation to the associated action.

Mme. Melba's voice seemingly is preserved against the ravages of time, and it is easy to find the reason for this triumph over the laws of nature. It may be stated in one word—schooling. When Mme. Melba studied her art the world did not move so fast. It was the happy practice of the student to devote many years in preparation for an operatic career. And when that career began it was not necessary for her to rend her vocal cords in the performance of music that need not be sung, indeed, that may not be sung but must be shouted. The world still looked upon the opera house as the home of song. The drama had not begun to dominate it.

Therefore, today, after twenty-eight years in opera, Mme. Melba's voice still is fresh, still rings with its silver toned purity, still has the power to surmount a modern orchestra and a heavy vocal ensemble. In the middle register its beauty is absolutely unimpaired, and often the most trying high tones are taken with the same brilliant resonance that marked them in her prime. The only trace of age that could be observed last night was an occasional lack of [illegible] in these high tones. The quality, at moments only, was touched by thinness and [illegible].

If Mme. Melba did not permit her song to accommodate itself to the interpretative inflections demanded by Puccini's music it is not to be assumed that her impersonation of Mimi was lacking in spirit or in intention. She was sprightly and vivacious, one might almost say convincingly youthful in gesture. Her pantomime was illuminating. But her song remained a thing apart.

Even so, she did not have a monopoly of beautiful song, for there were many able artists in the cast. Perhaps the colleague of the evening who came nearest to the ideals of the art set forth by Mme. Melba was Mme. Zeppilli, whose Musette was delightful. Mme. Zeppilli also practiced a perfect art. She also displayed a voice of faultless beauty. But there was this difference: her song was designed to express feeling, not absolute beauty of tone alone, and if it gained in sympathy it lost something of that cold distinction that belongs to Mme. Melba's school. And herewith is intended not a comparison between an artist of promise and an artist long since acclaimed as great, but a contrast of the old school and the new, of opera and music-drama.

Mr. Bassi, despite a touch of hoarseness, repeated his admirable interpretation of the part of Rodolfo. Mr. Polese was again a sympathetic Marcello, and Mr. Federici made much of Schaunard's opportunity in the first act. Mr. Huberdeau defined other ideals of beauty in song, as is his custom, in the part of Colline, and Mr. Campanini, who conducted for Mme. Melba twenty-eight years ago when she was just beginning her career, made this most beautiful of Puccini scores a constant source of joy.

Chorus and orchestra responded with sympathy and precision. Stage management was good and the lightings in the first three acts were better than usual.

SAYS HE IS STRATHCONA'S SON; WILL SUE FOR MOST OF ESTATE

Brookline, Mass., Man Asserts He and Not the Only Daughter Is Heir to $[illegible]0,000,000.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Asserting he is a legal son of Lord Strathcona, who died last Thursday and who is recorded in the peerage as having only one heir, a daughter, James H. Smith of Brookline today made preparations to institute legal action to procure the major portion of the [illegible] estate.

Lord Strathcona was plain Donald Smith when he started life as an errand boy for the Hudson Bay company in Labrador and began his climb to wealth and power. It was while he was a clerk for the Hudson Bay company that he met Isabelle Hardisty, of Scotch and Indian blood, and made her his wife.

They were married according to the custom of the crude Canadian wilds, and later when Smith was raised to a place in the peerage the wedding was solemnized in [illegible].

Smith would not be seen today, but his [illegible] was emphatic in her declarations that he was the son of Lord Strathcona and that he had been in constant communication with the nobleman for years.

MME MELBA.

Miss Elvyn's Recital.

Attractive pianistic art was displayed by Miss Myrtle Elvyn in her recital given in Orchestra hall on Thursday evening. Among the many American pianists of talent who have appeared in the concert halls during the past decade Miss Elvyn is one of the few to achieve a definite place in the musical life of the country. No recent success has been more honestly earned, for her playing has vitality, temperament, enthusiasm, and taste to commend it and her personality is distinguished and sympathetic.

Her program on this occasion comprised many well worn numbers of the standard repertory and contained but one novelty, which would seem to indicate a conviction that "the public likes the old tunes best." She began her recital with the Saint-Saëns caprice on a theme from Gluck's ballet "Alceste." In it she displayed an astonishing fleetness of finger and much talent for tasteful contrasts of tone. But it would be interesting to learn Miss Elvyn's reasons for omitting the fugue which concludes the number. It is a fine fugue and she has every requisite for its effective delivery.

The "Appassionata" sonata of Beethoven was her next offering, and it also was the musical test piece of the evening. It is grateful to record Miss Elvyn's successful interpretation of it, for success here is dependent less upon digital dexterity than upon musical understanding. She read it sanely and with less thought for the programmatic values suggested by the title—which, by the way, was not of the composer's choosing—than for the musical verities of the composition. There was wholesome vigor in the first movement. There was true exaltation of spirit in the andante. And if the finale did not announce a message of momentous importance it at least was delivered in solid, musicianly fashion and with adequate command of its great mechanical difficulties.

Orchestra Patrons Hear Symphony by De Lamarter

THE most important novelty by an American composer that has come to hearing in Chicago this season is the symphony by Eric De Lamarter, played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra at yesterday's matinée. What is more to the point, it is one of the best of the new symphonies, quite irrespective of the composer's nationality. Art is measured by the canons of art, before which all men are equal. The fact that this composer was born in Lansing, Mich., therefore, should not be a disadvantage.

Judging the De Lamarter symphony by the standards that would apply to a French or a German work, it must be granted the possession of beauty of thought and of form. Its attractive contrasts of mood are arranged in the logical sequence of justly proportioned design and the melodies so tastefully ordered, as to pattern, express the response of a strong, if somewhat reticent individuality, to the impulses of beautiful thought and feeling.

Perhaps the most significant quality of this composer's talent is this reticence. It makes his music spiritually akin to that of Brahms, though there is no resemblance in idea. De Lamarter's melodies have the true lyric impetus, despite their occasional elusiveness, and they are set forth against a harmonic background that employs all the colors of the modern palette, and decked out with many beauties of orchestral effect. The opening theme of the work is strongly individual. It has vital and varied rhythmic pulse to carry it to conviction. The second theme flows more gracefully. There is abundant display of contrapuntal technic in the development given these two melodies, and some tributary thematic material, and the movement ends as it began, with a noble and sonorous reiteration of the first idea.

The slow movement has more of this elevation of spirit, and is finely touched by poetry and romance. The scherzo is brilliant in brittle fashion, and is unmistakably American in flavor as in melody. The finale sustains this American spirit and builds up a climax that is marred only by certain faults of instrumentation, which cause the violins to disappear from the ensemble at a moment when they have much to say, and by one unhappy and conventional repetition on successive degrees of the scale which says nothing at all, and only serves to accomplish a transition according to consecrated but ineffective formula.

But with these as its only faults, it is to be heralded as a significant first effort in a difficult form. The program gave abundant illustration of the last named fault—the sequence—in works of such famous men as Elgar and Strauss, so De Lamarter was in good company all the time. If so resourceful a master of form and of orchestral means as Strauss was obliged to help himself occasionally with one of the hoary platitudes of the art, one may pardon it in a young man who develops his talent under the handicaps of American indifference to the native composer. He is destined for great things.

Mr. Stock offered casually and quite as a matter of course an interpretation of the Strauss tone-poem, "Death and Transfiguration," which would cause us to hail a visiting conductor as a virtuoso. But we have grown accustomed to these brilliant displays of orchestral art and of dramatic intention, and accept them without recognizing the qualities of interpretative genius that are back of them.

The soloist of the afternoon was Miss Beatrice Harrison, the young English violoncellist, whose gifts and attainments are precocious. This talented young girl commands the mechanical possibilities of her difficult instrument in masterly fashion. She has a tone of abundant warmth, power, and variety. Her intonation is infallible, and she plays with wealth of sentiment and with that temperamental freedom and abandon that is the heritage of youth.

These attributes of art, plus the distinction and beauty of her personality, brought her great success with Tschaikowsky's variations on a Rococo theme.

Eleanor Painter Makes Big Hit in Berlin Opera.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Eleanor Painter, the American prima donna, and Julius Lieban, the famous buffo tenor, carried off the honors at the premiere of the new comic opera, "Mandragola," by Ignatz Waghalter, at the Deutsche opera tonight. The opera was warmly received by the large audience, and there were more than twenty curtain calls.

Despite the risqueness of the plot the action of the opera is criticised as rather slow, but the music is beautiful. It is like that of Puccini in character. It is pleasing and savors of the modern Italian school.

After slumbering for 400 years Machiavelli's Boccaccian story, with its ridicule and satire of the marriages of old men and young girls, with a faint suggestion of Prof. Doderlein's theory of children without biologic assistance of man, with a slight flavor of Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks," and "The End Justifies the Means" has been worked over by Paul Egers, the intendant of the Court theater at Darmstadt, into the text for Waghalter's opera. It is reported that the Shuberts are negotiating for the American rights to the opera.

Miss Painter redeemed the opera to a large extent, where the risque parts bordered on coarseness by her delicate acting. Herr Rudolf Krasselt conducted the orchestra with great success and received quite a reception. Miss Painter, Herr Lieban, and Herr Waghalter, the composer, were called before the curtain a number of times.

How to Earn Money at Home.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

HAVE you a camera? Have you stopped taking pictures lately because you really can't afford to invest so much money as the camera constantly requires? Isn't it almost discouraging sometimes to think that some of the things that we like best to do we can't afford to do? Cameras have a way of practically absorbing money, haven't they? But if you really like to take pictures there is no reason why you should stop just because you feel you ought to economize after the holidays.

Here is a letter that tells how one girl kept right on taking pictures, and how she made her camera pay for itself and pay for other things besides:

"I have always been what my friends call a 'camera fiend.' I surely do enjoy taking pictures and developing them and printing them myself. Ever since I had my first little camera, five years ago, I have been an enthusiast. I've taken some beautiful pictures of the country around our town. About the first of November I decided I couldn't afford to take any more pictures for a while, if I wanted to have any money at all for Christmas. I couldn't very well give my friends pictures for Christmas because I had already sent them pictures of everything around town and of all of the family.

"It made me so unhappy to think I'd not be able to take any pictures for a month or two I got really glum. Then one day, when I was reading your column, I read of some woman who had made a good deal of money taking pictures, and I thought maybe it would be worth while trying. So I did. And the success I have had has been most gratifying.

"I made some prints on post cards of my best scenes about town, and I sold them for 5 cents each, and they sold readily. Then I offered to take pictures of children for Christmas books and for calendars. I bought those little calendar mounts and put the pictures on them, and they were very popular.

"One other thing that I did, and that I am sure will bring me many orders—it has brought me a few already—was to take pictures of the guests whom I intended having at a luncheon. These snapshots I took without the knowledge of the girls—that is, I didn't tell them what I wanted to take the pictures for. They were so surprised to find their places at the luncheon by means of their own pictures instead of by their names.

"One woman for whom I made a set of luncheon cards of that sort said her guests were so delighted they talked about the cards most of the afternoon. She told them who made them, and four of the young women have come to me for extra prints to send to their friends. I charged $1.50 a dozen for the cards. That is as reasonable as place cards could be bought of less novel design, and I am sure I shall have many orders.

"I have found that instead of being unable to afford to use my camera I have found through it a most lucrative little business. I live in a medium sized town. I should think a person in the city could have just that much more opportunity because she would have a larger field for her work. To be sure, it might be a little difficult to get her first two or three orders, but after that it would be easy. I hope this little story of my success may help some other woman who loves her camera, but who feels she can't afford to take all of the pictures she would like to take."

One girl has made her camera bring her success. You can, too. Try.

To the January buyers: One of the home workers has made a special price on a three piece kitchen outfit. It consists of a petticoat, a dust cap, and an all over apron. The cap and the apron are trimmed with a colored piping. The set is priced at $1.25. Isn't that a real bargain?

GILBERT K. CHESTERTON'S NEW LONG NOVEL

"A novel by a glad prophet on the rampage—one who views life unconventionally by standing the world on its head. Like a gale on the sea-front Chesterton makes you untidy and even distressed, but leaves you—if puzzled—considerably refreshed. Both his sense and nonsense have a purpose; to blow falsities from their pedestals and trample them into nothingness by the reductio ad absurdum method. 'The Flying Inn' is verbal horse-play by a humorist, mounted on the Rosinante of morality and masquerading as Don Quixote. Its humor is of the reforming kind which vanished with the last Puritan who pulled a long face and cut off a King's head.

"The book's irresponsibility is Gargantuan. It is all against proclaiming truth with a whine; when it preaches most earnestly, it laughs loudest."—Coningsby Dawson, author of "The Garden Without Walls."

NEWS OF CHICAGO CLUBS AND THE SOCIETY WORLD.

Innovations Mark the Second Assembly Ball.

THE assembly ball moved from the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone to the gold ballroom of the Congress hotel for its second dance of the season, given last night. Why? Well, because more room was needed for the modern dances. Can it be but a year since the assembly ball board was in serious discussion as to whether or not the tango should be permitted, and, if some brave dancer dared, just what should be the form of punishment?

For the ball of last night there were three innovations. The first was what one informant termed an "intermittent rag cotillon," meaning the calling of a rag cotillion at will—or at the will of the two trained cotillon leaders, McCormick Blair and John Stevenson. The second innovation was in the serving of a buffet supper all during the evening in the place of the regular five course repast to which the guests were seated on previous occasions. The promenade room of the ballroom, therefore, presented an interesting sight, with its irregular counter, clothed in white and laden with fanciful gelatin and meat mixtures, fruits, and other fancies—quite as pretty a decoration in the series of color as could be found.

The third of the innovations was in the decoration of the ballroom. Usually it is not the custom to decorate the modern ballroom, which in itself is an elaborate affair. But last night the splendid big balcony which is one of the features of the room was outlined with spring flowers—apple blossoms, fresias, and the other dainties of the spring trees and garden—caught with the green of their leaves against the gilded railing.

There remained still another change in the erstwhile program. This was not an innovation except to those who have been accustomed to seeing the older matrons in the receiving line. Last night there stood as hostesses a line of young women, several of whom were serving as an assembly ball hostess for the first time. The line was headed by Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., who wore white satin with jet and a dog collar of diamonds.

Next in line came Mrs. A. A. Sprague in a draped gown of deep pink velvet, caught with fur and finished with a jeweled bodice. Mrs. McCormick Blair was in white satin, with a quaint little rounded coat tunic of green and gold edged with light fur, the bodice being of white net. She wore a necklace of diamonds, with a broad jeweled head band.

Mrs. W. R. Odell was in white satin also, with a white lace bodice and broad green girdle. About her throat was her favorite black velvet band, with jeweled pins. Mrs. John A. Stevenson was in bright green velvet, with a minaret of the velvet edged with ermine, her bodice of jeweled net. Mrs. Howard Gillette stood last in line and wore a white satin gown, with white lace and a dog collar of pearls.

◆

The costumes of an Assembly ball ever are elaborate and interesting, but last night an exceptional number of gowns of unusual designing appeared. Among those seen were the following:

Mrs. Edward Moore—Gown of deep rose pink velvet brocaded in gold. The skirt opened in front to show a cerise lining. About the back was a short triple tunic effect of the brocade, each ruffle outlined with marten.

Mrs. Stanley Field—A draped gown of white satin and lace.

Mrs. Charles B. Pike—A gown of cloth of gold embroidered in long thin silver beads and draped in lace.

Mrs. R. A. Alger of Detroit (who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Pike)—In black satin with diamond dog collar and diamond chain from which hung several diamond pendants.

Mrs. Leroy Fuller—White lace and silvered net over pale lavender satin, with hem edge of marten.

Mrs. A. B. Dick—Dark blue satin embroidered in jet beads.

Mrs. Mark Cummings—Blue and gold brocade.

Mrs. Thomas Hinde—Pale blue brocade, with jeweled net and brown fur.

Mrs. H. H. Walker—Blue satin brocade in silver, opening down entire left side to show triple ruffles of cream lace and finished in back with big lace bow.

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers—Turquoise blue satin with short, tight fitting tunic of satin embroidered in turquoise beads and finished with deep double puff of satin.

Mrs. Charles Garfield King—Rose pink lace embroidered in gold and draped over pink satin with draped sash of alice blue.

Mrs. Albert De Wolf Erskine—Shawl gown of white crêpe, loose bodice and skirt of the crêpe over which were draped three deep ruffles of fringe.

Miss Hilda Bull—White lace gown with short, tight drop skirt of pale lavender velvet, double coat effect of brown chiffon edged with brown fur.

Mrs. A. S. Peabody—White satin, double ruffle of white net, green satin girdle.

Mrs. Charles Hamill—Deep blue satin and tulle.

Miss Alberta Brophy.

Miss Alberta Brophy, who, with her sister, Mrs. William Hoffman G. Logan of Edgewater, is giving a tea on Monday afternoon, is the youngest of the three daughters of Dr. Truman W. Brophy. Miss Brophy in reality should be classed with the debutantes of the year, but she is not making a formal bow to society owing to the fact that Mrs. Brophy is spending the winter in California. Instead, she is going about informally with Mrs. Logan, entering into the festivities of the winter and serving as joint hostess at the afternoon reception which is to be given at the Hollywood.

Daughters of Isabella.

Little Miss Cecile McCormick represented Queen Isabella and Master William Lockow King Ferdinand at the second annual charity ball of the Chicago assembly, National Order of Daughters of Isabella, at the Hotel La Salle last night. The receipts of the dance will be used in creating a fund for a gymnasium for Catholic women of the city, and the 1,300 persons present represented the fourteen courts in Chicago.

Gov. Dunne, who was to have led the grand march with Miss Rose Kelly, sent a telegram late in the evening regretting his inability to attend.

Mrs. Herbert Stone Guest of Mrs. Bryan Lathrop.

MRS. HERBERT STONE—she was Mary McCormick—is to be the guest of honor at a tea Mrs. Bryan Lathrop is to give on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane have cards out for a small tea on Sunday, to be given for other interesting visitors—Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman of New York. Miss Juliet Higginson of Boston is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson, just now, and Mrs. Mowrer, who was Genevieve Winterbotham, has come from her ranch in California and is stopping at the Virginia for a fortnight.

Mrs. Alger of Detroit, widow of Gen. Alger, who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Charles B. Pike, is expecting to return to her home on Monday next, and Mrs. Richard Bissell and John Alsop, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, have returned to their Connecticut homes. On Thursday Mrs. O. Dickinson Street and her 8 months old son, who has been christened O. Dickinson and is the fourth of the name in direct succession, left for their home in New York. Mrs. Street was Evangeline Wean, and, with the infant son, has been here since the holiday season with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lincoln Wean, at Highland Park.

An informal reception and dinner will be given by the members of the St. Paul's Universalist church in the chapel Jan. 28 in honor of their new pastor, Dr. L. Ward Brigham, and Mrs. Brigham.

◆

Miss Frances Warren Springer will give a box party at the opera this afternoon at which the guests will be Miss Barbara Andrews, Miss Rosamond Goodrich, Miss Elizabeth Stone, and Miss Gertrude McCarthy. Mrs. Warren Springer will chaperon the party.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McElwee, who spent December and early January at the Blackstone hotel, determined suddenly to take a western trip instead of going south as usual for the late winter, and left last week for the grand canyon. From there it is their plan to go to Castle Hot Springs, Ariz., where they will remain for a month before going on to California, where they will stay until the spring.

The wedding of Miss Rachel Warner to Augustus W. Eddy, invitations to which were recalled on account of the sudden death of the bride's mother on Monday last, will take place as planned this afternoon at the home of the bride's father, Lansing B. Warner, 942 Michigan avenue, Evanston. Only the members of the immediate families will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Adams of 214 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston, announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Ruth Stonehouse, on Saturday, Jan. 17, to Joseph Anthony Roach of St. Louis.

◆

Miss Leonore Ray, Miss Lois Hoover, Miss Lloyda Smith, Miss Persis Rollins, and Miss Willma Coad are the young women who will distribute the programs at the last Tiffin musical to be given in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel on Monday morning.

Mrs. Helen E. Starrett has issued invitations for a mothers and teachers' conference to be held in the parlors of the Starrett school on Tuesday at 2:30. Mrs. Starrett will read a paper on "Some New Problems on the Education of Girls." Tea will be served, followed by a reading by Mrs. Bertha Gray Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Webster of 4822 Sheridan road, accompanied by their daughters, the Misses Grace and Dorothy Webster, will leave tomorrow for California for an extended trip, returning by the way of New Orleans and Hot Springs.

Sunday Evening Club Reception.

The first of a series of Friday afternoon receptions by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes was held at the Caxton club in the Fine Arts building yesterday afternoon. The guests were persons who attend the regular weekly meetings of the Sunday Evening club, of which Mr. Barnes is president. Notwithstanding the inclement weather the clubrooms were crowded, some of the guests having come from points outside the city. Refreshments were served and a musical program was given by Mrs. Katharine Howard Ward, organist of the club; Oscar Gordon Erickson, conductor of the club choir, and Mrs. Erickson. Mrs. Barnes was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Frank B. Todd, Mrs. E. Hardy, and Mrs. J. F. Henderson.

Antiquarians Hosts to F. Hopkinson Smith.

THE new rooms of the Antiquarians in the northwest section of the lower floor of the Art institute were in their best dress yesterday afternoon for the reception the members of the society tendered F. Hopkinson Smith. The tiled floors had been covered with great rugs, and the walls were hung in the rare tapestries and other weaves which make a part of the collection of antiques the organization has gathered.

In the north room—it is a triple room suite—stood the great table which has done service at many annual receptions of the society, flanked at either end by the cathedral chairs which add their dignity to the occasions. In truth, they are so large and stately that the two pretty young women who on yesterday were their first occupants—Miss Anita Blair and Miss Eleanor Hamill—looked quite like dolls seated for a beautifully planned play tea. The choice of Miss Blair and Miss Hamill as the first of those who alternated in serving the tea of the afternoon was a bit of an innovation.

Usually at the Antiquarian receptions the older members preside at the tables, their daughters having no other part in the festivities than that of guests. Miss Blair wore a ruffled gown of pale pink taffeta in the soft weave now so much the vogue. The frock was trimmed with white lace, and with it Miss Blair wore a black velvet bonnet-hat. Miss Hamill was in a black gown, with a great deal of white lace in its fashioning, her hat a close fitting cap of black, with a crown and outstanding stiff bows of Alice blue moire ribbon.

Later the table was in charge of three of the younger matrons, Mrs. Richard T. Crane II., Mrs. Watson Armour, and Mrs. Stanley Field. Mrs. Crane was in dark purple velvet, with a fancy bodice of white lace combined with pale gray, colors which also were repeated in her small hat. Mrs. Armour was in a draped gown of dark green poplin, with which she wore a black velvet hat, and Mrs. Field wore black velvet with gold embroidery, her hat of black velvet, with aigrettes.

Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson, as the president, practically received alone, although Mrs. F. C. Bartlett, the secretary, and others of the officers and board members stood near, giving welcome to the guests also. Mrs. Ryerson wore a draped gown of silver gray crêpe, with a short Etonlike jacket of brilliant blue taffeta, finished with quaint little ruffles at the elbow, and opening in the front over a lace filled bodice. Her hat was of black, with a touch of the blue.

◆

The guests who came were the members of the society and their friends, which pretty well means the entire society list in Chicago. Mrs. Herbert Stone, who had come on from New York just the day before to be Mrs. John Borden's guest for a fortnight, came with Mrs. Borden, and so had the opportunity of seeing many of the old family friends for the first time. Mrs. Stone has not paid her former friends a visit now for a year or more. Mrs. Henry A. Blair, in pale gray, with a long tunic overdrape of white lace and a pale gray hat with upstanding frill of gray tulle, was an assisting hostess of the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Seeberger and Miss Dorothea Seeberger of Riverside have gone to New York. Mrs. Seeberger and Miss Seeberger expect to sail today for the Mediterranean cruise. They will spend some time in Sicily and then join Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seeberger and Miss Dora Seeberger in Rome, where they are spending the winter. Mr. Seeberger will remain in New York only until after the sailing today.

◆

Judge Theodore Brentano will leave for Europe on Monday, where he will join Mrs. Brentano and their daughter. This is his first vacation in nearly two years, and will extend over some six weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graham Grier (formerly Miss S. Ingeborg Clarke of Newton Center, Mass.), who have been residing at the Hyde Park hotel during the winter months, will occupy apartments at 1328 East Fifty-third street during the absence from the city of Mr. Grier's mother and sister, Mrs. John Alexander Grier and Miss Margaret Graham Grier. Mrs. and Miss Grier, after a trip through the west, will take up their residence in Pasadena, where they expect to remain until the early summer.

Tells of High Living Cost.

The Woman's Neighborhood club of [illegible] Park took a lesson in the high cost [illegible] problem yesterday. W. Lee Lewis, [illegible] professor of chemistry of Northwestern [illegible] sity and city chemist of Evanston, pointed [illegible] some of the increases and the causes. [illegible] the rise in prices had been approximately [illegible] cent since 1897.

"I noted the other day a son [illegible] father for membership in a Y. M. C. A. [illegible] he might learn to swim," he said. "[illegible] thought that means $15 for membership [illegible] maintain the modern expression of the [illegible] swimming hole, in which latter [illegible] tuition were free and bathing suits [illegible] out. It simply illustrates the [illegible] modern family life.

"People are living longer and [illegible] less pain and more pleasures, while [illegible] dom from the ravages of disease, famine, [illegible] war are giving greater and greater opportunity for higher social and cultural development. [illegible] costs more to live nowadays, but it's [illegible] more."

Willing to Correspond.

"NOTE this in your Corner. 'On a Remote Farm,' signed Mrs. C. M. S. Please may I have the address, so that I may send the children some stereoscopic views of Yellowstone park, and perhaps something in the reading line. I can at least write occasionally. HUMANE."

The desired address has gone to you by mail. Your thought of "our" children is benignant. Just fancy what a ray of light to the mother will be your sisterly letters. Such correspondence signifies frequent and friendly remembrances.

No Acknowledgment of Her Gifts.

"You gave me the address of a Mrs. M. for clothes, which I have sent to her. You gave me the name of George W., who asked for a 'speller.' I sent him one, but no answer. I sent him a number of books, but have not heard from him. To Mrs. H. I wrote that I had a package of seventy-five or one hundred postal cards. She is not willing to pay the postage upon them, so if you know of any one else to whom they may go let me know. They are fine, in good shape. Some children's home might like them. "MRS. E. M."

Unless I am mistaken, one parcel of the books (perhaps more) went to one for whom we pray daily in bringing to the Father's merciful notice "all prisoners and captives." He may have reasons you do not suspect for their failure in courtesy. You have the comforting consciousness of having done the work laid to your hand. Nothing can take that from you. I hope you have by now the address we sent you in place of that of Mrs. H. Her expenses in connection with the beautiful task of preparing the Christmas tree have been many.

Another Lot of Patterns.

"It is now more than three months since I wrote to you I had distributed all the patterns I had previously offered in your Corner. I write again to see if you care to offer the articles I have. Piano music for two persons who will pay postage; paper dolls for two or three crippled children, postpaid; pattern for woman's four piece skirt, waist thirty inches; pattern for boy's pajamas, age years; pattern of woman's tucked blouse, bust thirty-eight inches; pattern of two piece skirt, size thirty-six; pattern of a one-quarter length coat, size thirty-six; pattern of a semi-princess dress, plaited skirt, size thirty-six; pattern of a shirtwaist, size thirty-six; pattern of girl's dress, age 12 years. Postage required for patterns. Magazines, also Sunday paper magazines, for any one who will pay freight or postage upon them. Cripples or shut-ins preferred. MRS. B. N. G."

"Who cares for what you offer?" Our slang friends would say sarcastically, "Ask us another!" We say there is no need to repeat the proposition. We hold your address and anticipate gleefully the run upon your hoard of valuables. That part of your letter referring to an exchange for a magazine is omitted, as such mention of names of publications in this column is tabooed.

Helper for Lonely Ones.

"I note a letter from a farm woman who would like to correspond with another woman of congenial tastes. I should like to offer my small help and be placed in correspondence with her. It is not because my own life is not more than filled. It is, with my work and heaps of business correspondence, but my heart goes out to the loneliness of the case. I should feel it a pleasure while here at my desk to add just one more leteer and send a message to the one on the farm, with few letters coming. I do not answer to the request of being derived either from Danish or Norwegian birth, but having had a wide experience and being cosmopolitan I assume these lacking points would not count against me. I could also send her foreign magazines and place a little cheer in her way in the matter of human fellowship. Mrs. B. E. S. inquired for a woman who would be a motherly companion. I have not yet reached the matured age of 45, but I have lived a hundred years in this life's experience, east and west, middle states, in want and poverty, and in comfort and to spare. I know too well what a young wife needs in the way of companionship, advice, and little aids in the practical, ethical and idealistic situations which arise in the lives of all such novices. I see the great need of judicious influence among such, and long to help. Should any of these features prove acceptable to the young wife I shall be glad to hear from her. "JEAN A. R."

I regret that the exigencies of space (or the lack of it) oblige me to withhold portions of this admirable communication from our readers. Every line bespeaks refinement, education, and a depth and largeness of humanity which command our respect and liking. The "farm woman" is fortunate in her correspondent. The same may be said of the lonely unmothered young wife, whose address is now in the hands of the friendly stranger, together with that of the dweller upon the isolated farm.

Painter of "Alone."

"Will you kindly publish, or, better still, reply personally as to who is the artist who painted the beautiful picture 'Alone'? It is a young maiden sitting in a boat, head bent, on the end of the marshes. It is a famous picture, but my subconsciousness refuses to yield up its name. Can you oblige me as to who are the leading song publishers of Chicago? "MRS. W. E. M."

Never having seen the picture to which you refer, I am obliged to pass the query down the line until it reaches those better informed than myself on this head. You will be answered in time. Business addresses are not admitted to the Corner. I advise that you consult the city directory and musical friends.

Plaids for Children an Established Vogue.

THERE does not seem much doubt but that children are more and more adopting the styles of their elders. They follow along the line taken by grown-ups with a precision that speaks well for their reputation as imitators. Naturally there are some things they have escaped from. For instance, they have been spared the minaret tunic and the incoming bustle; they have kept away from the slashed skirt and been indifferent to the questionable charms of the diaphanous and the X ray effects that have been flooding the market for so many months. In fact, their imitations have been on the whole decidedly for their own betterment.

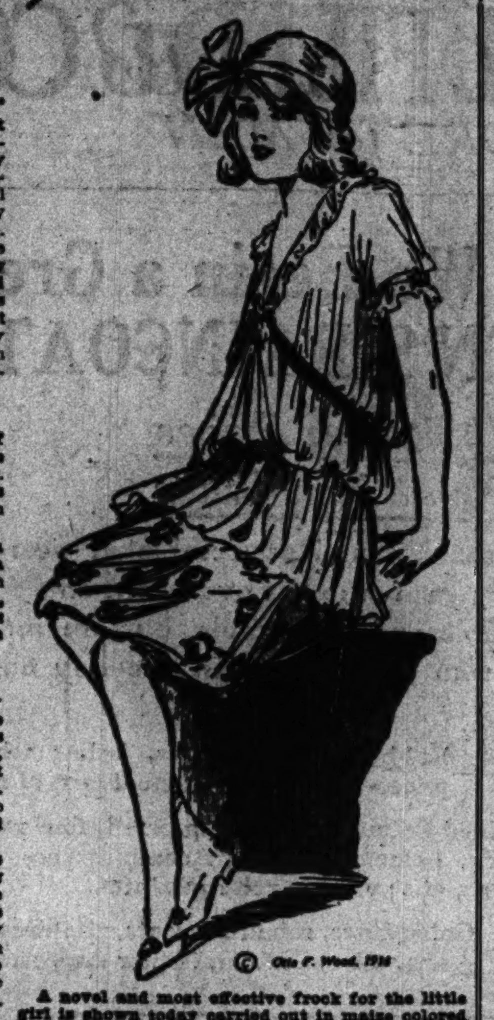
One of the most charming imitations of recent weeks has been in the matter of the plaid. They have taken it up enthusiastically. Now that its vogue for the coming months is an established fact it is being used with lavish hand on children of all ages.

Some times a whole little dress of taffeta is made up in the prettiest, softest plaid, a commingling of reds, and blues, and autumn browns, or again a dress of duvetyn or velvet, both fabrics being popular for youthful wear on dress occasions, is lightened with a sash of brilliant hued Roman ribbon.

Never before have the young been so decorated with ribbons either. Ribbons with the oriental note strongly developed ribbons striped and ribbons plaided; ribbons, in fact, with every conceivable design on them except the flower. Flowered ribbons are not stylish. There may be a few people who will continue to wear them because they are genuinely fond of them. But they will be in the minority.

The belt line on the young girl's dress shows no signs of being any more settled a thing than that on the gowns of her elders. Some times it rises abruptly in the front and is caught there by a corsage bow of some pretty design, for artificial flowers are being worn by the younger generation also, and used to trim hats, adorn belts, and even nestle in the heart of a huge ribbon bow worn on the hair.

Many pretty children's dresses are being shown in the new cotton fabrics which are so attractive and new. Of all the cotton weaves the most attractive one is probably of a crepy nature. It comes with a glazed surface, which is decidedly pretty. It is far from cheap, coming in prices which range from moderate ones to $7.00 and $8.00 a yard. This is really the best time to buy these novelty cotton goods, for there is a wide selection to be had, and the chance of securing the prettiest belongs generally to the early buyer.



A novel and most effective frock for the little girl is shown today carried out in maize colored crepe de chine patterned with roses, with an overdress of flesh pink chiffon and lace trimmed with narrow bands of fur.

Merriam to Speak.

Doris Blake's Advice

By Doris Blake

The number of letters received daily from correspondents who wish to be answered through the columns of "The Tribune" is so large in comparison with the space allotted to those answers that there is necessarily some delay in replying to many of the questions asked of Miss Blake.

If you wish a prompt reply inclose in your letter a stamped, addressed envelope.

Dallying with Decisions.

WE all number among our acquaintances one or more of the "pendulum" type of girl—she who swings this way and that and is forever asking for your advice.

I went to school with Jean. Her bosom friends were always appealed to in confidence. They seemed to exist solely for the purpose of telling Jean what to do when any decision, however trivial, had to be made. Then George came along. Men like to be asked for advice. But how was poor George to know that he was only one of the million expected to form her opinions?

The habit does not change with the married state. The girl who dallies with decisions in her 'teens makes a wife who everlastingly bombards her husband with her whims and wants.

When he proposes to take her to the theater she says: "O, that will be lovely! Where shall we go? To the opera? No; I don't care for Wagner. O, not to 'Hamlet'—that's too highbrow. You think the musical comedy at the Garden tiresome—but the music is awfully pretty. O, very well, if you decide that way."

And when, at the end of the evening, George has not the appearance of a man who has radiantly enjoyed himself, she says, with acidity: "Well, why didn't you go to the opera if you wanted to? I'm sure it was for you to choose."

The girl who asks a hundred opinions invariably gives credit or blame in the wrong place. And she loses all power to decide for herself and stand by her own reasoning.

You must be your own guide if you want to "make good." Do your own thinking, your own choosing, and your own work.

Don't be always undecided. Settle each little problem as it comes along with quick thought and prompt action. Use your own reasoning powers.

The next time you find yourself saying, "O, dear, what shall I do?" instead of turning in a flutter of excitement to your nearest neighbor just try the result of asking yourself. You will soon enjoy your new found capacity.

He Whispered Her Name in Church.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a country girl of 15. I do not go with the boys, but when I go out I always go with my father mother or sister. The other night, when church was dismissed, we started out, and there were two boys standing right at the head of the stairs, leaning out over the steps. So when I stepped by them one of them (the one I am acquainted with) whispered loudly to the other, 'There's L. B.'—calling my name. The other said, 'Gee! ain't she pretty!' 'You bet!' was the first one's reply. Now, I am rather good looking, but I don't like that style of boys whispering to each other (where I can hear them) about who I am or how I look. Do you? If he wanted the strange boy to know me, then why shouldn't he have introduced him rather than to whisper? How should I have acted in this case—ignore them (which I did), or should I say something back? BROWN EYES."

The boys were ungentlemanly in whispering your name in church. If the stranger wanted to know you, the boy whom you know should have introduced him to you. You acted properly in ignoring him. If the boy says anything to you about the circumstance, tell him that he embarrassed you greatly by his ungentlemanliness, and I am sure he will not do anything of that sort again.

She Likes to Skate.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 15 and often indulge in sports. I like skating very much and often some of my school friends (boys) ask me to skate with them. My father objects to it. All the girls do up here. What shall I do?

"Often us girls get up picnics together and the girls like to invite a boy to go along. Is it proper to if you have a chaperon? My father and mother object. If it is all right, what shall I do to convince them? They say I can't have any boy friends until I am 21. Is it right? FRECKLES."

I see no harm in schoolmates skating together or having little picnics in the summer, provided a chaperon is present. Some of the best influences in life are those which boys and girls have over each other in their schooldays. Why don't you invite your mother to be the chaperon of the party. She surely would not object to your accepting invitations in which she was included.

Wants to Be More Attractive to Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a young man of our town and I think he loves me in return. He leaves his boy friends and girl friends and pleasures to be near me, as I am a great chum of his sisters, but he doesn't ask me to go out as much as I'd like. It isn't that he is poor, as he is well to do. How can I be more attractive to him and get into his inner life? A READER."

Are you not a little exacting? If the young man prefers to be with you and "leaves his friends and others to be near you" he must surely be very fond of you. Do not be unhappy because he does not take you to as many places of amusement as you think he should. Accept the attentions that he gives you and do not worry about the ones he does not extend to you.

Red for a Rainy Day.

[Copyright: 1914: By Lillian Russell.]

[illegible] paragraphers are poking fun at a woman lecturer who told a gathering of school teachers to get away from monotony in dress and who recommended red in the costumes of both men and women teachers as an antidote for dull and dreary days in the schoolroom. The lecturer was absolutely right in her advice and the paragraphers wrong. Colors have an influence on the mental and physical condition of men and women, as well as children.

There has been a belief among many good people that refinement and vivid colors are not compatible—that the duller the hue the finer the decoration. Too much refinement, however, is apt to be depressing and the average eye is not trained to rhapsodize over off shades of greenish gray. Lively blues, greens, reds, and yellows are frank, joyous, honest colors, which stir up the mind and limber up the body like a march played by a concert band. Classical symphonies, executed with highly trained skill by specialists in wood and string, delight those people who have passed from the lower grades to the high school of musical education. But 99 per cent of us would rather listen to the village band playing a lively march.

It's the same way with colors. There are few capable of distinguishing, let alone naming, the various shades into which the color experts have divided the elementary tones found in the rainbow. Of course there can be a lack of harmony and actual discord by the joining together of such colors as have no natural sympathy with each other. They are teaching these things in the school now, and after a while every primary school graduate will know something about contrasts and harmonies.

Women are more susceptible to color influences than men, doubtless because they have for ages arrayed themselves in fabrics and plumage that vied with the rainbow. So women, in arranging their homes, should try to study brightness in color effects. It isn't too much to say that bodily health is often a matter of surroundings. If you keep your mind cheerful your lungs will work better and your heart beat more smoothly. Maybe that dullness of brain and lassitude of body are due to the colors that your eye meets morning, noon, and night.

Remember: Change of color is sometimes as good as change of air.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

MRS. M. S.: If you wish smooth elbows do not use them as props. The elbows must be taken care of each night, as well as the face and hands, unless you want to have them dark and hard. Scrub them well with a hand brush and plenty of soap and warm water, then rub a good cold cream into them. This will make them soft and gradually make them smooth. I shall be happy to send you the formula for an excellent cold cream if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

ELSIE: I am answering your questions in the order in which you asked them. It is not advisable to steam the face, as it leaves it shriveled, yellow, and without elasticity. Dash cold water on the face after using the hot. Bay rum is good for the hair. It stimulates the oil glands to activity. Egg shampoos are good for the hair. Break a couple of eggs over the head and rub them well into the hair, then wash the hair with warm water and rinse thoroughly. Cocoa butter is not the same as cocoanut oil. They are two different articles. Both are good for rounding out the throat.

H. B.: You cannot buy my formulas already prepared at any drug store. I shall be glad to send you formulas for any skin food and cold cream upon receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

S. Y.: Girls with brown hair and blue eyes can wear almost any color. The best way to do is to match as nearly as possible the color of your eyes, getting perhaps a shade darker. This will make your eyes appear larger and darker. I should think you could wear the greens, blues, reds, tans, but not the real dull browns or black. Avoid all dark and somber colors.

Japanese Crosnes.

OUR finest grocers and the dealers in the exceptionally rare and expensive foods are having a hard time spelling the name of what we may safely call a fashionable vegetable. The word is pronounced exactly as though it were spelled "crone," the name for an unatractive old woman, but until corrected the sellers have been labeling the vegetable "Japanese crowns."

Cooked in cream this is a delicious vegetable, but perhaps not enough so, or of sufficient food value, to justify paying 40 cents a pound for it. Yet a dealer charging this amount is selling fifty pounds a week to those who can afford to buy anything they may desire.

As to its name, we may learn the wherefore of it by turning to Alfred Suzanne's book of 300 vegetable recipes. He says that the crosnes were originally from Japan, are of recent importation (in France), and not extensively used.

"Its form is bizarre and resembles somewhat the root of dog's grass (chiendent). (A French dictionary describes this grass as causing great ravages in agriculture.) The Japanese name is 'stachys,' but in France it is called by the name of the one who first acclimated and cultivated it, M. Pailleux de Crosnes. The taste of the vegetable is midway between that of the Jerusalem artichoke and the globe artichoke. Its cultivation is easy, and its principal merit is that it is gathered at a time when fresh vegetables are rare."

The French often write the name "crônes du Japon," as well as "crosnes." But neither the French cookery book nor Escoffier, who is now counted an Englishman, give as definite directions for preparing this vegetable as does a Belgian cook who classes it strictly with the Jerusalem artichoke, all the recipes for one being good for the other, with the exception of a detail or two of the preparation. This cook says to rub off the skin with salt and a towel.

No matter what the final finish, it must always be parboiled in boiling salted water first, and in general fifteen minutes are quite sufficient for this. If cooked longer it is likely to go to pieces in the after cooking, and this is highly undesirable.

TO PREPARE THE CROSNES—Cut off each little dry tip, and rub off the yellow skin if a fine dish is to be made. This skin turns dark in the cooking, and though the labor of removing it from the tiny vegetable is considerable, it should be done. One of the recipes directs that an onion, an eschalot, a laurel leaf, and a clove be boiled in the water for fifteen minutes before the crosnes are put in, but most people will prefer to get the full flavor of this rarity.

After the crosnes are boiled they are cooked in a little unsalted butter, and then a little cream may be added and cooked away, or they are put into a white sauce which should stand until the two are well blended, or into a sauce of some similar nature as to its foundation. Lemon juice is added to the white sauce in some cases.

The simplest way to prepare them is to pour over them melted butter. They are marinated in oil and vinegar, dipped in a fritter batter, and fried. The garnish generally recommended is chopped parsley, cooked and uncooked.

Farmer's bulletin No. 295, on "Potatoes and Other Root Crops for Food," published in 1910, devotes about a page to this vegetable under the heading "Stachys." It says:

"This vegetable, known to the botanists as Stachys sieboldi, has been introduced into America from Japan and has a number of different names, such as Japanese potato, Chinese artichoke, chorogi, etc., but the name stachys seems to have been adopted as the common one in this country. The plant is a small perennial belonging to the mint family, and produces just below the ground a multitude of small, white, crisp edible tubers, varying from an inch to two and a half inches in length, and about one-half an inch in thickness, and marked by irregular spiral rings, which give them a corkscrew like appearance." (These rings are not spiral, but divide the little vegetable into separate sections, which makes it resemble a worm.)

The bulletin goes on to tell where the vegetable has been tested and found easy of cultivation and pleasant in taste—owing to its crispness—and how it is harvested, what is its food value, etc.

ERNOR DUNNE DECLARES FOR SIMPLIFIED SPELLING.

ittee of State Teachers' Association Makes Public Letter from Executive Favoring Revision.

The committee on simplified spelling of the State Teachers' association yesterday made public a letter from Gov. Dunne, who declares himself in favor of a spelling reform. He pleads for a uniform system indicating identical sounds. The governor's letter follows:

"You may quote me as emphatically in favor of simplifying our awkward, complicated spelling. After we have spelled a word, why in the name of common sense do we go back on a useless ugh? Can anybody tell why we write ph when we mean f? What earthly difference does it make whether we write ei or ie or ea or ee in believe, deceive, concrete, retreat, defeat, etc.? Why not write the accented vowel the same in all of them? Why 'succeed' but 'recede'? Why 'conceal' but 'conceit,' 'condone' but 'proceed,' 'receive' but 'receipt'? Why do our schoolmasters and schoolma'ams perpetuate these absurd stickers of childhood, yes, and of governors and university presidents as well? Of course, the intelligent among them know that the whole abominable mixup is a fearful and needless burden on children as well as adults.

"While the schoolmaster is to blame for keeping these absurdities, he does not dare remove them because we parents and others denounce him the moment he does it. Our good women are doing well in fighting child labor of today. Why do they not take compassion on the millions and millions of children of the future and save them the tearful labor which they are compelled to waste by our present spelling? If our women would take hold of our spelling reform they could solve it in a generation."

ENTS BELONG TO BRIDE, INDIANAPOLIS JUDGE RULES.

Refuses Demand of Husband, Seeking Divorce, for Wedding Gifts Held by Wife.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—To whom do the wedding presents belong—you or your wife? Answer—your wife.

That is the ruling made today in the court of Judge Edward L. Dietz. Judge Dietz made the decision at the behest of Maurice Geckler, who sued to replevin certain gifts he and his wife had received at the time of their marriage. Geckler wanted his wife to turn over to him articles of silverware, cut glass, and a lace centerpiece. The Gecklers have separated and a suit for divorce is pending. Judge Dietz pointed out that "the invitations are sent out by the bride's parents, aren't they? And when you accept their invitation you are received at the wedding by them and turn your present over to them or the bride. That is, they act for the bride in receiving the presents."

WOMEN FINED FOR VAGRANCY FAIL TO MAKE COURT FIGHT.

Prosecution in Morals Tribunal Pleased Over Step Toward Driving Commercialized Vice Out of Chicago

The new method adopted to drive commercialized vice out of Chicago—prosecuting disorderly women for vagrancy—was tried out yesterday in Morals court before Judge Jacob Hopkins. Assistant Corporation Counsel George L. Reker had expected a bitter contest which did not materialize, and he believes he has found the solution of the problem.

Nine women were arraigned. All pleaded guilty and each was fined $20 and costs.

It was not what the vice ring had expected. The plan outlined by one of the members a short time ago was to have the women plead not guilty, pay a $5 fine and then appeal. Each woman was to be taxed $15, this to cover the fees for bondsman, a lawyer, and fine.

It was found the courts are fixing a $400 bond pending appeals and the gang decided the risk of having the whole crowd of women forfeit the bonds was too great.

It was declared subsequent raids will bring charges of vagrancy in each case.

NO DOUBT AS TO WIDOWHOOD OF MRS. HARRIET E. HONORE.

Woman Who Claims Sixth of $1,500,000 Estate Married to Harry H. Honore Jr. in New York in 1908.

Attorney Alexander H. Heyman, counsel for Mrs. Harriet E. Honoré, widow of the late Harry H. Honoré Jr., yesterday stated that a mistake had been made in connection with an article bearing on Mrs. Honoré's suit against Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Ida Honoré Grant, Judge Lockwood, Nathaniel K., Adrian C., and Henry H. Honoré Sr. Mrs. Honoré claims one-sixth of the estate of $1,500,000 left in trust for the Honoré children.

An article was published yesterday, a portion of it referring to Mrs. Honoré as "a woman who calls herself Mrs. H. H. Honoré Jr."

"There is no doubt whatever but that Mrs. Honoré is the widow of Harry H. Honoré Jr.," said Attorney Heyman. "They were married at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York on May 11, 1908. The members of the Honoré family in previous transactions have admitted this."

The answer to Mrs. Honoré's suit states that "these defendants neither admit nor deny that complainant was lawfully joined in marriage with Harry H. Honoré Jr." This led to the mistake.

Movie Theater Owner Fined.

SAYS BARE BODY TO THE LIGHT IF YOU WOULD AVOID CANCER.

Dr. Thomas S. Blair of the Medical Council Points to Old Greeks as an Example of Health.

New York, Jan. 23.—Under the title "Light Starvation as a Cause of Cancer" Dr. Thomas S. Blair of the Medical Council advocates in the February issue of that publication "a moderate exposure of the whole surface of the body to the sunshine, as the old Greeks used to do," as a means of preventing a great deal of cancer.

The writer asserts there is no history of much cancer among the Greeks, "despite their elaborate civilization."

While he does not believe that sunshine would cure advanced cancer, Dr. Blair maintains that it might prevent a vast deal of it if reasonably employed along with radium and the X-ray.

Many authorities are quoted to show that cancer is rare among the races which have not adopted the white man's methods of dress. Man is the only animal, the writer declares, that insulates nearly the whole surface of the body from the light rays of the sun.

Nature's Remedy For Constipation

Nature has provided an ideal Laxative Water that will purify your blood, keep your stomach and intestines clear and promptly relieve Constipation. Don't take a drastic Purgative water which drains you and makes you feel weak and listless. Take a mild, gentle and pleasant natural laxative which gently stimulates and effectively operates without bad effects.

Hunyadi János Water

Is bottled at the Springs in Hungary in its original state. It has just the right composition, needs no adulteration, is not concentrated, not fortified; just natural; otherwise the Government would not permit the word "natural" on the label. Physicians all over the world prescribe it. Don't let any one persuade you to take a laxative water which is artificial, irritating and harmful. The Label is your protection. Look for the word Natural thereon. Buy a bottle to-day at your Druggist's. Be sure to get what you ask for.

READY TO BEGIN STRIKE INQUIRIES

House Mining Committee Waits Only on Congress; Opposition Indignant.

MOYER REPORT TODAY?

Miners' Convention Expels Local Union, Alleging Its Motive Is to Spy.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—The action of the house Democratic caucus last night in ordering an investigation of the Michigan and Colorado mine strikes, thus repudiating the contrary decision of the majority of the rules committee, created a sensation among congressmen today.

The four Democratic members of the rules committee who voted against an investigation are indignant, and Representatives Garrett of Tennessee and Hardwick of Georgia informed several colleagues that they contemplated resigning from the committee.

An amended resolution to authorize the investigations as agreed upon by the caucus was introduced today by Representative Keating of Colorado and probably will be acted upon under a special rule early next week.

The committee on mines and mining, of which Representative Foster of Illinois is chairman, is ready to undertake the investigation without delay. It is probable that two subcommittees will be appointed to conduct the inquiry—one in Michigan and the other in Colorado.

Miners Expel Local Union.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 23.—On charges that it was an organization maintained by a detective agency solely for the purpose of getting a spy into the convention, Local Union 979 of Pocahontas, W. Va., was expelled by the convention of the United Mine Workers of America here today.

The attack on the union was started by A. R. Watkins of Yorkville, O., an international board member, who said it was dangerous for a union miner to appear in the neighborhood of Pocahontas.

"Show the spy to us and we'll take care of him," said Thomas Cairns of Charleston, W. Va., president of the district in which Pocahontas is located.

While it was stated in the convention that it had been impossible to obtain any information against the union, the resolution to expel it from the organization was adopted unanimously amid cheers.

Will Push Pension Laws.

The convention voted to further a campaign for federal old age and mothers' pension laws and for liability and compensation laws.

Several resolutions directed against the militia and the Boy Scout movement have been introduced, but the committee has not announced its action yet. One of these resolutions reads:

"Be it resolved, That this organization go on record as opposed to any of its members joining the militia, and that the organization oppose the Boy Scout movement as harmful to the best interests of the working people."

Quiet in Colorado.

Trinidad, Colo., Jan. 23.—Quiet today succeeded the riotous scenes of yesterday afternoon, when several were injured and twenty arrests were made when the state troops dispersed a parade of striking coal miners and their families.

BUTTS COMMITTEE RESUMES INVESTIGATION ON FEB. 9.

Inquiry Into Million Dollar Voting Machine Deal Soon Will Be On Again, Chairman Says.

The Butts legislative committee investigating the million dollar voting machine deal, is preparing to resume operations in Chicago about Feb. 9. Representative Lucas I. Butts of Peoria, chairman of the committee, made the announcement while in Chicago yesterday.

Mr. Butts was in conference with Charles S. Deneen, attorney for the committee.

"There is no question the committee will have a report to make to the legislature if a special session is called by Gov. Dunne," Chairman Butts said. "We are hopeful that his call will include a consideration of the voting machine matter. If there is no special session we will have a complete report in readiness for submission to the regular session of the general assembly in 1915."

WORTHINGTON TO QUIT ALTON: RESULT OF ROAD'S EARNINGS?

Union Pacific Interests Reported to Be Dissatisfied with Administration—W. G. Bierd to Take Post.

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—B. A. Worthington, who was elected president of the Chicago and Alton railroad in June, 1912, is shortly to leave that company, it was learned today. He will be succeeded by W. G. Bierd, now vice president and general manager of the Minneapolis and St. Louis.

Mr. Worthington was put in charge of the Alton at the request of Union Pacific interests, who were greatly dissatisfied over the poor showing which the company had been making. Neither Worthington nor Bierd had resigned yet, it was said, but the change had been agreed upon.

The Alton's report for 1913, issued a few days ago, showed the largest gross and the smallest net earnings in the company's history.

WHERE 'WE WILL' THERE'S A WAY
Chicago's New Proverb.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

There is something uncanny about it. The eye runs away for miles over the level brown swamps and lowlands of the Sag valley, unbroken by house or tree, until in the distance the wooded ridges climb up to block the view. Not a man is in sight, the whole landscape is dead, silent, motionless. Then, suddenly, an enormously long, thin steel arm, like the arm of a hidden giant, lifts a hundred feet above the dead reeds. There is no noise, no clouds of smoke or puffs of escaping steam. Only before one's eyes the high end of that great arm performs a complete circle in the air.

DANGLING from it by an almost invisible wire is something like a huge wheelbarrow. At the far side of the circle the barrow discharges its contents. The arm, with its empty burden, drops down again below the tops of the reeds.

"Look!" Half a mile away across the marsh a second steel arm, like the first, leaps up and spins round on its end, carrying its great hand at the end of its reach a hundred and twenty-five feet away. It disappears and still further away a third makes its appearance. Presently one learns to time their coming. Once every minute each of them rises and shakes its fist at the world.

ALMOST all the way from Blue Island to its junction with the main drainage channel at the Sag bridge the new Calumet-Sag drainage ditch is now in process of construction.

At Blue Island, near One Hundred and [illegible] street, a huge intersecting sewer, running south and west from Lake Michigan and Ninety-second street, will discharge into the new ditch all the sewage of Pullman, Harvey, Kensington, Hegewisch, Dalton, Riverdale, and the rest of the Calumet region, which is now carried by the Big and Little Calumet rivers into Lake Michigan.

At least $8,000,000 of public funds will go into the making of this great engineering work, which has been under way for nearly two years and which it will take three years more to complete.

Yet not one Chicago citizen in a hundred has any clear idea of the plan or has ever wasted an hour in looking at the work in progress.

TO people with an idea for the picturesque the ride of fifty miles up and down the route of the new ditch is likely to prove surprising.

Suppose one leaves the car and wades for fifty feet through the inevitable mud to the top of the low spoil bank.

First of all, one is certain to be struck by the appearance of his neighbors. They number only two. The chief is an old man, with a short white beard, cut square across the bottom. His upper lip is shaved. He wears a faded blue blouse. Not until the eye drops to his feet is the picture complete. He is wearing a pair of huge wooden shoes and by one hand he is holding as complete a tiny Dutchman as ever the dikes of Holland produced.

BELOW him runs the wide black gash in the prairie and on the opposite bank is anchored one of those giant steel arms. The arm itself is 125 feet long, built of thin steel chords. Wire cables dangling from its end support the bucket, a heavy iron construction which sinks its teeth in the loose dirt under the pull of the cable like a hog rooting for acorns.

Every minute the bucket bites two and a half cubic yards of spoil out of the bottom of the ditch and deposits it on the bank 200 or more feet away.

The silent power which keeps all this mechanism in motion comes down the line of the ditch on a thin copper wire. Working twenty hours a day, with only a dozen men divided into two shifts, a single electric shovel lifts 2,500 cubic yards of dirt a day.

TWENTY years ago, when the main drainage channel was being dug, it took 700 or 800 men to do as much work in a day as one of these silent monsters accomplished. That explains the silence and loneliness of life along the new ditch and to some extent, also, it makes clear why so many men are at present out of work.

But the steam shovel, with its arm which can span a circle of 250 feet at one reach, is not the only strange mechanism which is at work in the midst of the flat lands of the Sag valley. In the center of one section, where the sluggish streams running through the swamps are widest, stands a sort of floating house, which steams and pants and snorts incessantly, all to no apparent purpose. The sharpest eye will fail to detect any spoil being lifted from the bottom of the water filled ditch. It is an hydraulic dredge, pumping up the slime and muck from the center of Worth township and carrying it through pipes several hundred feet to be poured out on the banks in a semi-liquid form.

QUITE forgetting the influence of the new ditch in keeping the sewage of 690,000 people from polluting the waters of Lake Michigan, it is certain that the Calumet-Sag ditch will be worth millions of dollars to the low and swampy lands of Worth and Summit townships, and, in fact, of the whole Calumet region, both in Illinois and Indiana.

Already one sees hundreds of acres of land, heretofore entirely covered with water, broken to the plow and a single glance at the black, loamy soil is sufficient to indicate that here may be grown vegetables enough to supply all Chicago.

Simply as a plan to drain the swamps around the lower end of Lake Michigan the Calumet-Sag channel might be justified. Certainly the lucky men who own this land are to be congratulated that they are having the necessary ditches dug at public expense and for quite another purpose.

THE big intercepting sewer, with a maximum diameter of thirteen feet, which is to carry all the sewage from Ninety-third street and the lake down by gravity to the town of Blue Island, has not yet been begun and the plans for it have not yet been made. It will cost about $2,000,000.

At its Blue Island terminus a pumping station is to be built for the purpose of lifting the contents of the sewer up about ten or twelve feet into the open ditch. It is on this ditch that work is now under way. At least ten miles out of fourteen are being worked on.

And with the completion of the ditch three years off the price of land in the Sag valley has risen from $30 or $50 an acre to $150 or more.

TEACHER WHO SHOOK BOY FINED AND TRANSFERRED.

Asserts Youth Was Unruly and Peril to Other Children in Fire Drill.

Miss Nora Morton of 5528 Leland avenue, teacher in the fifth grade at the Marquette school, was fined a month's wages yesterday and transferred by the trial committee of the school management committee of the board of education for shaking an unruly boy.

The trial of Miss Morton lasted four hours. She took numerous teachers to the board rooms to testify to her good character and reputation. Jacob Cohen brought his father and two companions along to testify he had been shaken. Miss Morton admitted shaking the boy, however, so the testimony of his witnesses was not taken.

"It was during a fire drill," Miss Morton said. "The children were hurrying down the stairs. In the Marquette school we empty the building in about two minutes. This boy shoved the line as the children were going down the stairs. He might have thrown a number of them to the floor with serious consequences at such a time.

"I took him out of the line and shook him for the act."

EX-PASTOR'S LETTERS TO GIRL FIGURE IN ALIENATION SUIT.

Ludwig Hansen Files Documentary Evidence at Aurora in Suit Following Obtaining Divorce by His Wife.

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Letters to "dear girl," declared to have been written by John P. Glass, formerly a Chillicothe (O.) minister, are stacked in the Circuit court clerk's office as evidence submitted by Ludwig Hansen.

Hansen is suing the former preacher for $10,000 for alienation of his former wife's affections, holding Glass responsible for Mrs. Hansen's successful suit for divorce last fall.

Hansen says he obtained the letter from his wife's trunk. He says he still loves her, although he did not contest her suit. One of the letters is postmarked Joliet, the writer observing:

"I would not say that I love you, for I am not sure I ever really loved any one or that I know what real, true love is. But I will say this much: I think so much of you that if we were both free and you would have me I would marry you tomorrow. Do you understand that? Dear girl, I would give a good deal if you would let me love you. Some of the neighbors looked me over when I rang the bell."

COMMITTEE OPENS HEARING ON SCHOOL SITE DEAL TODAY.

Aldermen Provide Special Reports Containing Records Needed to Reach Conclusion on Cases.

A joint investigation of the purchase of a school site at Lawndale avenue and Garfield boulevard will be begun this morning by a subcommittee of the council committee on schools and the special school board committee appointed by President Reinberg to inquire into this and other deals of the same nature.

The material for the conference was provided for the council committee yesterday in a preliminary report prepared by Maj. James Miles of the efficiency division of the civil service commission and Todd Lunsford, assistant corporation counsel assigned to aid the committee in its work.

The Miles report describes at length the methods used in purchasing school property and takes up the history of this specific case from the time the site was mentioned in a letter of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young on Dec. 6, 1912, until the acquisition of the last frontage in December. This record includes the changes of ownership by transfers to Julius M. Weisskopf, Joseph Weisskopf, Adolph Ball, and Charles L. Keller. The figures cited indicate they paid or contracted to pay $18,150 for property for which the school board later paid them $29,103.

Upon the suggestion of Ralph C. Otis, one of the recently appointed trustees, Chairman Joseph F. Ryan named a subcommittee of eight aldermen to sit with President Reinberg's committee at the board rooms at 11 o'clock this morning.

HOYNE DROPS D. W. BERRY CASE

State's Attorney Decides He Does Not Want Man Held at Lansing, Mich.

After Gov. Dunne had served legal notice on Gov. Ferris of Michigan asking the surrender of Daniel W. Berry from Lansing, Mich., to stand trial in Chicago and Berry had retained counsel and a hearing had been held and a second hearing granted, State's Attorney Hoyne decided yesterday he did not want Berry.

The requisition papers stated Berry was wanted in Chicago for contributing to the dependency of a child. At the hearing on Wednesday Gov. Ferris said he was convinced there was something wrong with the case, but indicated he could do nothing but honor the papers. As a concession to Berry's lawyers he agreed to withhold signature until next Monday.

Mr. Hoyne's telegram apparently ends the case. His first assistant, Frank Johnston Jr., said last night he knew nothing of the case. The detective bureau had no further information.

GRAND OPERA TENOR VICTOR IN $100,000 ACTION BY GIRL.

New York Jury Decides Florencio Constantino, Spanish Singer, Did Not Promise to Marry Chorus Girl.

New York, Jan. 23.—Florencio Constantino, the Spanish grand opera tenor, has won the breach of promise action for $100,000 damages brought against him by Marcolle Hontabet, a chorus girl. A jury in the Supreme court decided today that Constantino never promised to marry her.

Miss Hontabet told the jury how she met the tenor in a Boston street and how he had promised to make her an artist "and the wife of the great Constantino." She was followed by the defendant, who testified he never mentioned marriage to her.

"She accosted me in the street one day," he explained, "and said she had known me in Paris and that she wanted to go to the opera and hear me sing. I gave her tickets."

He declared whatever courting was done was on her part.

Miss Hontabet's lawyer wanted to know if the tenor was not in love with Alice Nielsen and Alicia Del Pina. He admitted he knew of these singers, but denied emphatically that he ever was in love with either of them.

ACCUSE HEAD OF OAK FOREST.

Chicago Undertakers Charge Mullenbach Favors Establishments in Institution's Vicinity.

The Chicago Undertakers' association yesterday presented to the county board charges against James Mollenbach, superintendent of the Oak Forest institution. They say he opposes the establishment of a branch of a Chicago establishment there and favors the undertakers in the vicinity. While this was being considered, County Agent Meyer mentioned that certain local undertakers learn of deaths at the county hospital before the victim's relatives are informed, and use their knowledge to get business. This was referred to the investigating committee.

JOBFINDER HEDGE ATTACKS CRITICS

Asserts the Rev. Johnston Myers' "25 Jobs a Day" Proves His Argument There Is Work.

CALLS IDLE "SHIFTLESS."

Says Country Wide Advertising of Free Food, Clothes, and Shelter Brings 'Hobos' to Chicago.

Harry M. Hedge, head of the department of physiology at the Crane Technical High school, who made an experiment a week ago to see whether it really was impossible to obtain employment in Chicago—and found four jobs in three hours—replied to his critics yesterday. It has been charged he did not make a fair test.

Mr. Hedge says his critics have missed the point of his first recital. He offers more argument and says Chicago is a mecca for the shiftless "bums" of the country, as a result of the widely advertised free food and lodging institutions.

As to the Rev. Mr. Myers.

"Among the first letters I received in a list of more than seventy was one from the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church," remarked Mr. Hedge. "In the letter he said he had made my statement to his family of 800 'down and outs,' and they invited me to speak before them on Saturday morning. I received the invitation kindly and would gladly have gone to do so had I received anything like gentlemanly treatment when I called up over the phone in regard to the matter. I was told I either was a liar or worse and that I could not prove I could get a job.

"I had stated I went out and in three hours had landed four jobs. Mr. Myers said that would be impossible for any man to do, for with the 800 to 1,000 reporting to him every morning for their coffee and rolls he found it a difficult proposition to place more than from fifteen to twenty-five a day. 'And you know, Mr. Hedge,' he said, 'that is but a drop in the bucket against so large a number.'

Says Statement Is Proved.

"I cannot see what license he had to take exception to my statement of getting four jobs when he admits he is able to get fifteen to twenty.

"Why do the people who are on the farms and railroads making good money in the open season pour into the city every winter? The answer is that they think they can get work and that if they cannot, they will be taken care of somehow. That they should come to us each year is wrong. The large part of them either do not care to work or they would rather half starve than work up nerve enough to do something they never had done before.

"Conditions are grossly overdrawn. The men who are now in Chicago 'with no underclothes and their outer clothes in tatters' are subjects for charity and have nothing to do with the commercial conditions. The market of labor should not be flooded by them, but measures should be taken to discourage this class of men from coming to the city.

"I looked for two jobs that any man with or without an education could hold, one job as a clerk and one as a tradesman. I landed all four, showing there are places open for the better and the poorer types—who wish work."

EYE WITNESS TO DOUBLE MURDER FOUND IN HOSPITAL

Police Believe Samuel Flossi Lured Sicilian Bankers to Death.

LINKED TO URBANA KILLING

One Victim Had Letter Concerning Bail for Slayer of Charles Cotalino.

WIDOW AND FRIENDS SEEK REVENGE

Samuel Flossi, the only eye witness to the killing of Anthony Puccio and Rosario Dispenza, was found last night by the police. He is in the Columbus hospital with a bullet in his forehead.

He was wounded when the first of the two banking partners was killed. He ran away and hid himself. The police believe he lured Puccio to his death and failed to get into safety before the firing began.

Puccio and Dispenza owned the Banca Siciliana at Milton avenue and Hobbie street, the wine room in the rear, and the saloon at 1031 Milton avenue, which they purchased last week from Frank and Joseph Spatafora.

Leaders in Rival Societies.

The two victims are said to have been leaders in the Mano Nera (Black Hand society) and directors of the Mano Bianca (White Hand), which was organized to exterminate the former. They are alleged to have threatened, stabbed, and shot various former citizens of Little Sicily. Knowing the depositors of their bank as they did, they were enabled, the police say, to select moneyed targets for Black Hand letters. This was suspected both by the police and many Sicilians.

A year ago the Puccio-Dispenza bank was blown up. The bankers were threatened repeatedly. Both carried revolvers.

Friday night Dispenza went to the Michigan Central depot to see the Spataforas off to Italy. Puccio was left in charge of the saloon. Here Flossi's story begins. The police do not believe it.

Here's Flossi's Story.

"I was in the saloon last night," Flossi said. "Puccio told me to go outside and watch. I didn't know what he meant, but I did as he told me. A few minutes later he came out. He had on his hat and overcoat. He turned and looked toward a window across the street. I heard a shot. Puccio fell. I was stunned. I put my hand to my head. It was wet. I was afraid. So I ran and hid."

The police found Puccio lying on the sidewalk in front of his saloon. They put the body into an ambulance. They heard about the man who had run, and trailed him by his blood to his house.

It was at this time that Dispenza returned from the depot. Tony Oliver, barber, and Joe Buffalo, bartender, were with him. The two said good-by to Dispenza, who remained alone looking at a pool of blood where his friend had lain.

Second Shotgun Fired.

Then the second sawed-off shotgun roared from a passageway across the street and Dispenza dropped in the blood of Puccio. His wife and daughters ran from their house across the street.

They wet their hands in his blood and daubed their faces, repeating oaths of vengeance.

The police, by this time searching the premises at 900 Townsend street, heard the second shot and hurried back. Two shotguns were found in a passageway between two buildings across the street. The weapons gave no clew to the slayers. In almost every home in Little Sicily one might find the same kind of weapon—sawed off on the barrel and the stock so that it may be concealed beneath the coat.

Letter Found on Puccio.

The two bodies were taken to a morgue in Division street. There the detectives found a letter in Puccio's pocket. It was written on the stationery of Acton & Acton, lawyers, in Champaign, Ill., and addressed to Anton D'Andra, 2201 Wentworth avenue.

It concerned a man named Joseph Portuese, under arrest in Urbana, Ill., for whom they wanted D'Andra to go bond.

Portuese, while charged with selling liquor without a license in a prohibition territory, was said to have had a connection with the killing in Urbana of Charles Catalino.

Last Sunday Catalino was walking with Joseph Mascari. Behind them walked Portuese and Charles Spangio. Catalino was shot in the back. The three men were arrested.

Offer Possible Solution.

D'Andra received the letter on Thursday. He gave it to Dispenza the same day.

"It may be possible that Catalino's friends thought Portuese responsible and believed he had been sent to Urbana to do the killing by Dispenza and Puccio," said Lieut. Timothy Cullinane. "They couldn't get at Portuese because he is locked up, but they could get at Puccio and Dispenza."

Another theory which the police are working on is that the killing of Puccio was the outcome of another killing in Streator, Ill., six years ago. At that time a man named Orifino Puccio and Michael Rizzo shot and killed Samuel Sapienzo. The latter shot Puccio in the stomach. Puccio and Rizzo took a train for Chicago and walked from the Canal street depot to the German-American hospital on the north side. The hospital notified the police.

The two men killed Sapienzo because he had blown out the front of the grocery of Mike Rizzo's father, Antonio.

A bullet wound was found on Anthony Puccio's stomach yesterday when the undertaker was preparing him for burial. The Bertillon description of the man was taken and an investigation is being made to see whether Orifino and Anthony Puccio are not one and the same man.

In that case, say the police, the shooting might have been done by friends of Sapienzo.

MAROONS SET FOR BADGERS

Victorious Five to Take Lead in Conference Tonight.

STARS ON WISCONSIN TEAM.

Chicago Confident Because of Its Victory Over Illinois.

BY MAROON.

Conference basketball fans are due for the liveliest exhibition of the early season at Bartlett gymnasium tonight when the University of Chicago team plays the Wisconsin title aspirants in the first Maroon-Badger clash of the year. The battle will have an important effect on the ratings, as the two rivals now lead the league with three victories and no defeats each.

The Wisconsin team will have the services of such stars as Van Gent, Sands, and Harper, members of last year's championship five, and the new blood has been showing in excellent form. The Badger alumni have ordered a block of seats and expect to stage a rooting battle with the Midway yellers.

The Maroon team, confident as a result of its victory over Illinois last Tuesday night at Urbana, is backed by the Midway fans to defeat the visitors by a small score. The lineup will include Des Jardien at center, Norgren and Goettler at the forwards, and Stegemann and Molander at the guards.

DOMARS TAKE BOWLING LEAD.

Head Team in Randolph Organization by Winning Series—Shoot Two Games Over 1,000.

Domars went into the lead in the Randolph Bowling league by taking the entire series from the El Rectors while the Superbs, who were tied with them for first place, dropped two games to the Howards. The Domars were slow in starting, but won the first game with 883. In the next two games they had scores of 1,026 and 1,032, which gave them a rating of 980 1-3.

The Superbs lost the odd game to the Howards by one pin, but gathered in the last by a sufficient margin to save themselves a shutout. The Taylor Trunks got into the running in the same league by winning three games from the Old Styles.

Augie Trapp set the pace for the Domars with counts of 162, 256, and 266, that netted him an average of 228 for the high mark of the league. Pete Howley was the star performer for the Howards with 219 2-3, and George Bangart had 223 1-3 for the Brunswicks, while his team was dropping a series to the Berghoffs.

Northwestern College Wins.

Naperville, Ill., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—In one of the most sensational games of the season Northwestern college defeated the Michigan Aggies by the score of 44 to 24. The game was hard fought. Northwestern put its usual speed behind a perfect system of plays which the Aggies found impossible to break up. Every man on the local team played a star game. A crowd of 500 people packed the gymnasium.

PURPLE DEFEATS MAROON IN TANK

Methodists Trim Midway Boys in Dual Swimming Meet by Score of 39½ to 18½.

CHICAGO GETS ONE FIRST.

South Siders Beaten in All Events Except Plunge; Capt. Wood Is Star of Show.

BY JACK PROCTOR.

Coach Robinson's purple natators defeated the Chicago swimming team in their dual meet in the Patten gymnasium last night, 39½ to 18½. The Maroons started out valiantly, winning first in the plunge, but thereafter had to be contented with second or third places, the purple taking premier honors in each event and winning the 160 yard relay as a grand climax.

Capt. Irving Wood of Northwestern took the honors with three firsts, while Parlicek of the Maroons gained a like quota of seconds. Scoles of the Purple was second in honors by winning firsts in the 220 yard breast and 150 yard back stroke.

Wood and Parlicek Close.

Wood and Parlicek exhibited a pretty battle in the 40 and 100 yard swims. The Purple captain barely nosed out the Maroon. Parlicek gave Scoles a hard fight in the 150 yard back-stroke, but Robinson's pupil pulled away at the finish.

Coaches Robinson and White introduced the first water basketball game between conference teams. The Purple tossers winning 10 points to 2. A crowd of 400 cheered the players. Both coaches predicted that the game would become popular.

Oak Park High school and Evanston academy staged a preliminary to the varsity match, the academy taking the honors with a score of 41 to 28.

WOLGAST RUSHES SMOTHER RIVERS IN FURIOUS SCRAP

Constant Hammering Gives Ex-Champion Seven Rounds; Other Three Even.

DISPLAYS HIS FORMER SKILL

Michigan "Bearcat" Shows Real Form for First Time Since He Lost Lightweight Title.

LARGE CROWD SEES GREAT BATTLE

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Fighting like the champion of old, Ad Wolgast, the Michigan "bearcat," decisively defeated Joe Rivers, the Los Angeles lightweight, in the main bout of the show staged by the National A. C. at the Dreamland rink tonight.

For the first time since he lost the championship to Willie Ritchie Wolgast showed a flash of the form which made him one of the greatest lightweight champions in the history of pugilism. He fought a hard, careful fight and was the master of the situation at all times. His hard, clean punching at close quarters weakened his opponent to such an extent that it would have been doubtful if Rivers would have lasted five more rounds.

Wolgast timed those punches perfectly and Rivers often failed to judge his distance accurately. He was the aggressor in most of the rounds. He bored into the Mexican relentlessly and pounded his body unmercifully.

Wolgast in Good Condition.

Wolgast was in perfect condition and it is doubtful if he has been in better shape since he fought Ritchie. He was strong throughout and not once during the mill did he break ground. His punches had more force behind them than those of the Mexican and he always was set when he landed them.

In the second round Wolgast caused the blood to flow from Rivers' nose as a result of a hard right swing. The blood oozed from the injured member for the remainder of the contest. Wolgast left the ring unmarked.

They were even in the first round. The second, third, and fourth rounds were in Wolgast's favor. The fifth was even, and Wolgast had the advantage in the sixth. They were even in the seventh round, but Wolgast took the last three.

It was a great battle and Wolgast must be given a lot of credit. His victory entitled him to a return match with Ritchie for the title. Rivers said he hurt his left hand in the first round, and he also complained of Wolgast's low punches.

Both Make Stipulated Weight.

Wolgast and Rivers made 133 pounds at 3 o'clock. The fighters simply shook hands, stepped on the scales, and neither wavered the bar. No words passed between the rivals.

Two trains from Chicago brought over 1,000 fans. Specials were run from other towns in the state. Many enthusiasts made the day ride from St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Long before the hour set for the staging of the first preliminary a crowd of over 3,000 persons clamored for admission. Frank Mulkern, matchmaker and promoter of the club which staged the show, announced an advance sale of $7,000, and he estimated the house at $10,000. Of the amount Wolgast received 33 per cent and Rivers a flat guarantee of $4,000. Harry Stout of Milwaukee was the third man in the ring in all the contests.

Wolgast was the first to enter the ring. The German crawled through the ropes at 10 o'clock. He was given a great reception, showing he still is a big favorite in this city. Manager Tom Jones acted as Wolgast's chief adviser. Rivers followed shortly afterward and also was greeted by his adversary. Manager Joe Levy was his chief second. After a cordial handshake the fighters retired to their corners to adjust the gloves. The referee then gave his instructions and the fighters awaited the call of time.

FIRST ROUND—They shook hands. Rivers put right and left to head and they went into close quarters, each hitting with arms free. The Mexican drove a solid right to stomach, but Wolgast put two light lefts to the face in return. Wolgast ripped in a hard left to the stomach and then drove left and right to head. Rivers put light left to face, but received left to stomach in return. They mixed matters at the bell. It was an even round.

SECOND ROUND—Rivers put a hard left to face and Ad slipped to canvas after he had missed a left swing. They stood head to head and slugged each other with right and lefts to body and head. Wolgast missed a hard right swing and the Mexican put two lefts to the face. Wolgast drove three solid rights to stomach, but Rivers swung right and left to head, forcing Ad to the ropes. Two left hooks on the nose caused the blood to flow from Rivers' mouth and nose. Wolgast followed up this advantage by putting rights and lefts to the head. Wolgast's round.

FIFTH ROUND—Rivers hooked a light right to the head and they went into a clinch. After the break Wolgast put a left to the face and a right uppercut to the body. Rivers came back, planted a hard right to the jaw. Wolgast then rocked his opponent's head with a solid left to the chin. Rivers bored in and Wolgast landed stinging rights and lefts to head and body. They traded right uppercuts and went into a clinch. After the break Rivers landed a right uppercut to the chin. They went into a clinch and wrestled on the ropes. Both fell to the floor as the bell rang. It was an even round.

SIXTH ROUND—They went into a clinch without either striking a blow. Wolgast put two left hooks to the jaw and followed it up by landing two straight lefts on Rivers' sore nose. Wolgast forced Rivers to the ropes and belted him with rights and lefts to the body. Wolgast put a hard left to the face, but missed with a left hook. Rivers hit low and Ad complained to the referee. Wolgast put two straight lefts to the face and received a glancing right hook on the jaw in return. They went in close and belted each other on the body with short right and left hooks at the bell. Wolgast's round.

SEVENTH ROUND—The Mexican put a short right hook to the jaw, and Wolgast missed with a hard right to the chin. The German was caught off balance and Rivers nailed him with a hard right to the head. They wrestled and bulled around the ring, each landing short body punches. After the break Rivers put a solid right to the jaw, and Wolgast then forced the Mexican to the ropes, stinging him with solid body blows. Joe put two light lefts to the face as the bell sounded. It was an even round.

EIGHTH ROUND—The Mexican landed a light left to the chin and they went into close quarters, each landing body blows with honors even. Wolgast put two straight lefts to the nose, but Rivers hooked his left to the chin. They went in close and traded hard body blows with neither having a decided advantage. Finally Wolgast caught the Mexican flush on the jaw with a left swing and backslapped him with the same member, forcing Rivers to the ropes. Joe retaliated with light lefts to the face, but his blows did not have the force of Wolgast's. They mixed it fiercely at the bell. Wolgast's round.

NINTH ROUND—Wolgast hooked his left to the stomach and Rivers missed a hard right swing. They went in close and Wolgast put five straight rights to the stomach without a return. They traded lefts at long range, then Rivers put a light uppercut to the chin. Wolgast landed a wild left swing on the body, but received a left to the face. Wolgast hooked two solid rights to the stomach and brought his left to the jaw. They exchanged body blows at close range, then Wolgast rocked his opponent with a right uppercut as the bell sounded. Wolgast's round.

TENTH ROUND—They shook hands. Rivers hooked his right to the chin. Wolgast bored in and stung the Mexican with vicious rights and lefts to the stomach. Joe put two right uppercuts to the face, but the blows did not even slow up Wolgast. They went in close and Wolgast hammered the Mexican's stomach with hard right hand punches, then Rivers jabbed Wolgast twice with the right hand, but missed a hard left cross. They traded left hand punches at long range and then mixed matters in an interesting fashion at close range as the bell sounded. Wolgast's round and fight.

Scheiberl Victor on Points.

In the ten round semi-windup "Peanuts" Scheiberl of Rock Island earned the decision over Patsy McMahon of Indianapolis. Scheiberl forced the milling and landed the cleaner punches. In the first round Scheiberl knocked down his opponent for the count of two with a left hook. In the final session the Rock Island battler drew blood from the Hoosier's nose as a result of a stinging right hook. Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis middleweight, was McMahon's chief adviser. The fighters met at 122 pounds.

Lou Rowlands of Milwaukee and Johnny Tillman of Minneapolis boxed ten rounds to a draw in the opening contest. They met at 135 pounds and mixed matters in interesting fashion in every session.

Statements by Fighters.

WOLGAST—I knew I could beat Rivers, and he can have a return match any time he wants it. All I want now is another contest with Ritchie for the lightweight title.

RIVERS—I think I earned a draw. Wolgast fought better than I expected, but I want to meet him in a long fight. I know I can beat him in a twenty round battle.

J. MANDOT VICTOR OVER LORE; DUNDEE AND SHUGRUE DRAW.

New Orleans Boxer, Outweighed Three Pounds, Hands New Yorker Real Beating in Ten Rounds.

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Joe Mandot of New Orleans, once regarded as a possible lightweight champion, outboxed and outfought Johnny Lore of New York tonight. Lore outweighed his rival by three pounds.

Mandot came into his own in the fifth round and walloped his man all over the ring. He started his punches just at the right moment, and they thundered home with crushing force, but Lore, hardy and game to the core, refused to go down.

Mandot, warming up to his work, grew better with the distance, and until the end he rained home volley after volley of terrific wallops. Lore fought back with all his speed.

Johnny Dundee of New York and "Young" Shugrue of Jersey City fought a fast ten round bout with honors even. Dundee weighed 127½ pounds and Shugrue 135.

WHITE WINS; SO DOES DUFFY?

Rival Partisans Claim Victory for Each Fighter.

PRESS FAVORS HOME BOXER.

Chicagoan Gives Away Four Pounds; Buffalo Man Overweight.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Charlie White of Chicago boxed ten rounds with Jimmy Duffy of Lockport tonight. The Duffy camp claimed a win, and so did the White camp. Local sporting writers agreed that the first and seventh rounds were even, the sixth and eighth White's, with the remaining six Duffy's by a good margin. Duffy was much superior in his boxing and his long reach prevented White from landing effectively.

The match was made for 133 pounds at 5 o'clock this afternoon. White failed to tip the beam at 133, while Duffy could make no better than 134¼. A long wrangle ensued among the managers, the fighters, and the officials of the Queensbury A. C. White finally said he would fight rather than disappoint the spectators, many of whom came from distant points to see the match.

At ringside the Chicago boy, boxing togs and all, weighed only 132¾, while Duffy, stripped to the skin, tipped the beam at 136¼. The action of White in giving away four pounds in what was considered one of the most important bouts of his career, won him a great hand from the crowd. White frequently won rounds of applause for his gameness and clever fighting. There was not a clean knockdown in the ten rounds. Duffy was bleeding at the mouth at the end of the eighth round.

THREE MORE SIGN WITH FEDERALS?

Rollie Zeider of Yankees Believed to Have Jumped to the Local Club.

SWEENEY FOR BUFFALO?

Ward Miller of Cubs Is Said to Have Admitted Acceptance of St. Louis Terms.

BY SAM WELLER.

Federal league baseball magnates are silent these days, but to all indications they have some money that is talking. Undoubtedly many major league ball players are listening, and although the officials of the independent league announced no additions to their forces yesterday, it is probable that at least two and perhaps three stars were induced to jump from the big fellows.

Admirers of Rollie Zeider, the former White Sox infielder who was traded to New York last season in the deal for Hal Chase, need not be surprised to see him cavorting at the third corner for Charles Weeghman and Joe Tinker on the north side next season. Ward Miller, the speedy outfielder of the Cubs, may be seen playing with Mordecai Brown's St. Louis bunch, and one shouldn't be amazed to see Eddie Sweeney, the husky backstop of the New York Americans, performing for the Buffalo club of the "outlaws."

Zeider Comes from Home Town.

These probabilities are based only on happenings of yesterday. It had been announced that Frank Farrell, owner of the New York Americans, would be in Chicago to talk with Zeider and Sweeney. Zeider came here from his home in Auburn, Ind., expecting to have a conference with his boss, but learned that Mr. Farrell had not come. Arthur Irwin, associated with Farrell's club as scout, was present with authority to talk to the infielder.

Before meeting Mr. Irwin, Zeider slipped into the office of the Federal league and had a private conference with Tinker and Weeghman. From there he went to the office of President Johnson of the American league, where he met Irwin, and was told what the New York club was willing to pay as salary for next season.

Zeider promptly turned down the offer and told Irwin how much he wanted. Irwin called up Farrell on the long distance telephone and gave him Zeider's ultimatum. It was refused and Zeider was told to go and sign with the Federal league if he wished.

Closeted with Joe Tinker.

Not long afterward, Zeider was found closeted again with Joe Tinker in the Federal league office, and in the middle of the afternoon he returned to the Congress hotel, where he talked to baseball men who had gathered there because of the meeting of the American association magnates. Arthur Irwin was present, but Zeider made no effort to have another talk with the New York representative. At 5 o'clock he left with his grip for his home.

Irwin made numerous inquiries during the day regarding Eddie Sweeney. He was told Sweeney had been seen in the Federal league offices yesterday and days previous. Sweeney's home in Austin was called by telephone and it was said Sweeney was thought to be out of town. Later a report was circulated he was in Buffalo to talk personally with the owners of the Buffalo "Feds." If everything were satisfactory he would sign a contract before returning.

The case of Ward Miller was discussed with more freedom but not by Federal league officials. Ward reached town in the morning and said he had come from his home in Dixon, Ill., to get some costumes and jokes for the Elks' minstrels. He went to the office of the Federal league almost immediately and the magnates there deny they have either costumes or jokes on hand.

Murphy Refuses to Bid.

Later Miller was said to have admitted to friends he had signed with the "outlaws" and he was to be sent to Mordecai Brown's St. Louis team. The speedy Cub called on President Murphy of the west side team before taking the important step, and evidently Murphy refused to bid for the player's services when informed of the amount offered by the "Feds."

Instead, the Cub boss offered a unique proposition. "You go over to the 'Feds' and get all the advance money you can," he told Miller, "and see if they'll give you a three year contract and put all the money in the bank. I'll agree to make an effort to get you reinstated in organized baseball as soon as the Federal league 'blows,' and pay you the salary you are asking now, if you'll give me half of the coin you grab from the 'outlaws.'"

Later Miller was seen in conference with Tinker, and was said to have admitted signing with the Federals, but he left town without accepting President Murphy's proposition.

While the "Feds" are said to have added three players to their list yesterday, it developed they may lose one they already have announced as signed. Arthur Irwin imparted the information that "King" Cole had accepted terms with the New York Americans before he signed with the "Feds" and there was no chance for Cole to get away.

Yanks Have Claim on Cole.

"President Farrell has Cole's acceptance of terms in a letter, which is just as binding as if he had signed a contract," said Irwin. "The terms were good, big figures, too. Farrell wrote a letter to Cole, and has Cole's acceptance in writing. Our lawyer in New York declares it is as good as a signed contract, so you'll see Cole pitching for the New York team, if he pitches at all."

Three other players of big league experience were seen in the Federal league offices during the day. Bill Bradley, the veteran third baseman, who gained fame in Cleveland, was present, and it was rumored he would be the manager of the Toronto club. Cy Barger, the Brooklyn hurler who was sent to the International league, was seen talking with Federal league officials, and Frank Delahanty, brother of Ed and Jim and Joe of the famous family, called to get a cigar.

FOND DU LAC.

"Eureka!" cried Rudy, the Terrible Boro,
"I wisht I had knew of this city before.
They're crazy to see me this Fond du Lac bunch,"*
Cried Rudy, a-helping himself to the lunch.

*They must be.

Two or three of the New York Giants were thinking of taking preliminary workouts at Hot Springs. But they saw by the paper that Joe Bush was down there.

Through an oversight, the name of the gent who picked the all-star Negro team was left out of the col. A. Carter was the gent.

Frank Farrell came all the way from New York to tell it to Sweeney.

Jack Holland may get the fever and sign with the Feds himself when he visits Tinker's office.

It is said the Washington club will be the one to suffer from Frank Owens' jumping act, but the suffering will not be as great as if Griff didn't own John Henry and Eddie Ainsmith.

Mr. Owens must not be scolded too severely for his deed. The possibility of having to warm up Walter Johnson would be enough to keep us from going to Washington.

Hint to Federal league—Why not make an offer to some member of Frank Chance's Yankees?

"Impossible!" exclaimed several big league magnates when informed that Mr. Weeghman had refused even to look at a certified check for $500.

The death of Neil Snow robs the earth of a dandy fellow and football of one of its most competent officials.

BALLAD.
By Ad Brennan.

Was misled by him, but will stick with you.
He will regret what he did do.
He's fair but false; I'm fond and true.
Was misled by him, but will stick with you.

Rollie Zeider called yesterday noon, thus strengthening the impression that he has brains. It would be very unwise for the Zeider nose to try to butt in here in the evening.

"My Husband Once Was a Manager, But Now He's a Traveling Man" is the title of Mrs. Evers' latest composition.

TO EVERY ONE'S REGRET—

I knew some one would have my seat, some stubborn, grouchy guy;
I wasn't sure the boys would really FIGHT;
I knew 'twould take four hours to come back home, and that is why
I wasn't in Milwaukee yesternight.

CAPTAINS PUT O. K. ON SUMMER BALL

Eastern College Leaders Almost Unanimous in Favor of Proposition.

EXPRESS THEIR VIEWS.

Legislation by Yale, Harvard, and Princeton Suggested to Make the Change.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 23.—That college athletes should be allowed to play summer baseball as a means of earning their living as well as a sport and to keep them in practice is the consensus of opinion of college captains whose views have been gathered by the Yale News. Capt. John T. Blossom of Yale favors summer baseball and says it is bound to come.

"Should the step of permitting summer ball be taken it would do away once and for all with these annual discussions," Capt. Blossom writes. "The only way in which such a condition of affairs could be brought about without general disapproval would be for Harvard, Princeton, and Yale to draw up a joint agreement to take this step."

Bernard K. Rhoads, the Princeton captain, writes he fails to see any reason why a college player would not turn that ability to good account. "I cannot see why a man whose talent runs to baseball should not help himself through college by using that talent just as well as a man whose abilities are more scholastic and who earns money by tutoring."

C. G. Porter, captain of Johns Hopkins, and J. L. Valden, captain of the Navy, also wrote in favor of summer baseball.

MAGNATES OF A. A. IN HARMONY

Meeting of Minor Leaguers Is Peaceful and New Club Owners Are Welcomed.

American association baseball magnates experienced nothing but joy and peace at their meeting yesterday at the Congress, according to President Tom Chivington, who declared that wars and rumors of wars weren't even discussed.

Mr. Chivington announced at the close of the session that the feature had been the reception extended to Owner McGill and Manager Hendricks, the new magnates who have taken the Indianapolis club. The transfer of the club from former owner Sol Meyer to the new magnates was ratified officially and every one offered the newcomers the glad hand.

The principal business of the meeting related to the schedule for the coming season, and a committee of three was elected to take complete charge. Those chosen were M. E. Cantillon of Minneapolis, George Tebeau of Kansas City, and O. H. Wathen of Louisville. Whether the clubs will make three or four trips around the circuit this season was left to the committee to decide, as was the question of the number of games to be played.

Jimmy Sheckard, former Cub, who is slated to manage the Toledo club, departed last night for his home in Columbia, Pa. He intended to stop over in Cleveland, where he expects to sign a contract with the Toledo club today.

BIG CASH SALES AID GRAIN BULLS

Wheat Futures Advance Sharply; Export Business Largest in Many Weeks.

CORN SHORTS BIG BUYERS.

Smaller Receipts and Stronger Cables Are Factors; Products Are Lower.

Wheat prices worked up to the highest level in several months yesterday, closing at nearly the best level of the day. Big sales of wheat for export with the stronger cables from abroad startled shorts into buying, and there was free buying by commission houses with indications of more general interest in the market. Final prices were ½@⅝c to ⅝@¾c up.

Liverpool was ⅛@¼d higher, with gains at all the continental markets. Paris was up 1@1⅛c; Antwerp, ⅜c; Berlin, ⅝c; and Budapest, 1⅛c. This gave the local market a firm tone at the start and later there was free buying on the reports of export sales aggregating 800,000 bu, most of which was from Chicago. Low ocean freights have made it possible to do a good export business, and this has changed conditions materially.

Australian News Bullish.

Australian and Argentine advices continue bullish, the advances in foreign markets being attributed to this more than anything else. Liverpool has been influenced to some extent by the small receipts at Winnipeg. Buying here was led by Armour, Bartlett-Frazier, Cudahy brokers, Ware-Leland, Jackson Bros., Logan-Bryan, and Barrett. On the first upturn Jackson Bros., Armour, King-Farnum, Lamson, and Harris-Winthrop were sellers. Outside markets were firm, and the northwest reported a stronger tone to the cash market.

Total sales from here were 750,000 bu, including some business worked late the previous day. Omaha sold 90,000 bu hard winter wheat for export. Minneapolis wheat stocks were increased 175,000 bu for the week, and Duluth gained 214,000 bu for five days. Clearances for the day were 445,000 bu wheat and flour. Primary receipts were 626,000 bu, compared to 991,000 bu a year ago. Receipts were 48 cars, with 36 cars the estimate for today. Northwest points had 252 cars; last year, 329 cars.

World's Exports Moderate.

World's shipments were estimated at 11,500,000 bu, and a liberal increase in on passage stocks is expected. Argentine shipments for the week were 848,000 bu; Indian, 352,000 bu, and Australian, 3,752,000 bu. Clearances for the week from this country and Canada were 3,881,000 bu, against 6,682,000 bu a year ago. Weather conditions over the winter wheat belt were extremely mild for the season, and there is but little snow covering, except in Michigan and northern Indiana. With the exception of the lack of snow protection the outlook is regarded as ideal.

December exports of wheat and flour were 10,580,000 bu, and for the first six months of the crop year 62,664,000 bu, compared to 40,000,000 bu a year ago.

Corn Has Fair Advance.

The strength in corn, with a better cash demand, aided corn bulls, and prices for the day were ⅜@½c higher. Shorts covered freely and there was free buying, headed by Bartlett-Frazier, Andrew, Harris-Winthrop, and local traders. Barrett and commission houses were good sellers on the advance. The cash market was ¼@½c higher and there were good advances at outside markets. Sales for shipment here were about 465,000 bu, and there was also a sale of 150,000 bu No. 3 corn at 8c under May in store.

The weather was mild throughout the belt. Offerings from the country were reported lighter. Liverpool was ⅜@½d up. Argentine shipments were moderate at 1,216,000 bu. From this country clearances for the week were only 62,000 bu. Receipts here were 184 cars with 132 cars inspected yesterday. Primary receipts were 984,000 bu, against 1,430,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Demand Not Urgent.

The demand for oats was not at all urgent, but the strength in other grains encouraged some local buying and there was not much pressure to sell. Receipts were moderate. Prices here were ⅛@¼c higher at the close. Cash prices were ¼@½c higher and sales were 175,000 bu. Receipts here were 109 cars, with 88 cars the inspection yesterday. Receipts at western points were 680,000 bu, compared to 601,000 bu a year ago.

Packers Sell Provisions.

The provisions market was weak and lower throughout the list. Packers were credited with selling heavy lines of pork and also of lard and ribs. This selling was too much for the bears, although there was fair buying on the break. Milwaukee Cudahys were credited with buying on the dip. The cash trade was reported slow. Receipts of hogs here were 27,000, with 16,000 for today estimated. Western receipts were 70,600, against 64,000 a year ago. Liverpool prices were 6d lower for hams. Lard was steady. Receipts of products were 28 cars; shipments were 89 cars.

Rye Demand Improved.

Rye met with a better demand at steady prices, with sales of No. 2 at 61c and No. 3 at 58@60c. Receipts, 5 cars.

Barley was steady, with malting 55@70c; feed, 50@52c, and screenings, 30@50c. Receipts, 50 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet, with March $5.50 bid and cash lots $3.75@5.25. Clover seed was steady at $11.00@14.50 for cash.

Duluth flax closed ½c higher, with cash on track $1.50½; January, $1.49½, and May, $1.53¼; receipts, 12 cars. Minneapolis was ½c higher at $1.47½@1.51 for cash on track; receipts, 18 cars. Winnipeg closed steady at $1.27½ for January, $1.33⅝ for May, and $1.36 for July; receipts, 18 cars.

BOARD OF TRADE GOSSIP

"Old corn with farmers and crop 1913 make 2,886,000,000 bu," says O. E. Lyle of Chapin & Co. "The average of ten years, 2,771,000,000. The average disappearance Nov. 1 to March 1, for ten years, is 1,[illegible]. For this season, I think, around 1,000,000,000. This will leave in farmers' hands on March 1 about [illegible]. The disappearance of corn eight months, March 1 to Nov. 1, in ten years, shows range 756,000,000 to 1,167,000,000, and average 961,000,000. With domestic economies and assistance from Argentina there will be enough corn to meet all requirements to another crop."

W. M. Hopkins, who has been manager of the transportation department of the board of trade for some years past, terminates his relations with the department at the end of this month. Members of the directory, twenty-two in number, all having served on the transportation committee during Mr. Hopkins' incumbency, gave him a luncheon yesterday and presented him with a handsome watch as a token of their appreciation of his services and of their friendship.

"A big cash meat trade was very disappointing," said a provision broker. "Until there is an improved demand for fresh meats expect to see the packers buy the hogs on a lower basis and product [illegible]."

Winnipeg wired: "No new business from direct from here, but little at eastern lake ports worked [illegible] with [illegible] taken to here. Good demand from millers."

An Argentine cable said some wheat was being sold to Japan and India and that speculators were buying wheat freely at higher than shipping basis.

Estimated receipts for today: Wheat, 36 cars; corn, 232 cars; oats, 93 cars; rye, 5 cars; barley, 60 cars; hogs, 16,000 head.

Argentine shipments of corn this week were 1,[illegible] bu, against 1,436,000 bu a week ago and 1,[illegible] bu a year ago.

Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 175,000 bu for the week, compared to 325,000 bu decrease a year ago.

BIG LOOP LEASE INVOLVES $125,000

EASTWOOD FLATS SOLD.

Apartment House Property at North Shore and Lakewood Figure in Transfer.

E. F. Keebler & Co. have closed a lease in the loop district covering the second floor of the building known as the Cobb block, 10-20 North Dearborn street, east front, between Madison and Washington streets. They have leased the space, 94x80 feet, for Albert Hoefeld to the International Mercantile Marine company for fifteen years from May 1 at a term rent of $125,000.

Mr. Hoefeld, who holds a 198 year ground lease of the property, will remodel the building Feb. 1 after plans by Ottenheimer, Stern & Reichert, architects, at a cost of approximately $60,000. The building will contain five stores and three floors and will have a marble and mosaic entrance, with mahogany woodwork.

Marine Company to Move.

The International Mercantile Marine company, which represents the American, Atlantic Transport, Dominion, Leyland, Red Star, White Star, and White Star Dominion lines, will move from the bank floor of the Roanoke building at La Salle and Madison street, which is to be torn down May 1 to make room for the new Lumbermen's Exchange building. Mr. Hoefeld will name the Cobb building the Merchant Marine building, and negotiations are said to be on for the location of other steamship agencies in the building.

Buys Six Flat Building.

Murray Wolbach has sold to Sutcliffe Crowther the six apartment building at 829-31 Eastwood avenue, 270 feet west of Clarendon avenue, with 50x124 feet of ground, north front, for a stated consideration of $27,500, subject to an incumbrance of $13,500. Mr. Crowther gave in part payment the four flat building at 635 Belden avenue, 157 feet east of Lincoln avenue, 45 feet north front, to alley, clear, no consideration being given. R. L. Hurlburt & Co. represented both parties to the transaction.

The apartment house property at the northeast corner of North Shore and Lakewood avenues, with 62x120 feet of ground, south front, has been sold by Forbes Cadenhead to Edward H. Hughes the consideration in the deed being $10, subject to an incumbrance of $29,000. In part payment Mr. Hughes conveyed the property in Superior street, 1,314 feet west of Lake Shore drive, 30x125 feet, south front, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $8,500.

Sale in Calumet Avenue.

Mrs. Lena A. Cook and husband have sold to Lina Berlinger the apartment house property, with lot 50x150 feet, west front, in Calumet avenue, sixty feet south of Fifty-fourth street, for a stated consideration of $18,000, subject to an incumbrance of $9,500.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $90,000, five years, at 5 per cent, to William T. Church, trustee, on the property in South Wabash avenue, 53 south of Monroe street, 47x85 feet, east front.

William S. Powell has conveyed his equity in the property at 5700-02 Winthrop avenue, being the northwest corner of Hollywood avenue, 50x150 feet, east front, with flat improvements, for $5,000, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000.

Mrs. Frank Crowe has purchased from Jesse P. Butler and Edward L. Ryerson the 50x150 feet in Waveland avenue, 210 feet west of Sheridan road, and she plans to improve it with a high grade three apartment building. The consideration is withheld, but it is stated the property was held at about $200 a foot. Baird & Warner represented both parties.

West Urges Tax Reform.

Reformation of the system of taxation existing in Illinois by amendment of the state constitution and subsequent enactment of the necessary legislation was advocated by Roy O. West, president of the Cook county board of review, in an address before the members of the Coöperative Realty club at its weekly luncheon in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. Classification of property would solve the difficulty of discovering and taxing personal property, he said.

"It's difficult to assess personal property," he said. "It is difficult to discover it and if you do discover it the low interest bearing securities must be assessed at as much as high interest bearing securities. Therefore personal property is secreted.

"There is little criticism of the assessment of real estate because that is a matter of arithmetic.

"We select a lot in the middle of a block, place a value upon that, and estimate the value of each lot by the distance it is from the next intersecting street.

"But when it comes to personal property we have to tax a man who owns a bond bringing $4.50 a year $1.70, while the neighbor next door may own an apartment building bringing in 15 per cent and still be taxed at the same amount.

Recalls Prof. Von Holst.

"Prof. Von Holst, who once was head of the department of history at the University of Chicago, sent in a personal property schedule showing him to be one of the richest men in town. He paid an enormous tax. This disgusted him so that he moved out of town.

"If the constitution were amended so property could be classified and personal property taxed more reasonably and fairly, we would be able to find more of it and tax more of it."

LATEST WALL STREET GOSSIP.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Professional Wall street is more or less at sea in regard to the stock market. What has been looked upon as a perfectly normal reaction has been postponed until it has seemed as if all the ordinary principles of speculative movement have been violated. Time and again in the course of the present rise the stock market has appeared to be in a highly vulnerable position, and just as often the average professional has taken his profits on the long side, and perhaps gone short for a spell in addition, or at least missed his market by waiting for lower prices. Similarly, commission houses have constantly advised their customers to take profits and buy stocks back cheaper. All have been wrong so far. Profit taking sales and short selling have plainly been indulged in heavily, and have made no impression on prices to speak of.

The absorptive qualities of the market have been remarkable. Obviously, the only explanation of this is a sustained buying demand from a source outside of the immediate confines of Wall street—a buying demand sufficient to more than offset the operations of the professionals. Such a thing has not been seen for a long time.

The report that a protest had been submitted to the president by influential interests in San Francisco against the enforced separation of the Southern Pacific and the Central Pacific contemplated by the department of justice may have accelerated the pace of the upward movement in Southern Pacific stock. But it cannot be doubted now, any more than previously, that the main impulse behind the rise is the gradual "absorption" of the huge block of additional stock injected into the market last summer.

The rise in the stock to 99⅞ may appear as something extraordinary when looked at in relation to the price of 85, made about the middle of last December, and 83, a little earlier. But to the investor who has held his stock all through the abnormal market conditions of last year it is merely a logical recovery.

Although Union Pacific at 163⅝ made a new high price on the movement and actually surpassed by a narrow margin the top made on the wild speculation excited by the distribution rumors of last September, the rise in the stock on the present movement has been disproportionate to the ground gained by the rest of the list, with the exception, perhaps of Reading. Moreover, some portion of the improvement must be attributed to the rise in Baltimore. Following the announcement of the extra distribution a few weeks ago, Union Pacific sold at 158. Baltimore and Ohio at the same time sold at 89. The rise of over 3 points in the price of Baltimore since then has materially increased the value of the "rights" and thus automatically added over 2 points to the value of Union Pacific stock without taking into account the improvement in the price of Baltimore and Ohio preferred.

The rise in Baltimore and Ohio common has been one of the most striking features of the market. Apparently it signifies a complete reversal of the opinion that the additional stock, when released, will be thrown upon the market. The stock will sell ex-dividend Jan. 31. That has undoubtedly been an influence for the unlucky "shorts," who have been hanging on and will scarcely wish to pay the 3 per cent dividend.

◆

For some time Canadian Pacific has moved in direct opposition to the rest of the list. It has been practically the only comfort of the "shorts," having declined more or less steadily. The usual explanations offered in Wall street for this chronic weakness are rather vague. Considering that the stock always has sold far out of line with American railroad shares, it does not seem sufficient to assert that Canadian is selling some 30 or 40 points above the level justified by its income return. A better reason may be found, perhaps, in the criticism of the recently announced plan of the management to raise money by an issue of [illegible] notes. In Canada this scheme has been denounced in the liveliest terms.

It is noticeable, however, that despite the evident unpopularity of the stock there is an exceptionally good market for it at these figures. A block of 1,000 shares sold today at a change of one-eighth from the preceding price.

IN THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Buoyancy again featured the egg market at Chicago yesterday and prices made a further advance of ½@1c a dozen. The demand was of fair volume, while receipts were moderate, 3,452 cases. Butter values were weakly held, dealers being ready to make concessions to move liberal quantities of the product. The trade was extremely slow and supplies were said to be accumulating at an alarming rate. Fresh receipts were 4,454 tubs.

White potatoes met with a brisk local and outside demand and prices were rigidly maintained at the recent upturn. Sales were made at 57@67c a bushel on track, receipts of 40 cars finding a ready outlet at the prices.

Live poultry trade was slow and market weak, but values remained without quotable change. Receipts were 3 cars and 915 coops. Dressed poultry demand was restricted by unfavorable weather for shipping supplies to distant points.

STATIST FORESEES GOOD ERA IN U. S.

Sir George Paish in Review Declares Tariff and Currency Will Aid.

CALLS WILSON DOMINANT.

Says He, as Master of Situation, Is Safe from Capitalistic Opposition.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Sir George Paish, reviewing the financial and commercial situation in the Statist this week, predicts a long period of cheap money—barring unforeseen happenings—which will become more abundant and cheaper as the year advances. He recognizes that trade is falling, but says the decline is less in Great Britain than in countries on the continent, which are suffering from the influence of the Balkan war.

Sir George thinks there are grounds for hoping that British manufacturers will be well employed for some time to come. France, he says, will benefit from the loan which she is about to issue and which is likely to bring her numerous new orders. As a result she will suffer less than other countries from declining trade. The same may be said to a certain extent of Germany.

Predicts Recovery in U. S.

"In the United States," Sir George says, "we expect a recovery rather than a decline, for the reduction of the tariff and the new banking and currency act are calculated to benefit trade. When the first difficulties of the reduction of the tariff are overcome American manufacturers will be able to compete with foreigners much better than formerly, while the new banking law ought to give a great stimulus to foreign trade in every direction. We anticipate, therefore, comparative steadiness of trade in the United States, assuming that the crops will be good."

Contingent on the absence of unforeseen and disturbing events, Sir George predicts a general and steady advance will be secured by stocks throughout the year. British securities will be in higher favor than since the outbreak of the Boer war. Consols and other gilt edged securities will continue to advance. American securities also will be much sought after.

Sees Wilson Dominant.

Sir George goes on to say: "There is every reason to anticipate that there will be no antagonism between the great American railroads and the administration. President Wilson has won the confidence of all classes and nobody doubts that, even if he makes mistakes, he is at all events aiming at what is just and fair, and, above all, what will be beneficial to the country. That being so, a better understanding is almost certain to grow up between the administration and the capitalist classes. If it does, American securities will again come into favor."

BUSINESS, COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL SECTION

STOCK EXCHANGES TALK OWEN BILL

Regulation Plan Has Sufficient Good and Bad Provisions to Merit Discussion.

BLOW AT SHORT SALES.

Clause Would Hinder, if Not Abolish, Practice; Promotions Circumscribed.

There is sufficient of the unusual and unfavorable in the bill introduced in the senate by Senator Owen designed to regulate stock exchanges to stir the exchanges of the country to the point of securing full consideration for the bill. The fact that the measure is sponsored by Senator Owen and referred to the committee on banking and currency, of which he is chairman, gives the latter a greater degree of prestige than it otherwise would have.

Also the bill has nothing to do with banking and currency, though some clauses are introduced with reference to banks. These may be regarded as sufficient reason for having the bill go before the currency committee.

Those who have studied the measure agree there is a great deal in it to be commended, but there are also crudities which in the interest of securities markets in general should have a full hearing.

Short Selling Vital Principle.

Regardless of the fact that laws in this country, in England, and in Germany have failed to prohibit short sales, the Owen measure has a clause which seems to look toward the abolition of this practice, for it is provided in clause (f) of section 1:

"That the regulations of said exchange shall forbid its members, under penalty of expulsion and such other penalties as may be prescribed by the articles incorporating the exchange or otherwise, from lending securities pledged with them or from making any agreement with their customers with respect thereto."

The last part of the sentence, "from lending securities," etc., would apparently greatly hinder if not abolish short selling.

The arguments for and against the practice of short selling may go to any extreme, but it is the abuse of the privilege and not the right to sell for future delivery that has brought discredit upon the operation.

Provision Held Too Drastic.

Under one name or another the principle involved in short selling is practiced in every line of industry and is, in fact, the basis of a mobile market. Its necessity in the making of markets is something which it appears to devolve upon stock exchange authorities to make clear to the proper representatives in congress. To kill the vital element in the making of the broad markets of the country merely because there are abusive practices, would be like abolishing food because some persons may overeat.

The clauses in the bill which provide for the incorporation of stock exchanges or the adoption of by-laws by them intended to prevent wrongdoing will probably meet with general public favor. Compliance with these clauses, too, probably will drive off the stock exchanges certain securities which represent flotations for personal profit to promoters.

Would Hit Promotion Intrigue.

Under the bill it would not be possible for a promoter to purchase plants as an individual, then sell them to himself at another price as the head of a holding company, and then induce the banks to make the securities issued against improper and inflated values under threat of withholding the bank account of a concern so put together. These curious little transactions, intended not for the public good, but for the personal gain of the promoters, would, under the bill, have to be laid bare before the stock or bonds could be dealt in. And laid bare the public would not care for the securities.

The bill also provides for the making of reports of illuminating character and renders necessary on the part of companies by-laws that would prevent insiders unloading on their stockholders shares at a high value which the course of business of the company would indicate to the managers and lower quotations for the securities because of facts known first and only to such stockholders as might be directors or managers.

Large Gain in Cash.

Known movements of money for the week indicate a gain in cash by the New York banks of approximately $21,000,000. They gained from the interior $4,489,605. Should this latter gain be realized in a total increase in cash by the New York banks for the first three weeks of January would be $72,6 ,000.

Bank of Nova Scotia.

The annual report of the Bank of Nova Scotia has been issued and shows net profits for the last calendar year of $1,210,774, or 20.72 per cent on the average paid up capital for the year. The capital outstanding is $6,000,000. The regular dividend rate is 14 per cent. The reserve fund is $11,000,000. The bank was incorporated in 1832.

National City Will Join Reserve.

Walter E. Lw, president of the Corn Exchange bank of New York, denies there are any plans under way for a merger of the Corn Exchange with the National City bank and the surrender of the latter's national bank charter. Officials of the National City say that institution will enter the federal reserve bank system.

Chicago Securities.

There was an advance in most of the securities traded in on the local exchange. Brokers report a good market for the general list. Diamond Match was the feature, moving up to 100, the first time that price has been reached in several months. Swift & Co. shares developed a firmer situation, advancing slightly more than one point and closing at 10 . Sears-Roebuck common moved up with the remainder of the list, the last sale being at 191½. Wide advanced to 148 at the close.

Commonwealth Edison and Peoples Gas showed no improvement. Commonwealth Edison fell off 1½ points, closing at . The market was small. Series 2 certificates were irregular, closing at 33.

In the bond department City Railways 5s were firm, crossing par and closing at 100½. Chicago Railways 5s were also to 90½. Ogden Gas 5s showed improvement at 5¼.

Purchases of Canadian Bonds.

Canada is beginning to take a considerable interest in the United States as a field for the sale of the dominion's municipal securities. The great bulk of these is now placed in London, but the United States is much nearer, and in his report to the Dominion Securities corporation the president says:

"A very significant feature of our bond distribution in 1913 was the absorption of $50,720,782 or 18.56 per cent. of our total output, by the United States, this constituting a record investment by that country in our securities. A very potent factor in this result was the attractive interest yield of Canadian municipal bonds during the last twelve months. Hitherto only a limited amount of these was disposed of in the United States, as the interest return was less than that of similar American securities. Then tariff and financial disturbances, a slackening in trade, the upsetting decline in their steam railway securities, and uncertainty as to their government's attitude toward corporations undoubtedly caused many Americans to turn toward Canadian investments for a portion of their surplus funds.

"In view of the increasing tendency of American capital to establish branch industries in our country, the large annual immigation from the United States (amounting in 1913 to over 115,000 persons, representing $25,000,000 of incoming wealth), and the more comprehensive knowledge of Canada's resources by Americans generally, there is good reason to expect a permanently broadening market for our securities across the border."

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Money was easy and discount rates were weak today. Trading was somewhat checked on the stock exchange by the week end and the approach of the settlement. Profit taking made home securities irregular, and consols were additionally affected by a number of new issues, but the market hardened near the close. Gold mines and copper shares were firm features on local and Paris buying, and Grand Trunk and rubber stocks received attention. American securities moved irregularly within narrow limits during the early trading. The only exception was Canadian Pacific, which declined 1¼ under continental selling. The list recovered in the afternoon when New York buying orders were received. The closing was steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS AT TOP OF RISE

GOOD UNDERTONE SHOWN

Advance in Bonds Continues, Some Gaining as Much as Three Points.

New York, Jan. 23.—Toward the close of today's market prices swept upward to the highest level yet reached on the present movement. In some instances gains ran up to two points or more, although net changes of a majority of the active shares were smaller.

Southern Pacific sold within a fraction of par and Atchison crossed the 100 mark. Trading was again active in both stocks and bonds.

Prior to the final upturn the course of the market was less sure. Profit taking at times caused reactions in individual stocks, and Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific had periods of distinct heaviness.

General Tendency Is Upward.

The undertone was good, however, and the general tendency was upward. Professional selling was offset by vigorous outside buying, and while the market's absorptive capacity was hardly as great as during the preceding two days, it was apparent that the influences which gave the upward impulse had by no means lost their force.

Traders sold stocks in the early session, believing that the extent of the rise pointed to a reaction. The Wilson administration's anti-trust bills, made public over night, were utilized by the bears, who contended that certain features of the measures were drastic enough to cause misgivings in the financial district.

This view was not generally adopted, however, and the shorts were able to make little headway. Prices moved back and forth within a comparatively narrow range, until buying broadened sufficiently late in the day to make the upward movement irresistible.

United States Steel was helped by the higher prices for some steel products. Reports of better business conditions were not confirmed, however, by the statistics of idle freight cars, which showed a large increase in the first half of the month. December figures of domestic exports revealed a falling off as compared with the total for the last month of the preceding year, which was unusually large, but the 1914 figures compared favorably with earlier years.

Large Cash Gain Indicated.

Another large cash gain was indicated with known movements of currency for the week. Estimates varied from $17,000,000 to $21,000,000.

The advance in bonds continued and some issues gained as much as 3 points. Total sales, par value, $5,930,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on call.

HOGS HELD OVER KEEP MART DOWN

Large Stale Supply Offsets Light Receipts; Values Barely Steady.

SHEEP AND LAMBS RISE.

Better Demand Lifts Prices 10@15 Cents; Cattle Trade Stagnant.

Fresh receipts of hogs at Chicago yesterday were only 25,000 head, but a stale supply of 15,305 head brought the available quantity to ample proportions, and values held barely steady, averaging at $8.31, against $8.32 Thursday. Top sales were made up to $8.45, the same as on the foregoing day, but the bulk of the day's business was held within a range of from $8.25 to $8.35. Shipping orders were moderate, calling for 5,000 hogs, while packers bought sparingly, leaving 9,000 hogs to be carried over unsold.

Sheep and lambs met with a more spirited demand and prices made a gain of 10@15c. Receipts of 12,000head cleared early at the upturn, with lambs topping at $8.10 and matured sheep at $6.25. Yearlings on sale were not prime and $7.00 was the best price secured.

Cattle trade was stagnant. Only a few lots of desirable beef steers were included in general receipts of 1,500 head and they met with a restricted demand. Cows and heifers made steady prices and calves were firm, with prime vealers at $11.00.

FUTURE COURSE OF TRADE HELPED BY DEVELOPMENTS.

Dun's Review Says Evidences of Wider Operations and Decreasing Idle Forces Multiply.

Dun's Review, published today by R. G. Dun & Co., will say:

"Developments directly affecting the future course of trade encourage confidence and the evidences of wider operations and decreasing idle forces multiply. Increasing commitments in the leading activities provide the stimulant towards general recovery, and this favorable change is likely soon to become more distinct as the pressing needs for replenishments are realized in manufacturing, distribution, and transportation.

"Liquidation where necessary has been attended with less disturbance in credits than was feared and the action of the money markets reflects ample available resources for business requirements and the probability of important funding operations being completed satisfactorily. Buoyancy in bonds and high grade securities is a natural reaction from depression and is a strengthening element in investment and furtherance of undertakings involving large expenditures.

"Bank clearings, $336,751,878, exceed those of the corresponding week last year by 5.6 per cent and compare with $275,872,456 in 1912. Failures reported in the Chicago district numbered 36, against 46 last week, 28 in 1913, and 33 in 1912. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 15, against 21 last week, 9 in 1913, and 16 in 1912."

RAILWAYS, EXPRESS, SHIPPING.

It is announced semi-officially that the Transcontinental Passenger association will remain in business at the old stand, the Transportation building. Upon the death of James Charlton, for many years chairman of the association, a few weeks ago, it was stated unofficially that the association would merge with a freight organization. Now it is announced that Edwin L. Bevington, the secretary, will remain in charge, but that the title of chairman will be abolished, Mr. Bevington to assume all of the duties of the office.

Many thousands of patrons of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, using the suburban line on the Wisconsin division, are interested in the announcement that the company has installed a new automatic electric system in connection with bridge safety signals between Clybourn and Hunting avenue stations, covering a stretch of about four and a half miles. This included the installation of thirty-two of the new automatic electric bridge signals, supplanting the disc signals and embracing the construction and operation of two mechanical and interlocking plants.

The express companies announce that within the next few days they will distribute to all shippers an epitomized copy of the official express classification and a joint directory to express stations, showing block and sub-block numbers, together with a local and joint schedule of first and second class express rates which have been adopted by the various companies upon the order of the interstate commerce commission. The distribution of this information has been delayed awaiting the action of the public utilities commission, which finally has adopted the official express classification and rates, to become effective on Feb. 1. Under the new system of showing the rates by block numbers and sub-block numbers, as well, it will not be necessary for shippers to have on hand more than one tariff book, as the joint directory will cover all express offices in the United States.

Experts in the express business believe the new rates will attract a large number of shipments, especially of goods weighing fifty pounds and less, which hitherto have been moved by freight. The minimum charge for a freight shipment to important points often is higher than the express rates which will become effective Feb. 1.

Foreign freight agents connected with big railroad lines operating from Chicago report a large movement of cotton from Texas and Oklahoma points to Japan during last fall and the current season. Howard Van Doorne of the Santa Fé system announced yesterday that many thousands of bales have been loaded on Red Funnel line steamers for Kobe and Yokohama. The last shipments amounted to 15,000 bales, the approximate value of which is about $1,000,000. This represents that amount of money paid into the pockets of the cotton growers of Texas and Oklahoma, with transportation charges of $100,000 to the credit of the railroads and steamers.

Notwithstanding the open winter, tourist business to California has kept up. John J. Byrne, assistant passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fé, who has come to Chicago to act for Mr. Black while the latter is in Europe, said yesterday that from the western Canadian territory alone 1,600 winter guests have registered for the winter hotels in southern California. Thousands more have taken cottages.

In its issue of today the Railroad Record, Chicago, says, in part:

"There is a true old saying that sometimes one 'cannot see the forest for the trees.' So, perhaps, surrounded on all sides by statistics, it may be that the men in whose hands the decision rests have been unable to ascertain the state of public opinion. For, while the railways themselves have been trying by every means in their power to convince the commission that a raise is justified, the case has been on trial in the editorial pages of thousands of newspapers, in churches, in schools, in clubs, in forums—everywhere that men congregate and discuss the public weal. And the verdict has been:

"'Grant the 5 per cent increase in freight rates. The railroads need it; business asks it; prosperity depends upon it.'

"Slason Thompson, director of the bureau of railway news statistics, in giving his reason why freight rates should be advanced, concludes:

"'An advance of 5 per cent in average freight receipts would not overtake the advance in wages and general expenses during the last decade, but it would help some materially and more sentimentally.'"

The American Railway association's statement of car surplus and shortage shows that on Jan. 15 there was a total surplus of 217,274 cars, compared with 190,521 cars on Jan. 1 and 53,280 cars on Jan. 15, 1913. Compared with the preceding period there is an increase of 26,753 cars, of which 6,931 are box, 3,363 flat, 14,614 coal and gondola, and 1,845 miscellaneous car surplus.

A report is current that W. H. Bancroft, vice president and general manager of the Oregon Short Line, has resigned, probably to be succeeded by E. E. Calvin, now vice president of the Southern Pacific at San Francisco.

Local steamship agents, acting for Transatlantic lines, are awaiting new instructions, following the Paris conference with reference to third class rates. The Hamburg-American line, having declined to take part in the conference, may have something "up its sleeve." The war may extend to second and first class cabins and even to freight rates. It may be cheaper to take ocean passage, with five meals daily and berth, than remain at home.

There were 88,586 shareholders in the Pennsylvania railroad company on Jan. 1, the largest number in the history of the company. There was an increase of 13,431 in 1913. Of this total 42,514 were women. During the year there has been an increase of 6,010 shareholders in the state of Pennsylvania, the stockholders in this state now numbering 29,792. Stockholders abroad number 11,676, a total of 1,067 having been added during the last year.

OF OUR OFFER.

YOU DO NOT EVEN HAVE TO OWN A LOT.

WE OWN AND OFFER FOR SALE
INVESTMENT HOME-PURCHASING CONTRACTS
ISSUED TO US BY THE STANDARD HOME COMPANY.

This concern has loaned over $2,800,000 on their plan. For these contracts you pay only $6 per month on each $1,000 until loan is available; $72 is the minimum amount required to be paid on each contract of $1,000 before loan is granted. These payments earn 5% interest and are allowed as a prior credit on the loan. The remaining principal to be repaid at the rate of $7.50 per month plus 5% simple interest on yearly balances. You have 10½ years to repay loan. Total interest on each $1,000 borrowed amounts to only $271.76 for the 10½ years. In that time you will have more than saved both principal and interest. In case of adversity we allow you six months' grace in which to make payments. Consider this.

Under this plan you can secure a loan to buy property outright or to build or to repay mortgages, both city and farm, throughout the United States and Canada.

This is your opportunity to own your own home or to acquire additional real estate. Grasp it. It is the chance of a lifetime.

If you wish further particulars, call or write at once for booklet explaining every detail of our proposition.
